CARGO ARRIVES

of Kind Ever to Be Unloaded Angeles Harbor

Hull, Eng., the City of Newcastle of the vation in Los Angeles Harbor affairs by a cargo of bulk linseed oil.

ber of Commerce visited the City of Newcastle and watched the process of unloading.

The entire shipment was conveyed in one immense steel tank located about midship and below the main deck, and was confined in the tank by a steel hatch held in place by 120 inch-bolts.

CARGO PUMPED OUT

The unloading, which required twelve hours, was done by means of a pump and hose supplied by the Vegetable Oil Products Company, and the oil was pumped into the big steel tanks of that company, where it will be stored, pending its delivery as required to the plant of the owners.

During the last two weeks the Vegetable Oil Products Company handled and stored for the Los Angeles Soap Company a shipment of cocoanut oil from the Philippines which was valued at approximately $100,000.

The Vegetable Oil Products Company also is importing cocoanut oil for its own use. This, it is deodorizing in a plant recently installed and is now supplying the trade with the product, which is used as a base in the manufacture of confections, cosmetics and artificial butter.

President Janney stated that that portion of the plant devoted to the manufacture of oxygen gas is running twenty-four hours a day, seven days a week, with three shifts, but is unable to supply more than a fraction of the demand for the gas which is used in welding operations.

J. F. Thomson has just been appointed general manager of the company.

SUBMARINE BASE SWAN SONG READY

Nine R-Type Undersea Ships Leave Harbor at 11 o'Clock This Morning

The termination of the United States government's use of the submarine base at Los Angeles Harbor will come at 11 a.m. today, when nine R-type submarines of Division No. 9 will leave the base in convoy of the tender Canopus.

The nine underwater boats of the latest type used by the Navy of this country, under command of Commander Frederick C. Sherman, will proceed at once to Honolulu, where the permanent Pacific submarine base has been established.

The water-front district used for the base is to be turned back to the Harbor Board on September 1, for use in peace time. While the base at this port is being given up, submarines will continue to be regular visitors, using floating tenders in the outer harbor for anchorage.

Enlargement of Playground is Being Sponsored

The Playground Commission has directed a communication to the City Council suggesting enlarged facilities at the municipal playground camps, because of the demand upon them.

It is set forth that the reservations this year are ahead of all previous seasons, and that the capacity of the High Sierra camp is about sold out for September. It is suggested that that camp be enlarged next year.

The commission asks permission to purchase an automobile stage to run to the High Sierra Camp from Pinhop for the handling of freight.

Activities of Trip to Alaska Prove Too Much; Compelled to Take to Bed

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

FAIRBANKS (Alaska) July 16.—Mrs. Warren G. Harding, wife of the President, has been so worn out by accepting hospitalities extended by Alaskans that she has been compelled to take to bed, Mr. Harding informed an audience here just before he and his party left for Seward, Alaska.

The President, who spoke to a crowd at the baseball park, explained that Mrs. Harding, who suffered a critical illness last fall, had found the activity of the long days in Alaska very exacting, her hours of rest having been short since arrival in the Northern Territory.

Earlier in the day final decision of the President to return direct to Seward, the southern terminus of the Alaska Railroad, instead of taking a contemplated automobile trip on the Richardson Highway, had been announced.

Mrs. Harding had earnestly urged the automobile trip, which would have been 325 miles as originally planned.

No Alimony to Wife Who Has Thirteen Dogs

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Temporary alimony is not justified when a woman has thirteen Pekinese dogs worth $75 each.

This in effect was the ruling today of Chief Justice McCoy of the District Supreme Court when he declined to grant alimony to Mrs. Ida Olga Desio, who asked limited divorce from Salvatore Desio, Jr.

The husband informed the court that when his wife left him she took with her thirteen Pekinese dogs, which were sufficiently valuable to take care of all her needs until the case was settled. Justice McCoy sustained his contention.

The actor has retained Max D. Steuer and Jacob I. Wiener and today asked Justice James C. Cropsey for an order for a bill of particulars, a change of venue from Queens to New York and an extension of time in which to file his answer.

Manila's Mayor Resigns Post in Row With Wood

MANILA, July 16.—Ramon Fernandez, Mayor of Manila, who was appointed by Gov.-Gen. Wood, resigned today. Furthermore the secretaries of all the Philippine departments have signed letters of resignation, according to Jaime C. De Veyra, Philippine resident commissioner at Washington, who is now here. Neither Manuel Quezon, president of the Philippine Senate, nor the secretaries confirm the assertion.

The present crisis came to a head last Friday night when Jose F. Laurel, Secretary of the Interior, resigned when Gov. Wood reinstated Ray Conley, Chief of Secret Service, who had been accused of bribery, despite the recommendation of Mr. Laurel.

VICTORY FOR AMERICANS

Allies Yield in Turkey

Drop Insistence on Special Rights for British and French Companies

Full Agreement Reached on All Remaining Points Before Conference

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

LAUSANNE, July 16.—The Allies and Turks have reached complete agreement on all the remaining points before the Lausanne conference.

Ismet Pasha and the Allied delegates went into session at 4 o'clock this afternoon determined to settle the dispute on concessions and evacuations.

As the experts during the day had failed in their attempts to find a solution of the Turkish petroleum dispute, it was presumed that the supreme difficulty arose over that issue.

Ismet Pasha looked worn and weary; for the past twenty-four hours he has been pulled this way and that by Joseph C. Grew, the American representative, and the Allied delegates, the former insisting that he keep the Turkish petroleum concessions out of the treaty and the latter resisting any change.

Grew conferred with Ismet seven separate times in two days, urging him to resist confirming the great oil contract in the treaty.

According to information issued before the meeting, the Allied experts agreed to drop insistence on preferential rights for British and French companies for future concessions.

This is a victory for the American contentions that such preferences are monopolistic and violate the open-door principle. Before the meeting the experts framed a compromise on the evacuation of Turkish territory, the Allies agreed not to insist upon their right to keep two warships in the straits, pending the establishment of a permanent regime. On her part, Turkey agreed to invite each of the great powers to station one warship in the Dardanelles and to maintain free passage of the Black Sea.

As the United States is not obliged to sign the straits convention, American warships presumably will be free to traverse the straits to any extent the Secretary of the Navy may consider necessary.

UPRISING IN CRETE

PARIS, July 16.—The concentration of the whole Greek fleet at the island of Crete and the departure of Military Dictator Plastiras for Crete from Athens last night has caused acute anxiety to the French Foreign Office today.

Official information from the French Minister in Athens to the Paris government says the revolutionary movement in Crete—suspected to be of Anglo origin—has reached a grave stage. The entire Greek fleet was ordered there last week under the pretext of naval maneuvers, but Quai d'Orsay's information declares the fleet also transported a force of infantry.

Popular opinion credits Admiral Hadjikiriakos with the intention to proclaim a republic in Crete. Athens was in a state of considerable excitement throughout yesterday, particularly after Col. Plastiras's precipitated departure.

The anxiety here is based on the fear that the large Turkish and Mohammedan population of Crete will seize on some protext for proclaiming a republic, thus embroiling Greece and Turkey again in military adventures at a moment when peace is practically completed at Lausanne.

French officials indicate that the Allies will act promptly and in unity by a diplomatic note to the Greek and Turk governments if the situation is not cleared up.

GOVERNOR PARDONS MAGEE

Asserts Case Seems "Conspiracy and More of Persecution Than Prosecution"

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SANTA FE, July 16.—Gov. Hinkle this afternoon issued pardons to Carl C. Magee, editor of the New Mexico State Tribune, convicted of the charge of criminal libel of Chief Justice Parker of the State Supreme Court and of contempt of the Third Judicial District Court.

Magee was sentenced to the penitentiary for one year to eighteen months on the criminal libel charge, and 360 days in the San Miguel County Jail on the contempt charge.

The Governor stated last Saturday he would take no action until Magee had exhausted means of redress in the courts, and his action today came as a surprise.

The Governor, in issuing a pardon on the sentence for asserted libel, declared the indictment on which Magee was tried was obtained "without the knowledge or consent of the party supposed to be libeled," that the trial was held in a district where neither Magee nor Parker lives, and that the bringing of Magee to bar seemed "to be a conspiracy and more of a persecution than a prosecution."

In the pardon in the contempt sentence, the Governor also remitted the fine and costs of $7 imposed on Magee on four citations, and also all fines imposed on the Magee Publishing Company, aggregating $4050.

In this pardon Gov. Hinkle said he was of the opinion that the contempt cases were also a persecution, that the sentences "are harsh and beyond reason, and that whole procedure is a disgrace and a blot upon the name of New Mexico and the good people thereof."

ELECTION OF JOHNSON CONCEDED BY GOV. PREUS

Third of Precincts Give Radical Candidate Lead of 18,000; Democrat Far Behind

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

ST. PAUL (Minn.) July 16.—Election of Magnus Johnson, farmer-laborite as United States Senator from Minnesota, was conceded tonight by Gov. J. A. O. Preus, Republican, his principal opponent in a brief statement to the Associated Press.

Republican headquarters continued to "stand by the ship" and refused to concede that the unreported precincts would likely maintain the radio of the first 900. Farmer-Laborite leaders insisted it was "a walkaway."

PREUS GIVES UP

The first 900 precincts to report included returns from seventy of the State's eighty-seven counties, and in every case were declared to be representative.

Gov. Preus conceded the election after he had been told that 1110 of the State's 3520 precincts gave Johnson a lead of 18,000, the count showing: Johnson, 107,373; Preus, 89,499, and Carley, Democrat, 3379.

These 1110 precincts representing incomplete returns from seventy of the State's eighty-seven counties showed a vote totalling 205,347, as against a probable total vote of from 450,000 to 550,000. If Johnson maintains his present ratio his plurality will exceed 40,000.

LEAD MOUNTING

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MINNEAPOLIS, July 17.—Magnus Johnson, Farmer-Labor candidate, was elected United States Senator from Minnesota today on the face of returns tabulated by the Minneapolis Journal early this morning. Johnson's lead over Gov. Preus, Republican, is mounting on every new tabulation of the returns and will be a heavy one.

The Farmer-Labor candidate has carried many counties which were counted as safely Republican. He ran much better in Minneapolis (Preus's home city) than had been expected.

Indications at midnight are that Johnson's majority will be around 40,000.

NOTED FOR LONG POWER

In addition to strengthening the defense of Judge Lynch, the ... of Representatives ... gave members ... interest the newspaper correspondents and social and political ... in the national capital for the following reasons:

Johnson does not "give a hoot about books" but says he ... that Abraham Lincoln was all right. Johnson does Lincoln the honor to quote him in his speeches.

Earned his sobriquet of "Magnavox" because of his tremendous voice.

Spells and pronounces every word beginning with "i," with a "y," and does not care who knows it.

Has the strongest voice in the State of Minnesota. When he bellows the windows rattle for half a mile.

SWEDISH GLASS BLOWER

Was a glass blower in Sweden and this trade developed his tremendous lung power.

Talks at every opportunity and so loudly that he drowns out all opposition.

Owns a farm in Meeker county and is president of the American Society of Equity (a farmer-labor political body) and vice-president of the Equity Co-operative Grain Exchange. The latter concern is in the hands of receivers.

There is common sense in many of his utterances if his audiences could only understand what he is talking about.

People in Washington will not need to go to the Senate chamber to hear him talk. If they live within a radius of half a mile and will open their windows they will get an earful.

I.W.W. IS OUTLAWED BY COURT

Temporary Injunction is Granted, Covering Whole State, in Sacramento

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SACRAMENTO, July 16.—A temporary injunction restraining all activities of the Industrial Workers of the World in California was granted here late today by Superior Judge Charles O. Busick.

Hearing on the petition for a permanent injunction filed by Dist.-Atty. J. J. Henderson of Sacramento county was set for July 25. The order was signed by the court without comment.

The order, which is sought as a means of curbing the activities of the I.W.W., by a shorter process than that involved in individual trials of members under the criminal syndicalism law, will be effective throughout the State, having been brought in the name of the people of the State by permission of the Attorney-General.

If the injunction is made permanent, any person found holding membership in the I.W.W., or affiliated organizations, will be in contempt of court and subject to imprisonment up to six months without the formality of a jury trial.

Avers Herrick Sought to Sell Wedding News

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, July 16.—A story of how former Representative Manuel Herrick planned to score a first-class newspaper scoop on the news of his marriage was told in court here today when Miss Ethelyn Chrane, who once was his stenographer, filed her reply to his breach-of-promise suit against her.

Miss Chrane said she did promise in 1921 to marry him but that later she withdrew the pledge when he suggested they keep the marriage secret until the newspapers began to comment on their relations and then reveal the truth in return for a large sum of money. When she refused to be a party to such an arrangement, she said Herrick became abusive.

HENRY FORD BUTTON IS FLIVVER WHEEL

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

LOERA STILL BESIEGED

Tension is High in Mexicali

Some Business Men Close Up Stores and Cross Border to United States

Mayor and His Adherents Urged to Quit City Hall; Police in Ugly Mood

BY LINTON WELLS
"Times" Staff Correspondent

MEXICALI, July 16.—The ... day siege of Mexicali's Mayor and his fourteen adherents in the City Hall, tonight assumed the appearance of a comic opera without music.

It had its serious elements, too, because the tension in the town is high, and the fate of the besieged fifteen by no means certain.

Instructions came late today from Federal Judge Torres in Tijuana, ordering the immediate release of Mayor Loera and his followers. But these instructions seemed superfluous, because Gov. Lugo had previously announced that the Mayor and his party were free to come out any time they liked. The besieged men apparently did not care to avail themselves of the permission.

Gov. Lugo's secretary said tonight that specific charges will be placed against the men, but declined to predict what these charges might be.

NO OFFENSE AGAINST

Gen. Ferriera, in charge of Mexicali's troops, was more communicative. He said the charge could not possibly be sedition, because the men's offense, if any, was against the city, not against the State. He added that it was not likely a charge of killing three policemen would be brought against the officials.

Gen. Ferriera has undertaken to act as a sort of mediator between Gov. Lugo and the Mayor's forces. He is determined to persuade them to leave the City Hall and return to their homes. Apparently he has found difficulty in convincing them this is the wise move.

"The men can go home, but can they cross the border?" Gen. Ferriera was asked.

"No, they cannot cross the border," he said. This indicates that they are under nominal arrest.

At a late hour tonight, Gen. Ferriera said that Mayor Loera has agreed to go home, and is awaiting a favorable opportunity. Meanwhile, police are standing guard outside the City Hall, armed with rifles and automatics. They are said to be in an ugly mood through reflecting upon the killing of three of their number and the wounding of eleven others Saturday night during a fight with the Mayor's forces.

It was not believed there would be further clashes between the Police and the Co-operatists faction to which Loera and his supporters belong.

FOREIGNERS LEAVE CITY

Nevertheless, a number of Chinese and other foreign residents evacuated the city tonight, while several Mexican merchants closed their establishments long before nightfall and crossed to the American side of the international line at Calexico.

The latter were reported to have taken considerable funds with them, in response to a summons credited to Congressman Ricardo Covarrubias, who was wounded in Saturday's outbreak, and who was said to be responsible for the organization of a number of Co-operatists clubs.

These clubs, it is said, are presumed to center their activities upon the selection of Gen. P. Elias Calles as the successor to Presi-

COLORADO TOWNS FLOODED

Two to Five Feet of Water in Streets of Portland Cement Community and Florence

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

PUEBLO (Colo.) July 16.—Five feet of water was reported at Portland, Colo., a cement manufacturing community, eight miles east of Florence, tonight, but all communication with the town is cut off, and the extent of the damage cannot be ascertained.

The Denver and Rio Grande Railroad bridge at Florence was taken away and the bridge over the Hardscrabble Creek, outside of Florence, was also taken out, while a third bridge over Chandler Creek was weakened to such an extent that it is unsafe. Thus the western lines of the railroad are blocked.

TWO FEET OF WATER

Approximately two-thirds of the town was flooded with two feet of water which filled every basement and got into the first floors of the residences. In some places houses were moved from their foundations.

Four creeks pass through Florence. The flood waters came without any warning about 5 o'clock. Early tonight the water had passed, leaving the flooded area covered with mud.

Frank Stevens, a rancher, was killed by lightning on his ranch on Hardscrabbel Creek near Florence, when he tried to rescue cattle caught in the flood waters.

The floods at Florence were caused by a cloudburst in the hills about five miles south of the town. There was practically no rain in Florence, and the high water struck the town without warning.

High water between Colorado Springs and Palmer Lake was caused by a cloudburst in the Cripple Creek region last night. The water rushing down Monument Creek reached the railroad right of way this afternoon. A rain at Colorado Springs is reported to have been heavy tonight, but no reports of damage from that source have come in so far.

HARDING GETS VARIED PLEAS

Alaskans Appeal to Him to Solve Problems

Legislation for the Fishing Industry Sought

Ketchikan Asks Resources be Developed

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

JUNEAU (Alaska) July 16.—(By mail to the Associated Press) Alaskans have shown no hesitation on their part when invited by President Harding to tell him of their problems and recommendations they desired to offer in order to bring the people of the great territory into closer touch with the Federal government in Washington. The first landing of the Chief Executive in Metlakatla resulted in the filing of a petition by the Indian natives asking extended fishing privileges, and the second stop, made on the same day at Ketchikan, brought the petition by the people of that city of a printed pamphlet outlining in detail a variety of situations which, the pamphlet said, needed attention from Washington.

Development of the natural resources of Alaska was among the recommendations made by the citizens of Ketchikan.

"There is no doubt that the results of such development," the pamphlet said, "will then be immigration of a character which will fit into the scheme of affairs."

The pamphlet added that if the Washington government gave "proper aid and protection to those who are now engaged in the numerous industries" the immigration and colonization questions will "settle themselves."

SOME OF THE APPEALS

Extension of the Alaskan Railroad and construction of new links connecting the main line with now inaccessible regions; Federal aid for men who are working in the development of mineral resources; placing the Alaskan fisheries under exclusive administration of the Federal government through the Department of Commerce; enactment of legislation that will give the people of Alaska fullest benefits from the fishing industry and providing means of direct shipment from Ketchikan to American consumers, also were among the appeals received by the President at Ketchikan.

Other suggestions included a specific recommendation that the law enforcement machinery of the territory be consolidated under the Department of Justice; that Annette Island, excepting the flat land immediately behind Metlakatla, be thrown open for the location of mining and other claims; Amendment of the Alaska Enabling Act so as to give the territorial Legislature power to enact laws affecting the administration of the natural resources of territory; granting of a separate territorial government to Southeastern Alaska; a more specific definition, setting forth the political status of Alaskan Indians, to be drafted by the Department of Justice, and the reorganization of the cable service between Alaska and the United States to allow more direct communication than is possible by the present facilities.

AUTO PARADE ON WALK

One feature of President Harding's visit to Ketchikan, which was made the subject of no little comment by members of the party after their departure from that port, was the automobile parade over the "boardwalk" streets. The Chief Executive was informed that the city boasted 332 automobiles, although the total street and road mileage did not exceed ten.

Both President and Mrs. Harding before leaving Ketchikan personally commended Edward G. Morrissey, owner and publisher of the Ketchikan Chronicle, for his enterprise in putting out a special edition of his paper on the day on which the Presidential party visited Ketchikan.

"I know what an effort is required by a small newspaper plant to make-up and print a special edition, because I have had a lot of experience in that work," Mrs. Harding said in extending her congratulations to Mr. Morrissey.

The President added his commendation, expressed in a similar vein.

than Washington and is at a greater latitude. A line drawn through Fairbanks would intersect Iceland and yet the President opened his eyes on a morning that would do credit to Pasadena.

After a drive around the city the Chief Executive made the only formal statement here at a reception and luncheon at the Masonic Temple and he expressed himself as formally impressed by the wonderful expanse and possibilities of Alaska and his hope that the development of its resources would be consistent and substantial rather than spectacular and sporadic.

GET MANY GIFTS

Many souvenirs and gifts were presented to President and Mrs. Harding, including huge strawberries and pansies and other flowers of remarkable size and beauty. In behalf of the working-dog teams and heroic dogs of this northern country, a gold collar, for Laddy Boy, suitably inscribed, was presented to the President for delivery to Laddy Boy at the White House.

Early this morning the President and Mrs. Harding decided to abandon thoughts of a motor trip over the Richardson Trail by way of McCarthy and the Sopper River country and the entire party returned by railroad to Seward via Anchorage. The reason given for the eleventh-hour abandonment of the motor trip was because of the possibility of unlimited delay due to bad weather and the possibility of the grounding of the river steamer that the party proposed to use from McCarthy to Tanana.

DENIES PETTING PARTIES

Chicago Widow Declares She Did not Lure Girls to Her Apartment to See Men

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, July 16.—Mrs. Mabel Kelly, fashionably clad Rogers Park widow, who was arrested Saturday night on a charge of luring young girls to "petting parties" in luxurious North Side apartments, will be granted a jury trial. She was released on bond.

While her attorney, F. H. Stevens, was appealing for trial by jury in Judge Joseph La Buy's court today, Mrs. Kelly, in the bullpen of the East Chicago Avenue Station, was recounting her wrongs while the tears made furrows down the rouge and powder on her cheeks.

"Those black-hearted little minxes," she exclaimed referring to Mrs. Helen Gallagher and Mrs. Gladys Simons, the 19-year-old women who told the police Mrs. Kelly offered them $5 an afternoon to come to her apartment to entertain "big, wealthy business men."

"I never dreamed of anything except of being kind to those girls and offering them an opportunity to earn a little money giving dancing lessons. I am particularly interested in teaching modest dancing and am opposed to indecent dancing. Their tale that I asked them to come for petting parties will send me to a premature grave."

The young matrons, however, say this is what Mrs. Kelly told them:

"You're just the nice, sweet, innocent looking kind of girls I need. You're just the kind of girls the men like to pet in the afternoon.

"You'll get $5 every time I call you and, besides, it's a great opportunity for young girls like you to meet men of money and means."

"Pat" Harmon, dancing master at the municipal pier, had warned the police of Mrs. Kelly's actions and asked them to watch the pier ballroom for her. That was a week ago.

It was reported, however, that more than 100 members of these clubs from Tijuana, Tecate and Ensenada, all Lower California points, arrived here today, and crossed almost immediately to Calexico, where they were said to be awaiting the arrival of still more Co-operatistas from other sections.

The Co-operatistas in Mexicali are all said to be aligned with Loera and antagonistic to Gov. Jose Inecente Lugo, of the northern district of Lower California.

The police were in complete control of the situation late tonight. Quiet prevailed on the surface. The State police and Federal troops were ready, it was announced, to interfere in the event of a new outbreak.

It was understood no attempt would be made to enter the City Hall, where Loera and his adherents were still barricaded, until Mexico City authorities telegraphed confirmation of the order of the Tijuana court.

SILVER EXPORT BODY PROPOSED

Would Assist in Marketing, Says Oddie

Producers Are Invited to Reno Meeting

Will Discuss Formation of Association

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Formation of an export association of silver producers would be of great assistance in the orderly marketing of silver, according to a letter sent today by Senator Oddie, Republican, Nevada, chairman of the special Senate committee on silver and gold, to the Silver Producers of the United States, Canada, Mexico, Central and South America. The producers of these countries are invited to attend a meeting at Reno, Nev., on September 4, at which the silver situation will be discussed and the formation of an export association taken under advisement.

INVITES SUGGESTIONS

"Suggestions will be invited by the commission with regard to legislation to be proposed in its report to Congress, and those present will be invited into a conference where the great discussion may be had, and at which the organization of a silver export association, under the Webb-Pomerene law or under future legislation, will be considered and matured, if the conference so decides," says Senator Oddie in the letter.

"It is the opinion of many experts in such matters that such an association could render great assistance in the production of silver in all of te Americas and in its orderly marketing, so as to meet season demands and prevent unfair and detrimental control over its prices. These experts believe that the formation of an association of this character would do much to avoid the necessity for additional legislation for the encouragement of silver production.

EXPERTS TO TESTIFY

"Experts in foreign exchange, transportation, the uses and marketing of silver, the producing, reducing and refining of silver, the relation of the production and price of silver to export trade and commerce, and upon such other subjects as may bear upon the general investigation will give testimony.

"The commission, believing that it is impracticable to consider bimetallism or the free coinage of silver at these hearings and because of the limited time available, will exclude therefrom any material relating to, or discussion of these subjects.

POLICE FIRE ON BANDITS WHO ESCAPE

Traffic Congestion Aids Auto Thieves to Make Getaway on Seventh Street

Traffic congestion at Vermont avenue and Seventh street, enabled two auto bandits to escape pursuing police officers last night after there had been an interchange of pistol shots between the officers and the robbers.

Officers Ayres and Teel first had noticed two suspicious men snooping around a costly car in front of the Bryson Apartments. From their police car they yelled for the men to halt. Instead, both jumped into the machine and drove south on Coronado street to Seventh street, where they turned west. Ayres then fired at the bandits. They returned the fire. The bandits then went on Seventh to Vermont, being able to go with the stream of traffic while the police were forced to wait. When the traffic stream changed they had lost track of the robbers, but they found the car stalled on New Hampshire avenue and Seventh street. On the floor of the car was a .32-caliber pistol. The car, it was found later, is owned by the firm of Hardner & Alexander, San Diego.

WOOD BALKS AT BUDGET RULING

Another Suit Looms as Result of Economy Program

School Chief Says He'll Not Comply With Order

Will Refuse to Report About Work of Teachers

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SACRAMENTO, July 16.—Another suit growing out of the economy policies of the State Board of Control loomed today when Will C. Wood, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, definitely announced that he will not comply with all the board's instructions relative to submitting an annual budget of the State Department of Education.

Wood submitted department budgets to Mrs. Nellie Brewer Pierce, chief of the division of budgets and accounts of the board, and she returned them with instructions to him to eliminate all reference to fees, set aside 10 per cent of the annual appropriation in an unbudgeted reserve and to furnish for the teachers' colleges a list of instructors with their subjects.

Relative to meeting the demands of Mrs. Pierce, who says that departments whose budgets are not approved by the Board of Control cannot obtain the aproval of claims, Wood said:

IN LITIGATION

"The matter of fees is now in litigation, the controller refusing to credit them either to the Department of Education or to the general fund. The laws under which the fees are collected provides that these shall be paid into our funds and be used for specific purposes.

"Mrs. Pierce maintains that the budget amendment repealed the laws referred to, and that the fees must go into the general fund. The State Controller holds otherwise. We therefore prepared our budget, putting fees into the unbudgeted reserve, making no provision for their expenditure.

"To this the Board of Control objects. In view of the fact that other departments will contest this disposition of the departmental fees in the courts, thus settling the point, we shall resubmit our budget with fees omitted, but reserving in a separate document the right to budget them in case the Supreme Court shall hold that the various departments are entitled to their fees as the law provides.

SAYS IT CAN'T BE DONE

"As for putting 10 per cent of our appropriations in the unbudgeted reserve we cannot comply with the board's order. In my own office, all of the annual appropriations will be required for the performance of statutory duties. In the teachers' colleges, the enrollment is such as to require all of the annual appropriating. We shall submit to the Board of Control all information required for checking claims and accountings. However, the determination of subjects taught and the duties of college instructors is by law placed in the discretion of the Department of Education exclusively.

"We shall not submit data concerning these matters to the Board of Control for review, inasmuch as such action by us would constitute a surrender of the management and control of the teachers' colleges to a fiscal board whose only legal relation to the teachers' colleges is a financial one."

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, July 16.—A determined but almost despairing effort to patch up the differences between France and Great Britain, Eduard Benes, Czecho-Slovak Foreign Minister, spent today in conference at Qual D'Orsay.

Coming from London last night with details of Prime Minister Baldwin's position on reparations, Benes conferred immediately with President Millerand. This morning he laid the details before Pomeretti Della Rocca, Director of Politics in the Foreign Office. This afternoon he conferred two hours with Premier Poincare.

After a final conference with the Premier tomorrow he will go to Brussels to see Premier Theunis Wednesday.

Benes's impression after a weeks' hard work between the Cabinets of Brussels, Paris and London is distinctly pessimistic.

CONFERENCE IN ROME

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ROME, July 16.—According to information received from reliable sources, Italy and Great Britain have completed plans to call an international conference to discuss the reparations problem in Rome to come to some sort of a definite arrangement.

France, of course, will be invited, but if she refuses to participate the conference will be held without it. It is understood that the United States already has been consulted and that it has agreed to participate, if not officially, at least in the capacity of a friendly adviser. The names of former President Taft and J. P. Morgan are mentioned in Rome as possible American delegates.

It is stated that Premier Mussolino and Prime Minister Baldwin have been in continuous communication during the last few days and that the conference may be called before the week is out.

Mussolini hinted in his speech in the Chamber last night that the international situation created by the occupation of the Ruhr is holding the whole world in the deepest anxiety and he declared that Italy was doing its best to bring about relief.

THIEF ROBS HOME IN ABSENCE OF OWNERS

Mrs. L. Rosenfelt yesterday reported to the police that while she was at one of the bathing beaches Saturday, a thief entered her home at 1740 North Alexandria avenue and stole a diamond brooch and several diamond rings valued at $5000.

Officers Neece and Page of the Hollywood division of police investigated. They found the robber, by using a passkey, had entered the house through a rear door, and had taken the jewels from a jewel box in Mrs. Rosenfelt's bedroom. Mrs. Rosenfelt was absent from home between 3 p.m. and 11 p.m. Saturday.

GERMAN MARKS POUR IN FLOOD

Billions Turned Out Every Hour of Day

Some Only Worth Paper Used in Making

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

BERLIN, July 16.—German printing plants, working day and night, disgorged 17,000,000,000 marks, an increase of 2,964,000,000,000 over June 30. The circulation in creased in the same period from 1,000,000,000 marks to 20,250,000,000,000.

The printers are working three shifts every day in the week. It is unofficially stated that no notes under the face value of 1000 marks will be printed in the future, as it costs more than the note itself is usually worth to print any of the smaller denominations. A 500-mark note is worth no more than the paper used.

EASILY COUNTERFEITED

A curio collector is said to be paying from five to ten times the face value of certain old 100- and 1000-mark notes, declaring those printed from copper plates are the only ones accepted abroad, as the later ones, printed from type, are refused because they are too easily counterfeited. This is discredited in some quarters on the belief that counterfeiters would lose money by producing such low denomination notes.

All the notes now are being printed from type in order to increase the output of the presses. The Federal printing plant at Berlin is able thus to issue 14,000,000,000 notes daily, while only one-fourth of this quantity would be possible if copper plates were used. Furthermore it takes six months to prepare one copper plate. Even the new 1,000,000-mark notes which are to be issued soon would be printed from type.

STINNES HAS MONOPOLY

According to Montague Marsh, a publishing house owned by Hugo Stinnes has a monopoly on the printing of currency under the control of the Reichsbank. The firm sublets contracts to at least thirty other printers.

Aside from the unusual shortage in paper and aluminum, the total circulation there is an astounding 2,508,029,156,000 in denominations of 1000 marks and higher. Currency bills, which on July 1 totaled nearly 22,000,000,000 marks, have increased to 1,000,000,000,000 marks. The Reichsbank gold deposits abroad showed a decrease of 10,000,000 marks. These deposits now total 130,022,000 marks.

AMERICANS TO STUDY IN MEXICO

University of Southern Nation Attracts Many

Expect 2000 Students From United States

Classes Are Well Arranged; End in August

BY JACK STARR-HUNT
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MEXICO CITY, July 16.—There is a remarkable increase this year in the number of students from the United States who are taking advantage of the annual summer course offered them by the National University of Mexico City. In the first year of these classes the attendance of Americans was only seventy-two, but by 1922 the number had increased to 482, while for the present course it is expected that the number will exceed two thousand.

Reliable information has been obtained from the Mexican National Railways, which have made considerable reduction in the return passage for students from the United States to Mexico, that during the latter days of last month several hundred persons crossed the frontier on their way to participate in the classes.

The classes, which will terminate about the end of August, will be conducted each day, but only during the morning, in order that the students may be free during the afternoons to visit and study Mexico's museums, and to make excursions to its points of historical and artistic interest.

The classes have been excellently arranged to suit students, from those with an elementary knowledge only of Spanish, up to those advanced in the language. They will include Spanish literature, Latin-American history and geography, music and kindred arts both Mexican and Spanish, Mexican archaeology, customs and political problems. Special attention is given during th ecourse to correspondence in Spanish and commercial methods of Mexico.

DRY LEAGUE CHIEF WANTS TO ACCUSE

ANDERSON ASKS PERMISSION TO SUBMIT CHARGES AGAINST BANTON

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, July 16.—William H. Anderson, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, now under grand jury investigation on charges of grand larceny, forgery and extortion, today appealed to Gov. Smith for an opportunity to submit, at a hearing by the Attorney-General or some other official, proof that Dist.-Atty. Banton had promised to "put Anderson out of business," declaring that such a step would "make mo Governor."

The promise was made, Mr. Anderson declared he could prove, to Mrs. O. Bertrall Phillips, wife of the former league solicitor, who is principal witness against Anderson. Even after Phillips had signed a waiver of all claims against Anderson or the league, the superintendent declared he could prove Banton compelled Phillips to go through with the case against him for the purpose of satisfying political ambitions.

Anderson's statement said he also had called on Gov. Smith "summarily to remove Mr. Banton and any or all of his staff from further charge of this particular proceeding."

Anderson developed his charges against Mr. Banton in a series of leading questions, which he challenged the District Attorney to deny, declaring he wanted to further "get the goods" on him.

STATE DIRECTOR OF MARKETS RETAINED

BUDGET ADJUSTMENT MADE AT CONFERENCE IN SAN FRANCISCO

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SACRAMENTO, July 16. — Budget adjustments whereby the State Director of Markets may be continued for at least another year were tentatively made in a conference of the State Board of Control, with the Governor's agricultural Council, here today.

The Agricultural Council asked for $12,600 to carry on the Market Director's activities. This includes payment of the pro-rata cost of market news wire service, which has just been established by the Federal government in co-operation with the State in Sacramento, San Francisco and Los Angeles.

An agreement was also tentatively reached for increasing the quarantine service of the State, through the employment of additional inspectors to protect the State against pest importation. Some $11,200 additional is asked by the agricultural department.

This conference probably will be resumed tomorrow.

ACTION WOULD BAR WOBBLIES

Petition for Injunction is Filed in Court

Aim to Oust All Radicals From State

Makes Membership Card Proof of Contempt

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, July 16.—Petition for an injunction restraining the Industrial Workers of the World from functioning in this State was filed today in the civil department of the Superior Court by Dist.-Atty. Henderson, permission to sue in the name of the people of California having been granted by Atty.-Gen. Webb.

The action was directed against the Industrial Workers of the World, the California branch of the general defense committee, the Agricultural Workers' Industrial Union, No. 400; Lumber Workers' Union, No. 120; Agricultural Workers' Union, No. 110; Marine Transport Industrial Union, No. 510; Railroad Workers' Union, No. 520; Oil Workers' Industrial Union, No. 230; General Construction Workers' Industrial Union, No. 310, and the Metal Workers' Union, No. 210.

NAMES INDIVIDUALS

Tom Connors, under indictment in this county on a charge of corruptly seeking to influence jurors, Pete Beazley and Mrs. Mary Gallagher Douglas, are named as members of the general defense committee in the State. Mrs. Douglas recently appeared here as a witness in the trial of asserted members of the I.W.W. on charges of violating the criminal syndicalism law.

The petition asserts that the I.W.W. is organized for the purpose of overthrowing the government of this country and of this State; that it teaches violence as a means of defeating capitalism; that the various members are taught that any unlawful act aimed to destroy capitalism is lawful; and that many I.W.W. members have been coming to California during the past two months for the purpose of terrorizing the lumber, farm and oil industries.

STATE-WIDE EFFECT

The injunction, if granted, will be effective in every Superior Court of the State, and any person found carrying a membership card in the organization will be in contempt of court and subject to arrest and imprisonment.

Should a temporary injunction be granted by the court, a hearing will be held at a later date to determine whether it should be made permanent.

In granting permission to file the present action, the Attorney-General announced that the plan is expected to be a big help in breaking up the I.W.W., as the limitations of the criminal courts have prevented adequate prosecution of the organization. It was pointed out that the injunction will in no way affect prosecutions under the criminal syndicalism law.

Belated Berlin Revelers Scatter as Pilot Makes Graceful Landing

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]
[Copyright, 1923, Public Ledger.]

BERLIN, July 16.—A party of belated all-night revelers returning home through Unter Den Linden at 5 o'clock in the morning was scattered by an airplane which circled the statue of Frederick the Great and alighted gracefully on the asphalt pavement in front of the State Operahouse. It was the first landing in the heart of a great city.

The pilot started at the Staaken Aerodrome on the outskirts of Berlin for Breslau. His gasoline feed-pipe broke while he was crossing the city and forced him to land amid a sea of houses extending for miles in every direction. He quickly-wittedly chose the only possible landing ground.

JAPAN TO DROP MORE OFFICERS FROM NAVY

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

TOKIO, July 16. — The Navy Department announces that in pursuance with its policy of a gradual reduction of its personnel it will release 1500 officers of various grades during the coming month. The department is having no trouble in securing officers' resignations which are coming in in excess of the number required. This is the result of liberal discharge allowances and bonuses. The service also is getting less popular. Applicants for admission to the Naval Academy are below the quota desired, while heretofore they have been much in excess.

The Little Warrior

· BY · P. G. · WODEHOUSE ·

Jill endured Sandringham for ten days; and, looking back on that period of her life later, she wondered how she did it. The sense of desolation which had gripped her on the station platform increased rather than diminished as she grew accustomed to her surroundings. The east wind died away, and the sun shone fitfully with a suggestion of warmth, but her uncle's bleakness appeared to be a static quality, independent of weather conditions. Her aunt, a faded woman with a perpetual cold in the head, did nothing to promote cheerfulness. The rest of the household consisted of a gloomy child, "Tibby," aged eight; a spaniel, probably a few years older, and an intermittent cat, who, when he did put in an appearance, was the life and soul of the party, but whose visits to his home were all too infrequent for Jill. Thomas was a genial animal, whose color-scheme, like a Whistler picture, was an arrangement in black and white. He had green eyes and a purr like a racing automobile. But his social engagements in the neighborhood kept him away much of the time. he was the popular and energetic secretary of the local cats' debating society. One could hear him at night sometimes reading the minutes in a loud, clear voice; after which the debate was considered formally open.

Each day was the same as the last almost to the final detail. Sometimes Tibby would be naughty at breakfast, sometimes at lunch; while Rover, the spaniel, who was a great devotee of the garbage-can, would occasionally be sick at mid-day instead of after the evening meal. But, with these exceptions, there was a uniformity about the course of life in the Marner household which began to prey on Jill's nerves as early as the third day.

The picture which Mr. Mariner had formed in his mind of Jill as a wealthy young lady with a taste for house property continued as vivid as ever. It was his practice each morning to conduct her about the neighborhood, introducing her to the various houses in which he had sunk most of the money which he had made in business. Mr. Mariner's life centered around Brookport real estate, and the embarrassed Jill was compelled to inspect sitting-rooms, bath-rooms, kitchens, and master's bedrooms till the sound of a key turning in a lock gave her a feeling of nervous exhaustion. Most of her uncle's houses were converted farm-houses, and, as one unfortunate purchaser had remarked, not so darned converted at that. The days she spent at Brookport remained in Jill's memory as a smell of dampness and chill and closeness.

"You want to buy," said Mr. Mariner every time he shut a front-door behind them. "Not rent. Buy. Then, if you don't want to live here, you can always rent in the summer."

It seemed incredible to Jill that summer would ever come. Winter held Brookport in its grip. For the first time in her life she was tasting real loneliness. She wandered over the snow-patched fields down to the frozen bay, and found the intense stillness, punctuated only by the occasional distant gunshot of some optimist trying for duck, oppressive rather than restful. She looked on the weird beauty of the ice-bound marshes which glittered red and green and blue in the sun with unseeing eyes; for her isolation was giving her time to think, and thought was a torment.

On the eighth day came a letter from Uncle Chris,—a cheerful, even rollicking letter. Things were going well with Uncle Chris, it seemed. As was his habit, he did not enter into details, but he wrote in a spacious way of large things to be, of affairs that were coming out right, of prosperity in sight. As tangible evidence of success, he inclosed a present of twenty dollars, for Jill to spend in the Brookport shops.

The letter arrived by the morning mail, and two hours later Mr. Mariner took Jill by one of his usual overland routes to see a house nearer the village than most of those which she had viewed. Mr. Mariner had exhausted the supply of cottages belonging to himself, and this one was the property of an acquaintance. There would be an agent's fee for him in the deal, if it went through, and Mr. Mariner was not a man who despised money in small quantities.

There was a touch of hopefulness in his gloom this morning, like the first intimation of sunshine after a wet day. He had been thinking the thing over, and had come to the conclusion that Jill's unresponsiveness when confronted with the houses she had already seen was due to the fact that she had loftier ideas than he had supposed. Something a little more magnificent than the twelve thousand dollar places he had shown her was what she desired. This house stood on a hill looking down on the bay, in several acres of ground. It had its private landing-stage and bath-house, its dairy, its sleeping porches,—everything, in fact, that a sensible girl could want. Mr. Mariner could not bring himself to suppose that he would fail again today.

"They're asking a hundred and five thousand," he said, "but I know they'd take a hundred thousand. And, if it was a question of cash down, they would go even lower. It's a fine house. You could entertain there. Mrs. Bruggenheim rented it last summer, and wanted to buy, but she wouldn't go above ninety thousand. If you want it, you'd better make up your mind quick. A place like this is apt to be snapped up in a hurry."

Jill could endure it no longer.

"But, you see," she said gently, "all I have in the world is twenty dollars!"

There was a painful pause. Mr. Mariner shot a swift glance at her in the hope of discovering that she had spoken humorously, but was compelled to decide that she had not. His face under normal conditions always achieved the maximum gloom possible for any face, so he gave no outward sign of the shock which had shattered his mental poise; but he expressed his emotion by walking nearly a mile without saying a word. He was stunned. He had supported himself up till now by the thought that, frightful as the expense of entertaining Jill as a guest might be, the outlay was a good sporting speculation if she intended buying house-property in the neighborhood. The realization that he was down to the extent of a week's breakfasts, lunches, and dinners, with nothing to show for it, appalled him. There had been a black morning some years before when Mr. Mariner had given a waiter a ten-dollar bill in mistake for a one. As he had felt then, on discovering his error when it was too late to retrieve it, so did he feel now.

"Twenty dollars!" he exclaimed, at the end of the mile.

"Twenty dollars," said Jill.

"But your father was a rich man." Mr. Mariner's voice was high and plaintive. "He made a fortune over here before he went to England."

"It's all gone. I got nipped," said Jill, who was finding a certain amount of humor in the situation. "In Amalgamated Dyes."

"Amalgamated Dyes?"

"They're something," explained Jill, "that people get nipped in."

Mr. Mariner digested this.

"You speculated?" he gasped.

"Yes."

"You shouldn't have been allowed to do it," said Mr. Mariner warmly. "Major Shelby—your uncle ought to have known better than to allow you."

"Yes, oughtn't he," said Jill, demurely.

There was another silence, lasting for about a quarter of a mile.

"Well, it's a bad business," said Mr. Mariner.

"Yes," said Jill. "I've felt that myself."

The result of this conversation was to effect a change in the atmosphere of Sandringham. The aeration in the demeanor of people of parsimonious habit, when they discover that the guest they are entertaining is a pauper and not, as they had supposed, an heiress, is subtle but well-marked. In most cases, more well-marked than subtle. Nothing was actually said, but there are thoughts that are almost as audible as words. A certain suspense seemed to creep into the air, as happens when a situation has been reached which is too poignant to last. Greek Tragedy affects the reader with the same sense of over-hanging doom. Things, we feel, cannot go on as they are.

That night, after dinner, Mrs. Mariner asked Jill to read to her.

"Print tires my eyes so, dear," said Mrs. Mariner.

It was a small thing, but it had the significance of that little cloud that arose out of the sea like a man's hand. Jill appreciated the portent. She was, she perceived, to make herself useful.

"Of course I will," she said cordially. "What would you like me to read?"

She hated reading aloud. It always made her throat sore, and her eye skipped to the end of each page and took the interest out of it long before the proper time. But she proceeded bravely, for her conscience was troubling her. Her sympathy was divided equally between these unfortunate people who had been saddled with an undesired visitor and herself who had been placed in a position at which every independent nerve in her rebelled. Even as a child she had loathed being under obligations to strangers of those whom she did not love.

"Thank you, dear," said Mrs. Mariner, when Jill's voice had roughened to a weary croak. "You read so well." She wrestled ineffectually with her handkerchief against the cold in the head from which sh ealways suffered. "It would be nice if you would do it every night, don't you think? You have no idea how tired print makes my eyes."

COAL MINE IS ICE PRODUCER

Winter Prepares Shaft For Frozen Crop During Summer

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

HARRISBURG (Pa.) July 16.—Pennsylvania has another ice mine, a natural refrigerating plant in an abandoned coal pit near Troutville. The first ice mine discovered at Coudersport last summer already has become an attraction for tourists.

The new ice mine is on G. N. Richell's farm. Cold air seeping in the winter cools the rocks to a temperature far below the freezing point, but no ice forms because the air is too dry.

In summer the whole shaft becomes moist and when coal was being mined there recently miners had to remove two or three carloads of ice every morning before they could get to work. This caused abandonment of the mine. Richell's neighbors now come to the shaft for their ice.

Recibe un Golpe la Ley de Salario Feminino Mínimo

Le fué asestado ayer un golpe a la ley de Arizona sobre salario mínimo feminino, pues tres jueces federales reunidos en Los Angeles concedieron a A. Sardelle, dulcero de Nogales, Arizona, un mandato inhibitorio contra John M. Murphy, Procurador General de Arizona, y W. A. O'Connor, Fiscal del condado de Santa Cruz, Arizona, ordenándoles no persigan a Sardelle por el hecho de que éste paga menos de $16 semanarios a cada una de las cuatro muchachas que tiene empleadas.

El siguiente paso que darán los funcionarios judiciales de Arizona para hacer cumplir su ley, será el de llevar el asunto ante la Suprema Corte de los Estados Unidos. Escasas probabilidades de éxito tienen en ese alto tribunal, pues en fallo dado por éste el 9 de abril próximo pasado, se declaró inconstitucional la ley de salarios mínimos del Distrito de Columbia.

Se Cierran Muchos Pozos de Signal Hill

Las críticas condiciones del mercado han provocado un general retraimiento en los productores del campo petrolero de Signal Hill, y en muchos pozos, según se supo hoy, se ha paralizado por completo la extracción.

Los primeros que se cerraron por completo con el Petroleum Midway Company's Robinson No. 1 y No. 2. Los altos empleados de la compañía anunciaron hoy que en esos dos pozos de ha suspendido la producción, debido a que el mercado se halla inundado. Aunque otras compañías del citado campo no han parado por completo la extracción, están demorando la explotación de nuevos pozos, con la esperanza de que, en el interin, mejoren las condiciones. Muchos de los mayores productores, sin embargo, se han retraído considerablemente, recortando de modo importante la corriente de petróleo: en muchos casos, hasta no ser sino el 25 por ciento de la corriente normal.

RICKARD PLANS TO STAGE DEMPSEY-FIRPO FIGHT IN BUENOS AIRES

PICTURES OF JESS WILLARD VERSUS LUIS FIRPO BOUT AT JERSEY CITY

RACK KEARNS IS UNDECIDED

Promoter's Manager Prefers to Battle in America

Date With Wills Labor Day Under Consideration

Tex King's Boss Will Give Definite Answer Tomorrow

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, July 16.—The heavyweight boxing outlook took an unexpected turn today when Promoter Tex Rickard announced a definite decision to stage a title match between Jack Dempsey, the champion, and Luis Angel Firpo, in the capital of the latter's native Argentine, Buenos Aires, about November 1. Rickard is keenly anxious to fight for the highest of fistic honors between his countrymen, already having accepted Rickard's terms. Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, discussed the details of the proposition with Rickard this afternoon and at the end of the conference, told the promoter his answer would be given only by Wednesday.

Rickard said his plan to take the championship out of this country was inspired by two reasons—Firpo's desire to return to his native country for the best, and enthusiastic reports from the promoter's agents as to the possibilities of financial success in the "Paris of South America."

ALTERS MIND

Rickard has had representatives in the Argentine for some time, but after Firpo's knockout victory over Jess Willard at Boyle's Thirty Acres, a few days ago, he intimated he had abandoned the project in South America, because of the possible risk involved. However, he received cable advices today that helped alter his mind. One of them from Juan Hosne, a Firpo agent, saying that a fight between Firpo and either Dempsey or Harry Wills, negro contender, would draw more than 2,000,000 pesos (about $800,000), in the Argentine capital.

The exact nature of his offer to Firpo was not revealed, but it is believed it embraced a percentage proposition that would assure the champion and his manager $500,000.

Rickard, meanwhile, declared he had no thoughts of arranging, if possible, two matches for the champion in this country this year instead of going to South America. He said he would prefer to stage but one bout. Firpo first on Labor Day and then if victorious take on Willie, just before the world's series in October.

FIRPO ROUND TIGHT

Rickard has Firpo bound to an exclusive contract, however. He is especially interested now in staging a Willie-Dempsey, or Dempsey-Firpo match. His belief is that the best is between the champion and the Argentinian. Tex Rickard has had an offer from Jimmy Johnston, matchmaker of the Yankee Stadium, for a 20-round contest around Labor Day, but the champion's manager has not acted upon it.

"We are ready to fight," Kearns summed up his views, "We have two matches this year, one with Firpo and another with Willie. I am anxious to have them both on. I am willing to fight both with one or with both promoters. For our end I want fifty per cent of the gate."

LONGWOOD NET PLAY STARTED

First Day Witnesses Finish of Entire First and Second Rounds

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BOSTON, July 16.—The field of eighty lawn tennis players here for the thirty-first annual renewal of the historic Longwood bowl singles championship, was reduced to thirty-three in the play today. With one exception, the match scheduled between R. Norris Williams, II, Bryn Mawr, Pa., and W. W. Ingraham of Harvard, all the first and second-round matches were disposed of. Williams will arrive here tomorrow. Zenzo Shimizu the Japanese Davis Cup team champion dropped out of the singles competition today by defaulting in order that he may concentrate on doubles practice while Masanouke Fukuda, champion of Japan, won by default. The other Japanese player here, Seichiro Kashio, defeated Robert Bray by a score of 6-0, 7-5 and thus atoned for his defeat at the hands of Bray D. Recent, Church Cup series in New York.

Other seeded players survived by winning in straight sets. N. W. Niles, Massachusetts singles champion, was the only seeded player to be hard pressed. He defeated V. D. Vickery of Boston, 6-4, 6-3 after trailing in the second set, five games to one and and with the score 40-15.

Carl Fischer, national intercollegiate champion and Arnold W. Jones, national junior champion, won easily. Fisher did not lose a game in two sets while Jones lost nine games in four sets. Harvey Snodgrass of Los Angeles, made a favorable impression in his first appearance on grass courts. He went into the third round by defeating Herbert Shaw of Boston, 6-4, 6-3.

ALL READY FOR THE BIG REGATTA

Southern California Yachting Association's Sport Begins Today; Commodore Wildey Busy Checking in All Arriving Craft

BY CHARLES WEST
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SANTA BARBARA, July 16.—With all but a few of the large delegation of sporting craft entered in the regatta at anchor here, everything is set for the opening of the Southern California Yachting Association's competitive program here tomorrow morning.

Santa Barbara is full to the brim of yachtsmen and a person without a rolling gait and a smart yachting cap is distinctly an object of interest. Commodore Otto Wildey, who is running the big doings, has been busy checking in the craft which have been arriving all day, and late today he announced that all but the Viking IV, the Sinbad, the Henrietta and the Spindrift have sunk their mud hooks in the channel.

ROUGH JOURNEY

Sportsmen who tacked up from Los Angeles Harbor tell harrowing tales of the tough weather encountered in the 150-mile beat up the Coast. The fact that several craft which left Saturday have not yet put in an appearance indicates that it has been rough going, and two of the California Yacht Club's R-type boats, the Patricia and Lady Betty, were forced to turn about and sail to their home ports after their shrouds had been carried away. Pierpoint Davis, owner of the Patricia, arrived today by automobile, and announced that the buffeting of the heavy craft and that she would not enter the regatta. The Lady Betty, however, holder of the Lipton trophy, is expected to be towed up in time to defend her trophy Wednesday.

USE MOTORS

Other craft with auxiliary power used their motors to come in, while some were towed. All the skippers say the sea was nasty, although the Pacific is calm today.

The cruiser race from Los Angeles Harbor was won by the Cer-

DEAL SWAPPED FOR RED SMITH

Crack Third Sacker Traded by Krug-Eslich

Former Tiger is to be an Angel Today

Ex-Cub Player is to Join Vernon at Once

Most important of Coast League deals this season involving players, and by far the most interesting transaction, was consummated yesterday when Los Angeles traded Charley Deal to the Vernon Club for "Red" Smith.

Both men are third basemen, and no cash was involved, according to Business Manager Oscar Bleichen of the Angels.

There has been no greater sensation in baseball than when Secretary Weber announced the deal to a group of baseball writers.

Smith will appear at third base for Los Angeles in today's game against San Francisco. Neither player knew of the trade, which was a short-order transaction. Paradoxical as it may sound, baseball men are of the opinion that both clubs will benefit.

SPARED FROM TRIP

Smith was saved from going to St. Paul. Not that St. Paul is a poor place, but all of Red's interests are here.

Marty Krug and Bill Essick happened to meet after yesterday's game. Marty had heard that Vernon was negotiating to send Smith to St. Paul.

"What will you take for Essick?" Marty shot at Essick.

"I'll consider any proposition which you care to make," replied Bill.

"Will you take cash?" queried Marty, accompanying the interrogation with an enticing rattle of coin.

"Sure," replied Essick.

Then Marty asked if Los Angeles had any player Bill would consider in a swap.

"Charley Deal," replied Bill.

"Closed," replied Marty. And that's that.

NEITHER CONSULTED

Neither player was consulted. Smith learned of the deal before leaving the park, visited the Los Angeles offices, said he was satisfied and stated his willingness to sign.

Deal is hitting .316, Smith .294. Averages count for little. The careers of these players have run along strangely parallel lines. Both broke into countrywide fame in 1914, Smith as the regular third baseman and Deal by jumping in to the breach when the former broke a leg. They were with the Boston Braves in that historic year. Smith at third helped play Boston into the pennant in that sensational burst of the Braves. Near the

MARKS AND SPENCER IN VERNON GO

Coast Banty Title at Stake When Ringsters Mingle Tonight

What should prove one of the greatest bantamweight bouts staged in Southern California in months will be held at the Vernon arena tonight, when "Wee Willie" Spencer of New York meets Georgie Marks, claimant of the 116-pound championship of the Pacific Coast, in the main event of the weekly boxing show. Spencer comes to Los Angeles highly recommended. Months ago, when Marks went East, he faced Spencer and lost over the ten-round route. In meeting Marks tonight, however, the eastern flash is playing a different game, for tonight's battle will be his first over the four-round route.

Bud Soules, who has been putting up some fair bouts during the past few weeks, meets Jack Griffin in the semi-wind-up. The latter hails from San Francisco. Some time ago Griffin took on Terry Adams and all but stopped the Seal Beach flash. In another start he beat Jimmy Marcus in neat fashion.

Bulu Kid and Johnny Lotsey are matched for the feature preliminary. They are 118-pounders with plenty of class. Another bout which figures to furnish a lot of action is the "Red" Mathews-Joe Reilly argument.

Other bouts on the program follow: Willie Hunt vs. Harry Ritzer, 150 pounds; Frankie Buff vs. Roy Sutherland, 135 pounds; Johnny Metzer vs. Jimmy Flynn, 142 pounds.

Although the Metzer-Flynn bout is scheduled as the curtain raiser, it is expected to be a rough-and-tumble affair, which will prove one of the bright spots of a classy card.

Harry Lee and George Blake will referee.

VERNON TRIPS SIWASHES

Foster Twirls Superb Game and Holds Seattle to Four Hits; Murphy and Crane Collide

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS

Vernon went out to the ball yard yesterday when the rest of the world was at peace, and salvaged what was left of the series by beating Seattle, 4 to 1.

George Foster finally bumped into a little luck, and instead of losing a well-pitched game as has happened to him frequently, finished in front of Vean Gregg. The Siwashes were able to spear George for only four hits, one a fluke. Gregg gracefully retired for a pinch hitter in the eighth, and Williams was the finish-upper.

Ping Bodie with a double that cleaned the bases put the game away in pork barrel as early as the third.

BOTH KNOCKED COLD

Grade crossing collision between Sam Crane and Rod Murphy in the third knocked both athletes as cold as freshly-rained mackerel, and compelled Rod's retirement from the pastime for repairs in the club garage.

Lee Parvin, manager of Egan's Little Theater, was out taking the air as the guest of Secretary Lorranz. Mr. Parvin has become one of our most pronounced ozone inhalers. Lee is so fond of the free and unpolluted that he has erected a wigwam on top of his theater and sleeps there. Thus he is able to refresh his gills on pure air and broadcast his snores on the stilly night without disturbing the neighbors across the hall, as there isn't any hall.

Broad open spaces of our best room appeal to our more virile citizens who are troubled with insomnia. Residing in tepee amidst great desolation of waterproof roofing and forest of chimneys appeals to sheik-like nature. However, it can't be recommended for somnambulists. Lee dreamed one night that he was a smallow and started to nstle under eaves, but awakened in time to prevent grave mistake. Those who feel that they must sleep on lid of buildings should lash themselves to mast.

GREGG WILD

Third was thrilling. Foster, quite a hittin' pitcher, singled infield with one down. Rod Murphy flied. Things began to take on a kinky aspect for Killefer. Gregg, his noted southpaw, became frightfully left-handed. He passed Chadbourne and P. Samson Schneider filling bases like a boulevard on Sunday. Bodie then cleaned up the traffic situation. He moved the whole parade along to the plate with a two-base crash down the third-base line. Foster, Chad and Schneider lockstepped to the plate in perfect tune with Pipp's two-bagger. Warner grounded to Orr.

Siwashes went on warpath for a minute or two in seventh. Welsh was spared at first when Murphy dropped Bott's low throw after scooping same. Brick Eldred batted Jimmy to third with double, and Orr released him to pan with fly to Chad. This was only the third hit off Foster, who had his fooler working in the shape.

RUN ALLOWED

Vernon dragged one out of the human wreckage of a terrible crash in the same inning. Foster opened with double. With Rod Murphy up, Welsh came in from first looking for bunt. It went in the other direction or to Baldwin, and Crane moved over to cover first. Baldwin's throw came invery high and barely ahead of Murphy. Crane speared the ball, and came down just in time to retire Murphy, but Rod, running at top speed, crashed into him. Both men were completely knocked out. Umpiru Toman immediately called time. Foster ran in from second and scored. No play could be made as Crane was stretched out limp alongside Murphy, and the ball had rolled from his hand. Foster's run was allowed to count. Murphy retired from the game, but Crane continued. It was some minutes before either athlete wiggled a toe, and it was a feeble wiggle at that. Score:

Father of the Trans-Pacific Yacht Race

Here is shown Commodore Clarence W. Macfarlane holding the cup which he has presented to the Santa Barbara Yacht Club for its regatta this month. The cup is in the form of a mounted calabash and is made out of a solid piece of milu wood, a very expensive Hawaiian hardwood. The design on the cup is of the commodore's own flags crossed beneath the Hawaiian coat of arms. Cups similar to this, but of larger size, will be given to every yacht which finishes the Santa Barbara-to-Honolulu yacht race which starts next Saturday.

Los Angeles Star Aquatic Performers Will Compete in Border City Water Carnival

SAN DIEGO PUTS ON SWIMFEST

Men's and Women's Events on Tap Next Month

Fred Cody Plans to Take Team to Southern City

San Diego Rowing Club Shield to Winners

What promises to be the greatest swimming carnival in San Diego's history will be staged on Sunday, August 12. The fourth annual Silver Gate swim for men and the second annual event for women will be combined and run off on the same day, instead of on separate dates, as previously announced. The change was made in order that northern swimmers might enter in a group, and thereby cut down the expenses of the Pacific coaches, who would otherwise be forced to journey south with their swimmers.

The swimmers will hop off Ballast Point and finish on the Fort Rosecrans shore, 645 yards across the channel. The bit of channel across which the swim is probably the best available spot, and according to experts the water will be almost as smooth as glass.

CODY ENTERS TEAM

Some of the Coast's best swimmers will be on hand for both events. Coach Fred Cady of the Los Angeles Athletic Club, who has scoured far and wide for his championship teams, has already notified his intention of taking a team to the southern city. The local mentor hopes to capture the San Diego Rowing Club swimming meet, now in the hands of the Tritons Swimming Club. The latter swimmers were victorious in last year's event.

Frank Holborow, swimming director of the Ambassador Hotel here, will take a team south, and claims that he has several crack water stars in the making, who will make the going hard for all other entries. Marion Fletcher will lead the Ambassador mermaid aggregation and according to Coach Holborow, she stands an excellent chance of copping the event for the women.

Coach Ted Coombs of the Redondo Beach Baths hopes to enter a team, while Elmer Orr, new Tritons coach, will send several fine performers south.

MANY TROPHIES

Several very worth-while trophies have been offered to the winners in both events. The San Diego Rowing Club's big cup will go to the winner of the men's swim, while the rowing organization will annex the San Diego Rowing Club's perpetual shield. Trophies are also offered to swimmers finishing second, third, fourth and fifth in both events. Two additional awards have been announced, one to go to the best breast-stroker in finish, and the other to the first service man across.

GOLDEN FILM WILL BE SHOWN AT LOEW'S

Joe Guzzen, former open champion of the United States and champion of the Professional Golfers' Association, has adopted the motion picture as the most perfect method of instruction in the intricacies of golf. His picture will be shown at Loew's State theater next week.

Golf has grown in popularity by leaps and bounds, until now it is perhaps the foremost sport of the country. In this special one-reel educational picture every shot necessary to a masterful game of golf is clearly illustrated in both regular and slow-motion photography by the champion of champions—Joe Guzzen.

TO HOLD STAGE BOUT IN AGUA PRIETA RING

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

DOUGLAS (Ariz.) July 16.—Now it is proposed to stage the next fistic encounter across the line in Douglas, in Agua Prieta. Jose F. De Villars of El Paso has written the Douglas Chamber of Commerce outlining a plan for staging in Douglas a return battle between Dempsey and Gibbons or one between Firpo and Willis. He declares that either might be induced to come off for a small matter of $40,000. Secretary Ely Martin of the Chamber of Commerce is thinking of calling a mass meeting of interested citizens of the two towns to discuss the proposition.

MANY BRIGHT LIGHTS ON HOLLYWOOD CARD

Matchmaker Frank Crowley has lined up an exceptionally fine set of bouts for the reopening of the Hollywood American Legion arena Friday night. Bobby Harper of Portland, who recently fought a sensational draw with Joe Benjamin, is matched with Sailor Ashmore in the main event. The semi-wind-up will find K. O. Kelly and Jimmy Hackley in a return match, while Joe Mendino and Jack Lewis will tangle in the special event.

Other bouts on the card as announced are: Alex McDonald vs. Frankie De Mari; Packy McMullin vs. Jimmie Fitten; Paul Wilkens vs. Joe White, and Tommie Owens vs. Tonie Fuente.

end of the season, he fractured a leg. Deal then jumped in, finished the season at third and played that position against the Athletics in the world series.

Smith eventually was sent to Vernon. Then Deal came to Los Angeles. Now they had switched teams.

SPORT SHRAPNEL

By HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

Erection of a new boxing stadium by Jack Doyle at Vernon will stir many memories for the old-time boxing fans.

Some will recall when Jack first launched his rather modest training camp out there. At that time, the present city of Vernon, now throbbing with manufactories, was little more than a stretch of sand and weeds.

This camp soon became the mecca of boxing fans, particularly on Sunday when the Rialto in Los Angeles began to evaporate under tightening restrictions, and the business of the camp picked up along with that of Jack's well-conducted beer bar, which ultimately became the largest oasis in the world.

Many of the day's most famous boxers conditioned themselves at Doyle's and with the erection about a mile distant of the Jeffries arena, later taken over by Tom McCarey, Vernon became practically the fistic capital of the world. The camp is redolent of such names as Stanley Ketchell, Ad Wolgast, Willie Ritchie, Freddie Welsh, Joe Rivers, Packy McFarland, Abe Attell, Frankie Conley, Johnny Coulon, Billy Papke, Al Palser, Jim Flynn and a long list of others.

Despite the thousands which mulled about the place, dividing their time between the bar and the boxing ring, there was seldom if ever any disorder. Catering to the public thirst was purely business with Doyle. He didn't drink, and he didn't encourage it beyond the mere fact of catering. When the country went the other way, Jack turned his business talent in other directions. He divided his time mainly between cattle and oil. Four-round boxing was something of a side diversion with him, and purely experimental in the beginning. But the game prospered a amazingly.

The new arena is merely another milestone in a long line of successes. I am not intimately acquainted with Doyle's very early career, but I have heard that he climbed off the hurricane deck of a gravel wagon to launch his place of business in what was once a near by Sahara, and that he started out with little more than a grubstake. But he is reputed to have mined something like $1,000,000 out of what was once an unpromising Vernon sand dune.

I never begrudged any man his money. But I have always envied the ability of those who are able to start with nothing and roll it up into something big.

Today we will have in our midst another who started with a pair of industrious hands, a keen brain and an unbelievable capacity for work as his only assets, meaning William Wrigley, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Wrigley have been invited by President and Mrs. Harding to accompany them on the return trip of the Presidential peregrination through the Panama Canal, and this explains their rather early arrival in Los Angeles.

Wrigley has been subjected to such a series of vicious attacks that I wondered if my original estimate of him might have been wrong. While realizing that every man who achieves with unusual distinction in any line likely sooner or later has his "character Crolgosz," I wanted to know first hand.

Charges always create doubts. I can go out on the street, hurl serious charges at an innocent bystander and in five minutes have a mob threatening him. Many an innocent man has been lynched. Mob psychology is a peculiar monster. It has resulted in stoning, in crucifixion, it was seen a Calvary.

And mob psychology can be created in the public mind where there is no actual violence. There is just one difference between the thug who robs you of your pocketbook and the thug who seeks to rob you of your good name. The former at least takes a chance, the latter plays safe.

Here are a few of the things I ascertained anent Bill Wrigley. Some of it won't be very good reading for those who maintain that thorough education is the only groundwork of success. Or that "bad boys" invariably become politicians or go to the penitentiary.

Bill didn't get beyond the sixth or seventh grade in school, and was kicked out twice during that brief period. At 11 years of age he ran away from his home in Philadelphia. New York was his goal. He twice smuggled himself on boats bound for Europe, but was discovered and thrown off in disgrace. Discouraged, he returned to home and to school.

Two weeks later in one of those unaccountable boyish moods, he plastered a custard pie on a bronze plate that adorned the front of the school building. That was the end of his education. He was expelled for keeps, and returned to New York, where he became a newsboy. At night he slept under a paper truck in front of the Tribune building.

At fourteen he went to work at the hardest kind of manual labor in a foundry, receiving $1.50 for ten hours.

That, briefly, was his start. Later he became a traveling salesman. Then he got into business for himself. By legitimate effort, industry and business genius from this beginning he built up a fortune variously estimated from $75,000,000 to $100,000,000. He has poured many millions into Southern California. At the request of the government he built an immense wood alcohol plant during the war. He lost $3,000,000 on the venture when the war came to a sudden end. Last year he paid the government $11,000,000 in taxes.

He and Armour and Lasker bought the Chicago Cubs to aid Charley Weghman, who was bankrupt. They also helped him get back his string of restaurants. Johnny Powers, hard pressed, was offered $50,000 for the Los Angeles baseball team. Wrigley offered him $100,000 and threw in $20,000 more for good measure when Powers said he needed it.

When Lockard and Killefer wanted to get into baseball, he went on their note for thirty days. This foiled a group of men who had sought to buy the club for $60,000 or less, and leave Jim Boldt a financial derelict. He's a square shooter and always has been.

WHITTIER, July 16. — The Whittier Broadway Tennis Club repeated the Long Beach racket wielders, 4-3, in a hotly contested match on the Virginia Hotel courts yesterday. TENNIS STARS MAY TURN PRO

Future Status of Game Rests With William Tilden

Leaders May Ask Big Price for Single Appearance

American Public Willing to Pay for Sport

BY BILL HENRY

Professional tennis, with the Davis Cup stars of half a dozen countries tangling in singles and doubles for big purses before enormous crowds, looms up as something more than a possibility in the very near future. The one sport which has fought off the inroads of professionalism most successfully is beginning to wobble before the modern tendency to specialize and be paid for it.

The enormous amount of time required for practice in order to remain near the top of the heap and the undeniable drawing-power of the topnotchers combine to make the step to professionalism seem really very logical. All that is needed to see a professional tennis league launched is an agreement between three or four of the stars. In fact, the future status of tennis may well be said to rest in the lean, muscular fingers of Mr. William T. Tilden of Philadelphia. Let Tilden decide to become a professional and the sporting world will be shocked at the speed with which a dozen more of the world's greatest players will follow suit.

Imagine, if you will, a series of matches between such stars of the courts as Tilden, Richards, Alonzo of Spain, J. O. Anderson of Australia, Washer of Belgium, Cochet of France, Kumagae of Japan and others of equal class. Such matches in the past have drawn crowds limited only by the size of the stands surrounding the court, and people are willing to pay big prices to see men of this caliber compete.

Such players as those named above could tour the cities of the country, drawing thousands and thousands of dollars at the gate every place they met. Tennis is the kind of a game that must be seen to be appreciated, and the mere fact that one player could clean up the whole outfit every time, which he couldn't, would not detract from the drawing power but would rather increase the desire of the fans to see the great player in action.

While all the foregoing is merely conjecture and is on a subject which is more or less tabu among tennis players, the fact remains that it has a good foundation. In fact, J. O. Anderson, Australia's great player, who is now in this country for Davis Cup matches, is said to have hinted at the possibility of turning professional, and intimated recently that the only thing to prevent his doing so was the necessity of getting several others to do so at the same time.

GREAT OUTDOORS BECKONS

Everyone Should Indulge in Outdoor Practice at This Season of Year, Says Severns

Article XLVI

BY BARCLAY L. SEVERNS

Everyone should make it a practice at this season of the year to spend as much time in the open as possible; especially in the early morning. It brings one in touch with nature in all her beauty—the air is pure, and if proper breathing is indulged in, one will energize the entire system.

At this period of the year the muscles respond more readily than in cold weather, and one should take advantage of this wonderful opportunity; the price is trivial, only a little exertion on your part. The time spent will reward you with greater returns, by many times, than lying in bed. It gives one a chance to study one's self; and it is from the lack of proper understanding of one's self that most of our troubles appear later on in life. There is a silent voice within that speaks to us when we are alone in the early morning. The great men of all ages, who have contributed so much to the world, have been early risers. Problems which seem impossible at times, are often solved after a good night's sleep; followed by a brisk walk in the early morning.

IDEAL SURROUNDINGS

Most of the residential sections have a great variety of shrubbery, the fragrance combined with the color effect is ideal for such exercise; and one creates a natural appetite, which adds strength and energy not gained in any other way.

Other forms of exercise, such as horseback riding, tennis, golf, fishing, hunting, hiking, etc., are likewise beneficial. Especially horseback riding. A number of prominent men spend two hours every morning riding through the Beverly Hills section; and one only needs to look them over once to realize the great benefits derived from this form of exercise.

FIND YOUR "HOBBY".

Find your hobby; then go to it every chance you get. If it is fishing; combine walking with it. Park your car at least two miles from the point you intend to do your fishing. The anticipation of the fish you expect to catch, will inspire you to walk at a good brisk gate, and in turn will cause natural breathing. After a day's outing of this character you will return home ready for a good night's sleep. The sleep will be restful, as you will have brought on a natural fatigue. And a natural sleep is what most of us need.

Rest and sleep are essential to health, but unless it is brought on by natural fatigue, the benefits are lost to a greater degree. In other words, if one goes to bed fagged out through overwork and physical weakness, caused by neglect of the body, sleep loses its purpose. Disease takes advantage of tired human beings.

BE GOOD TO YOURSELF

Sickness will not bother you if you are good to yourself. You may spend years building up a perfect body, and in a few days of broken rest, abuse of the body, improper eating, place yourself in a condition to invite sickness. For this reason alone, we should keep fit at all times; never allowing ourselves to get in condition where we lack confidence in fitness to do what others can do. Keep away that feeling of weakness that creeps into our beings at middle life and causes us to hesitate even trying to do the things which would have been easy a few years ago.

If some other kind of recreation appeals to you, take it, nothing is gained in doing the things you dislike; one must enjoy the sort of exercise he decides upon, or there is little benefit gained from same. Choose what appeals to you! Make it the pleasurable pursuit of health.

Health should be the keynote for everyone who is striving for success; and most of us are afraid of being successful. If we will utilize our spare time by getting out in the country during the summer months, living as near to nature as possible, we will be better fitted to stand the grind of the year; and our success depends on our ability to stand the grind.

JAPAN'S BUDGET AIDS DEPENDENT

Fund to Women and Children New Departure

Present Poverty Swelling Ranks of Criminals

Financing of Two Mainland Provinces Planned

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

TOKIO, July 16. — The new budget for the next fiscal year, which is now being considered by the Cabinet, has one marked new departure from former budgets, this being an appropriation for the relief of women and children in distress. A sum of 2,800,000 yen has been earmarked for this purpose. Nothing is definitely known as to how the relief is to be administered, but the general opinion is that it will be utilized for giving assistance to poor women who have children under 13 years of age to support, and and to women whose husbands are dead, in prisons, or have abandoned them.

The number of such women in Japan is estimated at more than 50,000 and children depended on them are calculated at about three times that figure. At present these women are compelled to drudge terribly for a living, and investigations have shown that their severe poverty has driven them to crime and to suicide. Most of the children of these women are employed by factories who pay them nothing except giving them their food and lodging, and as they grow up, it is said, they go to swell the ranks of criminals.

LECTURES POPULAR

Summer lecture classes in Japan are growing popular as year succeeds year, and this indicates a hankering by the people after knowledge. This year the government is taking an active part in fostering these lecture studies, the Home Office declaring that the summer lectures, among other useful purposes, have tended to bring urban and rural people into harmony.

The towns in Japan enjoy many facilities for securing knowledge and education, and this is one reason why there is such a rapid precipitation of young men from the rural areas into the towns, it is explained. The government hopes, by means of these summer lectures, to reduce the disparity between the youth from the country and the young man from the towns, so that the country youth may be able to prosecute his studies, if he is so inclined, without taking the risk of coming into the towns on speculation.

FUNDS TO STABILIZE

The financial situation in Manchuria and Mongolia has been considerably depressed for some time, and the press, commenting on the Japanese merchants and Japanese industrial and commercial interests in these regions. In order to relieve the financial situation there the government has decided to make the Bank of Korea and the Oriental Colonization Company, both of which are semificial organizations, put up a fund of 8,000,000 and 12,000,000 yen, respectively, which will be distributed to those who are in need of relief, while the government itself proposes to contribute a further sum of 8,000,000 yen.

Japanese attaches special importance to Manchuria and Mongolia, which, she has always contended, are necessary for her existence, an dthe press, commenting on the proposals, thinks that the government's action is insufficient, because the task really in hand is not merely the relief of Japanese business and industrial interests in these territories, but the practical restoration of the financial stability of these regions. The main cause of the present financial depression in these Northern China provinces has been the business policy of the Bank of Korea, and that of the Oriental Colonization Company, which, surprised at the difficulty of recovering the loans they gave out generously during the war boom, have now become very reluctant to advance any money.

PRINCESS PHOTOGRAPHED

Yesterday Princess Nagako Kuni, betrothed of the Prince Regent and the future first lady of the Japanese empire, posed for the last official photographs which will be taken of this 19-year-old Japanese princess prior to her wedding, which is to take place some time this fall. Several pictures were taken in the photographic studio attached to the studio in the imperial palace compound. Some of these were of the princess in foreign clothes, some in kimonos, while several were also taken of the princess in sport uniform and with a tennis racket—the first of such pictures of an imperial princes ever taken in Japan.

LIMITING OF ALCOHOL HIT BY DOCTORS

American Medical Body Agrees With Courts That Law is Invalid

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, July 16.—The American Medical Association agrees with two recent Federal court decisions holding that the Volstead Act is unconstitutional in limiting the amount of liquor that may be prescribed by a physician, Dr. William Allen Pusey, president of the association, declared today.

"This is not a question of wet or dry," said Dr. Pusey, in commenting on the decision, "but it is a question of rationality in medicine. If alcohol is a medicine, then Congress has no more right to restrict its use than it has to declare that only so much quinine, digitalis or adrenalin shall be prescribed by any physician in any given length of time.

"The ruling of Federal Judge Bourquin at Helena, Mont., is entirely correct, and it follows closely the first decision given some weeks ago by Federal Judge Knox in New York. That ruling was sought by Dr. Lambert—not a 'bootlegging doctor,' but one of the highest standing men in the profession. It is an entirely logical decision.

"The association has not taken any stand on this question of limiting prescriptions, but there is no doubt but that it would regard the decisions as absolutely correct. The association is made up of reputable physicians who believe that they should themselves determine how much and under what conditions alcohol should be prescribed without restrictive interference from any lawmaking body."

Man-Girl Held by Grand Jury in Murder Case

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, July 16.—Fred G. Thompson, alias "Mrs. Francis Carrick," the "man girl," held by the police for the slaying of Richard G. Tesmer, was indicted for murder by the grand jury today.

Thompson, whose arrest and subsequent disclosures of his life as the husband of a woman and the "wife" of the man with whom he lived, attracted national attention, has steadily insisted that he is innocent of the crime.

The grand jury voted the indictment after Sergeant William J. Cusack testified regarding the investigating he had done that led to Thompson's arrest.

IRRIGATED VINEYARDS
on the FONTANA ESTATE are making many people
INDEPENDENT FOR LIFE

FONTANA FACTS:

The Fontana Estate is situated 50 miles east of Los Angeles on the Valley and Foothill Boulevards, an easy drive by automobile of two hours from this city. It is eight miles from San Bernardino, 11 miles from Riverside, with its historic Mission Inn; 18 miles from Redlands, 4 miles from Rialto. Fontana has 21 Pacific Electric trains a day, connecting it with every city of importance in Southern California. Fontana is also served by the Santa Fe and Southern Pacific railways. Its transportation facilities are absolutely unexcelled.

Our Vineyard Bargain

We are offering 1923 planting of the best wine and table grape varieties, irrigated by our $1,000,000 water system, at $500 per acre on easy terms as follows: $125 per acre cash; only $25 p... acre each year for three years; $125 per acre the 4th year; $175 per acre the 5th year.

Irrigated vineyards begin to produce the 3rd year; they should be in commercial production the 4th and 5th years. Grape profits the 3rd, 4th and 5th years should help pay for a large part of the cost of your land.

Free Care of Vineyards

We take complete cultural care of your vineyard for three years entirely free of charge to you. We also give you free a share of water stock with each acre you buy. This water stock is conservatively worth $200 per share.

Poultry Opportunities

The Fontana White Leghorn Poultry Farm is one of the largest and best managed in America. We incubate 48,000 baby chicks at a time. This farm was established primarily to give Fontana Vineyard owners the right kind of start in the poultry business.

As a Place to Live

Fontana is a delightful place to live and is growing more and more attractive as a residence locality each year as the State is developed and beautified. The planting of more than 600 miles of beautiful shade trees in rows over the property and many miles of young walnut, olive, fig and other trees along the driveways, tends greatly to enhance the beauty of the estate. New improvements are constantly carried out. Fontana has the best of school facilities for children of all ages. It has pure water, electricity, community social organizations and all other modern conveniences and advantages.

A SMALL payment down---only $125 per acre---will secure for you an assured income-producing irrigated vineyard of five acres or more at Fontana. The balance of the price of the land with water, $500 per acre, is payable on the easiest of terms over a five year period.

The Fontana Farms Company takes complete cultural care of your vineyard for you for three years, including irrigating, absolutely free. You then take over the care of the vineyard the fourth year, when the vines come into commercial production and your income starts.

Irrigated vineyards in the Fontana district that are four years old or more net their owners from $250 to $800 per acre. As a land investment for men or women with a moderate amount of money, who require absolute safety and a certainty of income, we recommend the purchase of five acres or more of this grape land, together with a poultry farm at Fontana. A larger acreage of vineyard land is a first-class investment for any one, whether they intend living on the land or not. Let us tell you all about Fontana and its opportunities. Call, phone or mail the coupon for complete information.

What is the present density of population of Palestine? W. E. I.

According to the latest official census, the density of population is 80 to the square mile.

Q.: Are the Paisley shawls still manufactured at Paisley, Scotland? R. E. D.

A.: The shawls by which the town of Paisley, Scotland, became famous are not manufactured there to any extent at the present time. The city is the great thread manufacturing center for Great Britain, and also famous for its manufacture of tartans, muslins and carpets.

Q.: Which country in Europe has the highest and which the lowest percentage of illegitimate births? Y. H. E.

A.: Statistics since the war are very incomplete. The most reliable, however, indicate that the percentage in Austria was 40.1 per cent, highest, and Ireland 3.8 per cent, lowest. The number of illegitimate births in Europe just previous to the World War in a single year was reported at 600,000.

Q.: How could I estimate $4,600,000,000, or the amount owed by Great Britain to the United States? K. F. D.

A. A statistician recently stated that the amount which will be paid by Great Britain to the United States in settlement of her war debt with interest would equal $2500 for every letter in the authorized version of the Bible from the first letter of the Book of Genesis to the last letter in the Book of Revelation. According to another statistician there are 2,728,100 letters in the Old Testament and 838,380 letters in the New Testament.

Q.: If all labor-saving machinery in the United States were abolished, what number of men would be required to supply the deficit? H. F. D.

A.: According to a recent report in the book, "American Resources," by Gilbert and Pogue, published by the Government Printing Office, the estimate is made that 3,000,000,000 hard-driven unskilled laborers would be necessary to replace the work done by machinery.

LETTERS TO THE TIMES

Concerning Switzerland

LOS ANGELES, July 16.—[To the Editor of The Times:] In a recent issue of your paper you brought an utterly incorrect statement is respect to the last Swiss election which aimed to abolish the private still into a government controlled still. As you rightly say the movement was headed by all churches and 400 philanthropic organizations maybe even 401. But entirely wrong are your figures about the result of the election. Not 50,000 were for the supposed moderation, but 259,000; and not 300,000 in the negative but 357,000. A couple of Swiss papers that lay before me agree with my figures. Now your final phrase looks like written by a person who knows Switzerland and Swiss people from the movies. He or she speaks about the subject just like a child would talk about people living on the moon. Certainly that writer of The Times staff from Death Valley never got the advice from his mother to keep a mouthful of Water when in a very irate mood. Anyway, I wish to tell that Switzerland is one of the very few countries with, so to speak, no illiterates. And the political judgment is accordingly shaped. It must be remembered that just those states or cantons which were the most vehemently against that partial dryness were already politically independent, about half a thousand years before the Boston tea party. To avoid a misunderstanding I wish to remark that I fought with the same zeal slanderous and misleading statements about the United States in my home country all during the war.

Now to cite your final phrase: "But between parting with his Schnapps and embracing the possibility of going to the poorhouse the peasant farmer unhesitatingly elected the latter as the lesser of two evils."

Teneatis risum! First and last we don't need prohibition in Switzerland because the Swiss people is a sober, moderate and conservative people, a people rather slow in decision which carefully examines before it accepts anything. If you wish to know more about the Swiss (you might consider me as party) please go to Harry Illington Brooks, who always justly and lovingly writes about my home country. He knows that oldest democracy; somehow having lived there for a good while. But that was long ago. And since that time we have made tremendous progress in the suppression of alcoholic abuse. Yes, slowly we went, but we got results and results that are lasting. You don't find nowadays much drunkenness in Switzerland and therefore we need no absolute prohibition. When after the war I came over to my beloved Southern California I saw aboard the Rochambeau on the way to New York no one drunken person but native Americans. Not that the majority of Americans hadn't been sober. But the fact remains: If my home folks drink, they drink leisurely as a rule and not with the purpose to get drunk. So all the Rockefeller millions will not be able to lay Switzerland dry. Revenons a nos moutons! It would lead me too far to mention all the reasons. Why the restricting Schnapps law was rejected. But one of the foremost causes was the faultiness of the law in itself. An amended law will most certainly carry the next time. But believe me the Swiss have an awfully stiff neck and never, yes never, will receive orders from women's clubs nor preachers who are supposed to preach the Gospel of love and are but fanatics at heart.

I am sincerely yours,
ALFRED BUCHER.

A Saint Is Quoted

LOS ANGELES, July 13.—[To the Editor of The Times:] It is occasion of the sixth centenary of St. Thomas Aquinas, it seems to be a very opportune time to tell what that great doctor of the church thought about law. Such teachings of the saint cannot be too old, his scientific doctrine being always new.

"Human law is low only by virtue of its accordance with right reason; and thus it is manifest that it flows from the eternal law. And in so far as it deviates from right reason, it is called an unjust law; in such case it is no law at all, but rather a species of violence."

What Is Neuritis?

Neuritis is an inflammation of the nerves that produces sharp, darting pain very similar to that of rheumatism. In fact, the disease is often mistaken for rheumatism and treated as such, with the result that the sufferer gets no lasting benefit.

Neuritis is usually brought on by colds, injuries, bruises, nervous exhaustion, malarial poisoning or infectious diseases. The pain may be confined to one spot or it may move from place to place. Sometimes it is accompanied by soreness in the muscles, numbness in the hands or feet, lame back, stiff joints, eye strain or severe headaches.

The only way to obtain permanent, lasting relief is to heal the affected nerves—get rid of the inflammation. Eopa Neuritis Tablets are compounded for that very purpose. Harmless, pleasant and effective. A trial package will convince you. Price $1 at Standard Homepathic Co., 316 S. Broadway, and all other druggists, Boericke & Runyon Co., manufacturers, San Francisco.—[Advertisement.

Why This Doctor Advises HOKARA

Says It Gives Instant Relief in Many Skin Troubles

It is not often that a doctor comes right out and endorses any preparation but when he does you may be sure it is something out of the ordinary. Read what Dr. Johnson, skin specialist, says about Hokara the antiseptic, astringent, greaseless Cream:

"For over twenty-five years in my practice I have used many kinds of preparations called "skin foods" but never until I found Hokara did I see such beautiful and satisfactory results. I use it on all my patients. It cleanses the skin and makes it soft and fresh looking, producing firmness and giving power to the tissues. All those to whom I have recommended it are delighted with its use."

If you suffer with skin trouble so that the itching seems almost unbearable and the skin is so broken out that you are sensitive about your appearance, don't think it necessary to use some greasy, vile smelling ointment or salve. Just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Hokara. It is sold on a positive guarantee of satisfaction or money back. At all druggists.—[Advertisement.

SHIPPING and Los Angeles Harbor NEWS

PORT TRADE AGAIN STABLE

Chartering of Shipping Board Tanker Seen as Proof That Transport Situation is Normal

The point of stabilization has been reached in the intercoastal freight and petroleum transport situation, it was declared by shipping experts, following developments at Los Angeles during the last year by freight-rate wars and tariff increases and by an unprecedented increase in tank-steamer tonnage.

Proof that the demand for tankers for the run between Los Angeles Harbor and the Atlantic Coast has reached the peak was indicated in the chartering yesterday of the Shipping Board tanker Trimountain for a year at a rate of 94 cents a barrel a trip. This is a sharp decline from the rate of $1.10 a barrel, said when the movement reached its height here a month ago. The General Petroleum Corporation, of this city, was the charterer of the Trimountain.

Approximately 150 tankers now are plying to the Atlantic Coast from Los Angeles Harbor exclusively in the intercoastal oil movement, as compared to a year ago when less than one taker a month sailed in that service.

Stabilization of the intercoastal freight situation also was seen in the announcement from New York yesterday that the Transmarine Corporation will increase its intercoastal fleet. The concern, which is the newest entrant in intercoastal trade, will, under the new program, operate thirteen steamers between Pork Newark, N. J., and Los Angeles.

One of these vessels, the Suedco, arrived yesterday with 3600 tons of East Coast products, while a second, the Suboatco, is due from the East on the 19th inst. W. D. Benson, Pacific Coast manager of the Transmarine Corporation, now is in Los Angeles arranging for the increased activities of the line.

GIANT LINER WILL MAKE PORT HERE

White Star Homeric to be Placed in Service Between Coasts

The giant White Star liner Homeric, one of the finest and fastest passenger craft in trans-Atlantic trade, is to be operated in the New York-Los Angeles-San Francisco service of the Panama-Pacific Line, according to announcement in New York yesterday by P. A. S. Franklin, head of the International Mercantile Marine. The Homeric, of 34,356 gross tons, will be the largest steamer in the Pacific.

Curtailment of profits in the trans-Atlantic trade was the reason given by Mr. Franklin for the I.M.M.'s action in transfering the Homeric to intercoastal service in the hope that she will here show better profits. She will be drydocked in October, he said, and fitted with American oil burners. She is now under British registry but will be shifted to the American flag in order to meet coastwise requirements of the United States.

The Homeric, the keel of which was laid in Dantzig before the World War, was planned as the Columbus of the Hamburg-American Lines. She was completed 1922, however, under the Reparations Commission agreement and turned over to Great Britain. She is 751 feet in length, has a beam of eighty-three feet and a molded depth of forty-eight feet.

It is understood in port shipping circles that the Homeric will be operated in conjunction with the Panama-Pacific liners Kroonland, Finland and Manchuria, scheduled to start an express passenger service from this port to New York via Havana next October.

Old Schooner is Cast for Final Thrill in Films

After breasting the northern seas forty-five years, the schooner Bangor has been cast for a thrill in the films. She was chartered yesterday by the Universal Film Company and will be the vehicle upon which Priscilla Dean will star in "The Storm Dollar," many scenes of which will be taken in Los Angeles Harbor.

The veteran windjammer is known to old-time shipping men as the first of the four-masted, bald-headed schooners ever to sail the briny. Built in Eureka long before the steam-propelled vessels crowded her sister ships off the sea, the Bangor sailed for many years as first of the Alaska codfish fleet. Later she sailed the South Pacific and to this day holds the record of forty days for a windjammer from Pago Pago, Samoa, to San Francisco, with a cargo of copra.

Outliving practically all the seasalts who sailed her during her romantic days, she has at last outlived her usefulness, too. But in her final effort, she is destined as the conqueror, just as she was in her ancient glory. A collision at sea, with Priscilla Dean at the wheel, is to her lot, before she is relegated to history.

The Bangor arrived in port from Puget Sound about two months ago with a cargo of lumber, and while awaiting orders was discovered by Universal Film folk. She is captained by "Black Jack" Wirschuleit. Filming of "The Storm Dollar" will start at Los Angeles Harbor on the 20th inst.

SHIPPING NOTES

The United States naval tender Canopus, under command of Commander Frederick C. Sherman, and submarines R-1, R-2, R-3, R-4, R-5, R-6, R-7, R-8 and R-10, sailed from Los Angeles Harbor at 11 a.m. yesterday for Pearl Harbor, Honolulu, where they will make their permanent base. Their departure practically marks the end of the Submarine Base at Los Angeles Harbor, established during the war. The site will revert to commercial shipping. The Canopus carried 2000 tons of machinery from the base here, to be installed at Pearl Harbor.

The Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Company's tank steamer Elisha Walker, will arrive in Los Angeles Harbor tonight from New Orleans. She is the first addition of four recently assumed by the Pan-American Company, which will give the Doheny interests fourteen tankers plying out of this port. She will load 80,000 barrels of crude oil from the Union Oil dock, and sail tomorrow for New Orleans.

The big British tank steamer San Nazario docked at the Union Oil Company dock yesterday morning on her first voyage to this port, to load oil for the Shell Oil Company. The tanker will carry 110,000 barrels of oil on her return to Valparaiso, starting today.

The steamer Vinita, 5351 tons, has been purchased by Sudden & Christensen. It was announced yesterday, and will be operated in the intercoastal trade in conjunction with the other vessels handled by the purchasers. The Vinita, built at Long Beach in 1919, was tied up in Los Angeles Harbor almost two years before going back into service for Swayne & Hoyt out of San Francisco, under the managing agency agreement of the United States Shipping Board. The vessel is 410 feet long, 54 feet beam and 27 feet draught.

A barge is in port today from San Diego to take back forty-three carloads of rails, as the first water shipment of that product to leave Los Angeles Harbor. S. L. Kreider is handling the transfer.

The Shipping Board tanker Miskianza arrived in port yesterday, after one of the longest voyages on record for an oil tanker between Mobile, Ala., and Los Angeles Harbor, fifty-two days out from the east coast. The vessel's engine troubles were doubled and delayed the vessel more than a month en route. She was forced in at Salina Cruz and again at Manzanillo. She will be laid up in port for two weeks undergoing repairs.

News of Ships and Sailings at Pacific Ports

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 16.—William Semper has been appointed general freight agent of the Los Angeles Steamship Company, it was announced today. Semper formerly was with the China Mail Steamship Company, as general freight agent.

It was reported here today that an unnamed New York firm has bid $80,000 for the former China Mail liner Nile, which is twice the amount the ship brought June 19 under the United States Marshal's hammer. Rosenthal & Sons, Oakland, bought the Nile for $47,800. Owners are removing big iron from the vessel valued at $25,000, which will be sold at auction along with it at the Marshal's sale. Other salable equipment on the vessel, it was said, would, together with the pig iron, net the owners virtually the purchase price.

Another ship, the Union liner Tahiti, arrived here "homeby" today from the Antipodes. The ship's liquor stores were taken off at Papeete on route, with the exception of enough to last passengers and crew to the three-mile limit. In fact, there was a bit more than enough. Eight bottles of liquor were cast into the sea at the three-mile line.

Capt. C. G. Lofstrom has been named commander of the Williams Line freighter Williamsburg, succeeding Capt. H. H. Rose, who resigned.

The Oceanic liner Ventura, from the Antipodes, and the Matson steamer Maui, from Hawaii, are due tomorrow with capacity passengers lists and large cargoes.

COOS BAY, July 16.—The Coos Bay Lumber Company's steamer F. A. Warner arrived from Bay Point this morning and is taking lumber.

The steam schooner Bertie M. Hanlon with lumber, sailed this afternoon from San Francisco.

ASTORIA, July 16.—The movement of canned salmon from the Columbia River canneries. Yesterday the steamer Floridian loaded 12,000 cases at the port terminals for the Atlantic seaboard. This morning the steamer Horace Luckenbach arrived from Portland, and after taking on 10,000 cases of canned salmon at the local terminals, sailed this afternoon for New York, via Seattle.

Other vessels being handled at the terminals today were the steamer Monticello, which arrived from San Francisco during the night, and after loading 800,000 feet of lumber here, will sail tomorrow for the United Kingdom, and the steam schooner G. C. Lindauer which arrived this morning from Eureka to discharge 500,000 feet of redwood ties for reshipment to Eastern Washington. She will load lumber at Warrenton or Knapp.

The steam schooner Covena arrived last night from Los Angeles and will load lumber at Wauna and Westport.

The steam schooner Olympic arrived last night from San Francisco and went to Westport where she will load lumber.

The steam schooner Santiam finished loading 600,000 feet of lumber at Warrenton late this afternoon and shifted tonight to Kalama where she will complete her cargo for Los Angeles.

VANCOUVER (B. C.) July 16.—The steamship El Cinuta has arrived from Los Angeles with 10,000 barrels of fuel oil.

A Prince Rupert dispatch says the steamship Canadian Scottish will be in dry dock till about the middle of next week, when she will come to Vancouver.

SEATTLE, July 16.—Five steamships arrived here between 4 a.m. and 1 p.m. today and discharged 1370 passengers, said to have been the greatest number ever reaching this port in nine hours. The steamships were the Alaska, returning from her second trip to the North, with 236 passengers; the President Jefferson, from the Far East, with 480; Queen, Southeastern Alaska, 184; Tokiwa Maru, Far East, 3, and H. F. Alexander, California, 165.

The auxiliary powered schooner Admiral Mayo is to be towed to a marine railway here tomorrow to have her fuel oil tanks lifted out. The tanks will be placed in the Brookdale, which is under charter until August 15 to the Carlisle Packing Company. The Brookdale will be converted from a coal burner to an oil burner.

The President Jefferson of the Admiral Oriental Line, which arrived here today from the Far East, made the voyage from Yokohama to William Head in nine days and eighteen hours.

TACOMA, July 16.—Lumber for the east coast will be loaded by the Robin Adair of the Isthmian Line, which arrived from Everett this evening.

The Admiral Dewey will not be in Tacoma until Thursday, according to advices received today.

Lumber for Los Angeles was taken this afternoon by the Phyllis. She stops at Everett for further cargo.

British Columbia copper ore was brought to the smelter by the Gray, arriving during the night.

The Challamba will carry nearly 1,000,000 feet of Puget Sound lumber, completing cargo at Everett. The Standard Oil tanker Charlie Watson completed discharging and sailed for San Francisco at midnight.

The Manitowoc is looked for Tuesday from the east coast, via Seattle. She is scheduled to load lumber for Atlantic Coast ports.

Failing to show up as scheduled on Monday, the Alaska Steamship Company's new liner Alaska, is expected here Tuesday, back from her second trip North. She brings ore and concentrates.

PORTLAND, July 16.—The steamers Paul Luckenbach and F. J. Luckenbach were simultaneously discharging cargo from Atlantic ports here today. Heavy outward cargoes await both vessels.

Delay has occurred to the steamer West Nomentum, which was scheduled to leave today for the Orient, and she will not go away until Friday, it was announced today. She will have a full cargo loaded here.

Inauguration of a new coastwise service by the Lind Navigation Company, which will be represented in Portland by the Columbia Pacific Shipping Company, became known here today. Two vessels of the lake type, the Juniper and Romaine, will first be placed in service and will operate as coastwise lumber carriers. The former is now en route to Portland and Powell River with a cargo of sulphur, while the Romaine is now at Galveston, loading a similar cargo.

The enormous amount of lumber moving to Los Angeles, which broke all previous records in June, is expected to fall off to some extent during the autumn and early winter months, and this has already resulted in a weakening of charter rates. While lumber rates to Los Angeles have been around $9, reaching a crest in May and June, several carriers have been offered for future charter at $7.50.

The Japanese steamer Norfolk Maru, which arrived today at Coos Bay, will load 2,000,000 feet of lumber before going to Gray's Harbor and thence coming to the Columbia River to complete. The vessel is one of the Yamashita Kisen Kaisha fleet. The Meigen Maru of the same line is expected in Coos Bay Wednesday, also to take lumber. The Meigen Maru is another steamer of the same service.

Capt. Fraser Smith, master of the British steamer Benarty, which sailed from here last month with wheat for United Kingdom discharge, has written to Capt. J. H. Roberts, local ship liner, that he had an excellent trip to Panama, where he mailed his letter July 2.

Principals and Evidence

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ALHAMBRA, July 16. — M. D. McHenry and J. P. Bailey, arrested by local police in an early Sunday morning raid on a house at 3513 Ocean-to-Ocean Highway, were arraigned before Judge Farrell in Police Court today on charges of having in their possession an intoxicating liquor for sale and distribution, and their preliminary hearing was set for Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. Their bail was set at $3000.

Gertrude Stormont, an attractive young woman of 26, who was also arrested in the Ocean-to-Ocean Highway house, was arraigned on a charge of possessing intoxicating liquor, and her bail set at $500. She will also appear for preliminary hearing Wednesday morning.

The charge of having liquor in his possession against C. J. Houser was dismissed, and R. G. Haskins was fined $10 for operating an automobile without a license. Both men were captured in the raid but are thought to have been "innocent bystanders."

When Officers Boone, Vigneau and Tetzlaf swooped down on the Alhambra's principal thoroughfares at 4 o'clock Sunday morning they discovered a fifty-gallon still in operation, a big quantity of mash and a complete assortment of moonshine equipment. In a barn on the place were discovered sixty-one fifty-gallon barrels of what is asserted to be port wine. The still and other equipment were taken to the police station and a guard placed over the barn where the wine is stored.

THIRTEEN IS FATAL CAR

Hoodoo Number Figures in Death Race at Huntington Beach, Where One is Killed

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SANTA ANA, July 16.—Hoodoo number 13 figured in the fatal crash yesterday afternoon on the local automobile race track, it became known at the inquest over the remains of Frank Lowry, oil worker of Huntington Beach. He died last night from injuries received when a racing car dashed from the course into the crowd of spectators.

Thirteen cars were entered in the twenty-five-mile race, and the thirteenth entry was the car which caused the death of one and the injury of four spectators.

Lowry was one of five spectators hit by the racer. His left foot was severed and it was necessary to amputate his right leg at the hospital. He died from a fractured skull without regaining consciousness.

Jack Turner of Long Beach was the driver of the death car, and suffered only bruises about the chest from the steering wheel.

Lowry was employed at Huntington Beach by the Petroleum Midway Oil Company. The improvised track is owned by the Irvine Company and is located at the foot of South Main street. It is understood this track will not be available for any more races.

Admits in Court That He Passed Spurious Check

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ALHAMBRA, July 16.—Herbert H. Block, facing numerous charges of passing worthless checks in Southern California cities, was given a preliminary hearing today before Judge Northrup on a charge of passing a check for $40 on the First National Bank of Alhambra on September 26, 1922. Block admitted the charge in court. He was held for the Superior Court. His bail is $2000.

Block was arrested in a sensational manner in Alhambra on the 2nd inst., after having attempted, it is charged, to pass a check at the First National Bank. The teller, Joseph Jones, recognized the man and the handwriting on the check, recalling a check for $40 which he had passed last September. Jones, together with L. D. Bedford, president of the institution, pursued Block as he was about to leave in his automobile and forced him to drive to the police station.

TANNING PLANT IS SOLD

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, July 16.—The South Coast Tanning Company plant at the foot of West Seventh street in the harbor district today was sold to Frinnell Brothers of Long Beach for $65,000. The plant has been closed for several months. It was owned and formerly operated by J. V. Giaconi, who is now managing a sardine packing company at Los Angeles Harbor.

TWO BLAZES ARE PUT OUT IN REDLANDS

Forest Fires Endanger Country Residences and Orange Groves

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

REDLANDS, July 16.—The Terracina section, one of the most beautiful of the residence districts here, and several fine orange groves and homes in the Crafton section, were threatened by two brush fires last night and today.

The fire at Terracina started in a pumping plant on the main road in the canyon below the bluff, on which beautiful homes are built. Fanned by a west wind, it rushed up the slope and to the top of the bluff. A barn owned by L. Barron was burned before the Redlands fire department could reach the scene. An automobile truck stored there was burned.

There were no hydrants, but Chief Green opened a wier box and got two good streams of water to fight the fire. It was kept from the house.

The fire at Crafton started in the hills east of the Roberts, Paine Gay and Herold groves. Some of the trees were damaged by the heat but the ranchers of that section turned the flames until forest rangers arrived.

The home of E. D. Patterson, realty man of Redlands, was in the path of the flames but was saved.

FOUR BRUSH FIRES NEAR RIVERSIDE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

RIVERSIDE, July 16. — Four more brush fires were reported today in the county by Fire Warden Baird of Corona. Although no great damage was done, the carelessness of persons traveling through the rural districts is still dangerous property. A fire started above the E. T. Earl estate near Corona in an eucalyptus grove after an automobile had come out of the grove. The blaze finally was put out. A fire on the road to the Cook ranch burned six power-line poles, and a cabin before it was put under control. Near the John Crig ranch two small fires were started along the road but were extinguished. Mr. Baird reports that the fire in the Santa Ana Canyon is now completely under control.

GAINS IN ASSESSMENT

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

FRESNO, July 16.—Overleaping predictions made by Assessor Cummings on Saturday, the county assessment roll, submitted to the Board of Supervisors today showed a total of $183,811,390, as against a total of $172,056,322 last year. The gain of more than $11,000,000 far outstripped the increase of more than $5,000,000 estimated by Cummings when the totals were being run up late last week. To the total of the tax roll, in estimating the county's wealth, must be added about $15,000,000, the value of railroads and other property taxed by the State; $1,759,010 household exemptions and $1,614,315 military exemptions. The grand total is $202,178,715.

On Friday Judge Wallace will hear the case of Robert Bowers, charged with a similar offense.

CARLOAD OF CORK BURNS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

POMONA, July 16.—The Pomona fire department was called to the Walnut Station of the Southern Pacific Railroad today to extinguish a fire which destroyed a carload of oiled cork. The cork is believed to have been ignited by a spark from an engine. It was on a flat car and was between two oil tank cars. Immediate action by the train crew in uncoupling the car and putting it on an unused siding saved a heavier loss.

Leg Badly Swollen and Numb After Perilous Trip

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ORANGE, July 16.—A heroic bit of surgery was performed in the hills above Orange County Park late yesterday afternoon when Thomas Kelly, 28 years of age, local resident, used a pocketknife on his leg after he had been bitten by a rattlesnake.

After slashing the wound almost to the bone, Kelly sucked the poison from the incision while his companion, E. G. Amos, applied a crude tourniquet just above the wound. When Kelly was brought to a local physician, after a thrilling ride from the canyon more than ten miles away, his leg was numb and swollen almost to twice its normal size. The physician, after giving him medical treatment, stated that his heroic action undoubtedly saved his life.

Kelly was hunting when the attack occurred. Just as he was about to step over a bush, Kelly caught sight of the rattler coiled to strike. Before Kelly was hardly aware of his danger the snake struck, the fangs sinking into his right leg just above the shoe top.

While many rattlers have been seen in the hills surrounding the county park this year, no attacks had been reported before. Kelly, before attending to his wound, killed the snake which was more than five feet long. The rattler, Kelly stated, gave no warning before striking.

RAISIN ASSOCIATION SEES END OF DEBTS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

FRESNO, July 16.—Sale of all the 1922 carryover of raisins by the Sun Maid Raisin Growers at the prices named yesterday will wipe out the debts of the association, according to a statement made today by Managing Director Ralph P. Merritt. "The price level determined," he said, "is low enough to move the goods and just high enough to pay the obligations of the association in full." These obligations, he said today, fluctuate from day to day, and he declined to give the present total.

Strong Man is Fined $25 and Must Pay For Plate Glass Broken

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

REDLANDS, July 16.—It costs money to be strong enough to knock a man through a plate glass window, J. D. Bradley discovered this morning when he was fined $25 for hitting Glenn Stell. Stell, as a result of the blow, crashed through the Frost & Frost office window on East Central avenue, it was charged. Bradley had difficulty in getting the money and faced a jail sentence of twenty-five days. He will pay also for the window which will be several times the amount of the fine.

ELK CIRCUS GATES ARE WIDE OPEN

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PASADENA, July 16.—With a wave of Queen Vivian Brandenburg's wand and a burst of fireworks, the gates of the Elks' Mid-Summer Circus at Tournament Park were thrown open this evening. More than 15,000 persons, including members of nearly every Elk lodge in Southern California, attended the formal opening. The affair, one of the most novel and entertaining of its kind ever staged here and conducted under the auspices of the local lodge, will be open to the public the entire week.

Features of the evening that attracted the greatest attention were King Tut's Jazz Girls in a song and dance number, fancy diving by champion swimmers in a specially constructed tank, equestrian feats and numerous side-shows. A thrill was provided by Harvey Perry, who dived 100 feet into the tank, his clothes saturated with gasoline and aflame.

Edythe Sterling, former wife of Brady, rough-rider from Cheyenne, jail to take part in the circus, gave a brilliant exhibition on horseback. She was assisted by Buff after his neighbor, David B. Gamm. At the close of the circus Miss Sterling will return to Pasadena City Jail to continue her seven-day sentence for speeding and contempt of court.

The crowning of the queen and the grand processional through the streets of the city prior to the opening of the fete were other features. Miss Brandenburg, elected queen for the week, was escorted by officials of the Elks' lodge and heralded by a forty-piece band during her triumphal entry to the throne. She received a great ovation as C. Hal Reynolds, Grand Exalted Ruler of the Elks, placed the crown upon her head.

Preparations for the fete are said to have cost more than $25,000.

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, July 16.—Long Beach Rotarians have been enlisted in the hunt for Morgan Broadus, 21 years of age, of El Paso, who disappeared from the Schuyler Hotel on June 16. The Rotary Club of El Paso appealed yesterday to the local organization to assist police in locating the youth, who, after staying at the local hotel for a few days, disappeared, leaving his baggage. A clew that developed yesterday indicated that the youth had been seen in Wilmington and Los Angeles Harbor and that he had applied to the captain of a coast steamer for work. He is the son of a prominent El Paso realty dealer.

NEW TESTIMONY IN JACOBS CASE

Truck Driver's Wife Tells of Seeing Woman in Car

Way Cleared for Lengthy Closing Arguments

Close Friend of Surgeon to Aid in Defense

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, July 16.—The way was cleared this afternoon for the lengthy closing arguments, the final act in the second trial of Capt. Louis L. Jacobs, former Camp Kearny Hospital physician, accused of the murder of Fritzi Mann, young San Diego dancer, last January.

The major part of the testimony today on rebuttal and sur-rebuttal dealt with the condition of the beach north of Torrey Pines grade, including the surface of the beach and wind velocity, and the condition of the highway between the top of the biological grade and Camp Kearny by way of Linda Vista.

A new witness for the defense, Mrs. William J. Ryan, wife of a truck driver, said that on the night of January 14 she accompanied her husband on a trip down from San Bernardino to San Diego.

COUPLE IN AUTO

She said she reached Oceanside about 8 o'clock on the night in question and that there she saw a woman wearing a white fur choker, or a white collar sitting in a machine headed south. Mrs. Ryan said their truck reached the parking space south of the bridge along the beach north of Torrey Pines about 7:45 p.m., and said that at that time she again saw the woman with the white choker. She was sitting in a touring automobile beside the highway and a man was with her, Mrs. Ryan said.

The mysterious woman was sitting behind the wheel of the automobile, Mrs. Ryan declared.

DEFENSE PREPARED

It was indicated that Attorneys Fitzgerald, Shapiro and Schenck will take their respective turns in presenting argument for the defense. At the last trial only Fitzgerald and Schenck spoke to the jury.

Attorney Louis J. Shapiro, close personal friend of Dr. Jacobs and a Detroit lawyer, will make the second argument for the defense, while Schenck will close for Jacobs. Both Dist.-Atty. Kemp[illegible] and Asst. Dist.-Atty. Selleck will argue the case for the State.

MORE CARS PROMISED

Additional Service Proposed for Huntington Park District

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

HUNTINGTON PARK, July 16. That this city will be given additional street-car service is the word that comes from Manager Kuhrts, of the Los Angeles Street Railway Company, to the Chamber of Commerce.

A communication to this city is to the effect that as soon as a curve is made to the tracks at Vernon and Santa Fe avenue, so the Bimini Springs car can be turned there to run south on Santa Fe, all the cars will then be run into Huntington Park.

At the present time the only cars running through this city are the Huntington Park cars marked "J," while the Santa Fe avenue cars marked with the same letter, operate to the south end of the Santa Fe-avenue line, which stops at the northern boundary of the city. This additional service will be of great benefit to the people residing here and in Walnut Park, South Gate, Home Gardens and Bell.

It is also stated that as soon as Santa Fe avenue is put in good condition the railway company will operate a bus line on that thoroughfare from Slauson to Florence avenues.

CANDIDATE FOR JUDGE

H. Z. Austin Wants to Succeed Oscar Trippett

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

FRESNO, July 16.—H. Z. Austin, for a score of years a Superior Judge of Fresno county and now trust officer of the Fidelity branch of the Pacific Southwest Trust and Savings Bank, is a candidate for the Federal judgeship in the Southern District of California. The seat was made vacant by the death of Judge Oscar A. Trippett. Austin was a candidate for the additional judgeship recently created and to which William P. James of Los Angeles was appointed on the Attorney General's nomination. At that time, Senators Johnson and Shortridge could not agree on nominees for two vacant judgeships, one in the Northern District and one in the Southern and action by the Attorney General solved the difficulty. Austin's appointment was favored by Senator Johnson.

Campaign of Education Plan of Monrovians

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

MONROVIA, July 16. — The proposition of widening White Oak avenue was taken up today by fifty members of the White Oak Business Men's Association at their semimonthly luncheon, with the result that a campaign of education will be started to demonstrate to property owners the benefits to be derived. It was also decided that a strong protest will be made against the tentative plans of the Planning Commission for zoning the avenue. Under present arrangements it is proposed to utilize only a part of White Oak for business property. The White Oak Avenue Association would have the whole street open for business. The Zoning Commission meets Wednesday evening to consider that matter.

ASSERTED ISLAND BOOTLEGGER CRAWLS OUT OF ONE TRAP INTO ANOTHER; FREED ON $200 BAIL

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAKERSFIELD, July 16.—William Brown, arrested yesterday on a charge of conducting a moonshine still on a tiny wooded island surrounded by the waters of Kern River, was released today on $200 bail by Justice Pile.

Revenue men swooped down on Brown's nest in the river and he was taken into custody. As a portion of the raiding squad started for Brown's domicile he started from it. Dashing into the water, the asserted moonshiner hit for shore. He crawled up high on the bank, right up into the arms of the remaining members of the dry squad.

The raiding party, composed of Constables Renfroe and Webster and Deputy Sheriffs Hildreth and Pruet declare that upon investigating they found two stills of about thirty gallons capacity each and thirty gallons of high-proof liquor.

NEW FRUIT ORGANIZATION

San Joaquin Valley Growers and Shippers Draft Plans for Moving Crops

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

FRESNO, July 16.—Co-operation with the railroads with a view to obtaining adequate transportation facilities for the movement of the immense fruit crops of the San Joaquin Valley will be the primary business of the San Joaquin Valley Fruit Growers' and Shippers' Association, details of the formation of which were worked out here today at a public meeting of about sixty men.

The association will cover the valley between Bakersfield and Modesto. It will function exactly contrary to the Lodi plan by which allocation of cars is handled. The local organization will furnish only information on which the allocation can be expedited by the railroads, it was decided.

A hard fight developed when the organization committee recommended that growers be not allowed representation on the directorate of the association. After considerable argument for grower representation, led by Frank Wilson, former head of the Peach and Fig Growers' Association, the growers were granted equal representation with other factions. The division of the directorate which is to be elected at a meeting here next Saturday will be: Cash buyers, three; consignment men, three; growers-shippers' organizations, three; growers, three.

Aside from obtaining information on which car allocation can be based, the organization will actively interest itself in representation in legislative bodies, the action of which might influence the fruit business; will supply growers with information concerning sales and shipping and will keep the buyers and shippers informed as to crop conditions and other information necessary to the conduct of their part of the business of growing, shipping and handling fresh fruits.

The association will be permanently organized next Saturday when the directors will be elected.

BUSINESS NEWS OF BUSY MARTS

California Issues for June Over Seven Million

Bond Sales at Large Reach New Totals for Month

Copper Market Feels Effect of Low Prices

Certification of bond issues as legal investments for savings banks in the State of California aggregated a total of $7,455,669 during the month of June of this year, as compared with a total of $7,777,000 during the corresponding month of 1922, according to a bulletin issued yesterday by John Franklin Johnson, Superintendent of Banks for the State of California.

Of the issues certified as legal investments for California savings banks, $4,812,000 were real estate first mortgages, totaling nine issues; $2,400,000 made up of two issues were public utility financing, while $243,669 were district bonds.

"Certification during June was largely of real estate bonds, which were investigated to the fullest extent by the State Banking Department," declared Johnson. "The State Banking Department is exhausting in each application for certification of bond issues every means at its disposal for determining the value of the security underlying the issue and suitability for certification as investments for California's savings banks.

"The large number of bond issues certified by the State Banking Department during the month of June reflects a great activity in practically all lines of development. Most of the issues are new money issues having for their purposes the further development of power in order to serve the increased requirements of the districts served by the electric companies. All of this indicates a great degree of development throughout the State.

"Among the issues certified last month there was an issue of Arizona Power Company, totaling $400,000, which money is to be used in further development of electric power in the neighboring State of Arizona. The State Banking Department is, in my opinion, more than justified in seeking to assist its bordering States in developing their natural resources, because continued development in the hinterlands of California means ultimately still greater development for California."

The following are issues certified by the State Banking Department during the month of June:

COPPERS ARE WEAK

With copper metal failing to break consistently over the 15-cent mark, and with the market turning sluggish through the instant additions to the salable supply whenever the price threatens to rise, the stock market is anticipating a further integration in the copper industry to regulate the supply and effect economies in operation. At 15 cents, there is not much profit for the average producer, unless large-scale operations, as in the case of the Anaconda - American Brass - Chile group, permit a downward revision in the cost per pound of placing the metal on the market.

In addition to the Anaconda combination, the industry has passed further into the control of centralized interests with the recent merger of Kennecott, Utah and Chile. The next step, according to market gossip, will be the integration of the porphyry companies in Arizona, and perhaps all of the copper companies in New Mexico and Northern Mexico. Calument & Hecla, recently listed on the New York Exchange, may become, it is said, the central figure in the combination, although it is believed that the final grouping will include only those producers operating in the Southwest. Companies mentioned in connection are Calumet & Arizona, Chino, Grene-Cananea, Inspiration, Magma, New Cornelia and Phelps Dodge. Another arrangement unites Ray, Chino, Inspiration and Magma, with the possible inclusion of New Cornelia, Calumet & Arizona, and Greene Cananea.

The corporation structure of the proposed merger is a matter of conjecture at this time. Stock market gossip is unable to state whether the combination will be realized through the creation of a new holding company, and the exchange of shares on agreed ratios by the participants, or whether some one of the combining companies will enlarge its capitalization and absorb the others.

Approximately 55 per cent of the production of the American mines is from independent companies, and the copper interests believe, it is said, that stabilization of the market can be obtained if the independents are properly co-ordinated. They are not attempting to monopolize the industry, or to fix monopoly prices, for it is declared that copper is a world commodity, and subject to world demand. Elimination of the destructive fluctuations in the price of the metal is possible, however, and acting on this belief, the stock market expects to see the Southwestern companies combined in a third gigantic copper consolidation.

Reports from Arizona indicate that sales are being maintained well, remaining ahead of consumption in the first five months of the year, and below only in the month of June. July sales are expected to decline under production, but in the following months, the market is forecast to show a more animated movement.

DAILY TRADE TALK

California Fruit Growers' Exchange: What It Is and How It Functions

The California Fruit Growers' Exchange is the most conspicuous example of success in the co-operative amrketing history of trade. It stands out, head and shoulders, above all other efforts, and from time to time representatives from practically every foreign agricultural country have been sent to Los Angeles to study the methods of this organization.

For over twenty-five years, this association has successfully marketed the citrus crop of the California growers. Previous to 1893, the orange and lemon industry was in a very uncertain condition. The fruit was carelessly handled, irregularly graded, packed in a haphazard way and shipped to this and that market without any intelligent plan of distribution. Under these conditions, the fruit kept badly, markets were alternately over and under supplied, prices to the consumer high and the risks such as to make the orange and lemon business a hazardous undertaking for fruit merchants and growers alike.

To correct this condition, packing-houses were built by associations of growers in the different districts to prepare the fruit for market, and arrangements made to market it through a central organization, which resulted in the formation of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange. Considerable savings were made both in the cost of packing and marketing, and through their organizations the growers began to work out improved methods which largely eliminated the losses from decay and standardized the grades and packs. Further economies were brought about by co-operative purchasing of supplies.

The trade found it much more satisfactory to deal with a central body with representatives on the ground than to negotiate with many individual shippers who were possibly 2000 miles away. The jobber and retail merchant found that the fruit kept better, was more uniformly graded and more attractively packed—hence easier to sell—and that supplies were available with greater regularity.

The California Fruit Growers' Exchange is a nonprofit corporation, organized under the laws of California. Its function is to furnish marketing facilities for the district exchanges at a prorata share of the cost. The exchange places bonded agents in the principal markets of the United States and Canada, defines the duties of the agents and exercises supervision over them. It gathers information through them of conditions in each market, receives telegraphic advices of the sale of each car and furnishes the information every day in bulletin form to the local associations. It does not buy or sell fruit or any commodity, and exercises no control, either directly or indirectly, over sale or purchase.

Today the exchange is comprised of 197 separate associations or shippers, handling the fruit of over 8500 members, and has its own representatives in seventy-seven markets. Shipments in a normal year are ten times as large as when the organization was formed, and when growers believed a period of overproduction was being faced. During the past five years shipments have doubled, with an increased demand. Through extensive national advertising Sunkist has become a household word, and consumption of citrus fruits has been increased 80 per cent in the last ten years, or four times as rapidly as population.

The California navel crop is shipped from November to May, and the California Valencia orange is shipped from May to November. This means that one or the other of these two varieties is on the market every day in the year. The increasing importance of the citrus industry in California is reflected by the fact that during the past five years a total of 77,000,000 boxes of oranges were shipped, which sold for $282,400,000. Of the total production of oranges in California 87 per cent are grown around Los Angeles. In this territory the Fullerton-Placentia district has long been noted for the high quality of its fruit and ideal climatic conditions.

The Placentia Orange Growers' Association has recently sold $300,000 first mortgage 6½ per cent serial gold bonds, due 1924 to 1933, to the Citizens' National Bank, to construct two precooling plants, which are practically completed. In the past the association loaded all fruit in the cars at a normal temperature, and paid the railroad company for icing the cars at a flat rate of 20 cents a box. In addition to this method being costly, it was found that without precooling the fruit reached the Atlantic seaboard in too warm a state. To correct this condition and at the same time effect a considerable saving to its members, the association decided to build precooling plants in connection with both its Placentia and Fullerton packing-houses. The principal and interest of this issue, amounting to $49,500 a year, is paid from gross receipts from sale of oranges before distribution to the growers. This distribution has amounted to an average of $1,609,999 a year for the past five years, or over thirty-two times these charges.

WE CRAVE NEW TRADE RECORDS

An American Obsession is to Break Something

Farm Congress Plans to Curb "Sick" Wheat Belt

Government Price Fixing is Based on False Theory

BY ARTHUR D. WELTON
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]
[Copyright, 1923, Public Ledger.]

CHICAGO, July 16.—The lull in business is general. By lull is meant a degree of business activity somewhat below that when new records for production, transportation and sales were being made. There are degrees of prosperity. A safe and satisfactory degree may be something below the peak established by record-breaking performances.

The mania for new records is an American obsession. A horse race or a man race or a boat race is rated as undramatic and flat unless a record is broken. The wheat or cotton crop is measured by other wheat and cotton crops, and expressions of disgust were heard when it was announced the Leviathan was out to carry passengers and cargo and not to set a new trans-Atlantic record.

Fine performances, steady crops and regular and safe voyages are more important than new records. Violent business fluctuations are a product of broken records. The consumer will note with satisfaction the statements that the price of coal has been reduced, that prices for other things have softened and the general trend is not upward. The upward trend brings bonuses for quick delivery and is disconcerting to orderly business. It will be a happy condition if the rush is over and there is an adjustment on a safe level for both production and prices. Bookings of orders by the steel concerns have fallen off, but the steel makers are content; they have a chance to catch up.

FARM CONGRESS

Farmers, and particularly wheat growers, are not happy. All the organized forces are struggling with that problem. The farm-credit situation has been remedied so far as new credit machinery, supposed to be particularly adapted to that purpose, can remedy it. Plans for co-operative marketing are under way. The grain speculator has been driven off, and the campaign to increase the consumption of wheat products is being organized.

The International Farm Congress, through its board of governors, says that none of these things will avail. "It was necessary," writes W. I. Drummond, managing director, "for the legislative, political and new economic ideas to run their course before putting on anything like this. They have done so and failed."

"The new program of the Farm Congress," he says, "from now on will be given proper attention. If we can get off to a good start this fall the effect will be felt at once, for a large part of the trouble is due to a state of mind, though not all, by any means."

The "program" is stated thus:

"The wheat belt is sick. Its farmers are depressed by the low comparative price of their chief product and by the increased production and marketing costs. The reaction upon all agriculture, and consequently upon all business interests, is unmistakably bad. This reaction extends far beyond the confines of the wheat belt proper. It constitutes a national problem—economic, industrial and political.

"Wheat is quite generally considered as the 'key crop'—the standard by which agricultural prosperity and indirectly the general business welfare are measured. The situation calls for the earnest consideration of all wheat growers and of all business interests.

"The question is, what is the matter with wheat?

"The answer is obvious. There is too much wheat. The agriculture of the wheat belt has drifted dangerously toward a one-crop basis. It is out of balance. There are too many farms that bring in little revenue except the annual check for the wheat crop. The very soil is tired, and its tillers are worn out by the hopeless effort to

Good Management— An Essential Safeguard

THE records of a company's business over a period of years is an accurate index to the type of management of that company. As an investor in the securities issued by a company you can judge the management through a careful consideration of the capitalization in relation to the earnings of the company.

Blyth, Witter & Co. Recommended Security

In the case of the San Diego Consolidated Gas and Electric Company the statement of earnings and expenses shows that net earnings are over twice the annual charges on the entire debt. To go one step further, the management of this company can show a perfect record of dividend payments on all preferred stock of the company ever outstanding, and preferred stock dividends, as you know, follows bond interest.

We are offering First and Refunding Mortgage 6% Gold Bonds, Series "C" of the San Diego Consolidated Gas and Electric Company attractively priced to yield about 6.10%. Send for descriptive circular.

BOND QUOTATIONS

FIRM PRICES

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, July 16.—High-grade investment bonds continued firm in today's dull bond market, and net changes among the more speculative issues were generally unimportant.

United States government bonds eased slightly with the exception of the tax exempt 3½s, which improved 1-32 of a point. Foreign government bonds moved irregularly within a narrow trading limit.

Railroad mortgages were quiet, an advance of 2 points by New York, Westchester and Boston 4½s and 1 1-8 by Frisco adjustment 6s being the only outstanding changes. Industrial liens recorded mixed price movements. Virginia-Carolina Chemical 7½s, with warrants, and Punta Alegre Sugar 7s each gained 1½ points and International Mercantile Marine 6s moved up 2½ points. Cerro de Pasco Copper 8s dropped 1½ and Armour 4½s were off a point.

Total sales, par value, were $5,979,000.

METAL MARKETS

Daily Review

CLEVELAND, July 16.—Daily Metal Trade today says: "Pig iron sales while somewhat greater in the Middle West, are in small lots, melters generally continuing indifferent and the tendency of prices downward. Southern iron is quiet but firm. Valley furnace in activity increased. Coke is weak and production sagging. Steel output proceeds at a high rate, valley mills, both corporation and independent, operating at near-capacity. Discounting European conditions coupled with light buying on this side tend to weaken the metal market. Electrolytic copper is 14.75 cents, delivered. Tin strairs, 28 cents; zinc, St. Louis, 6.15 cents; lead, St. Louis, 5.85 cents."

NEW YORK CURB

Oils Lose Ground

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, July 16.—After opening irregularly, short selling operations pushed prices lower on the New York Curb Market today, but the later transactions generally were slightly higher.

Oil company shares moved in a conflicting fashion, several of the high-priced stocks registering sharp losses. In this category were Prairie Oil and Gas, off 6 points, and Standard of Nebraska, off 5 points. Other changes in this group were confined to large fractions or almost a point. A group of 3½ points by Gillette Safety Razor and a small gain by Glen Aiden Coal were the only outstanding changes among the industrials. A feature of the trading was the admission of a subscription right to the Reading Coal Company. The rights opened at 17⅛, yielded to 14½ and then rallied to 17⅛, where they closed.

Mining stocks moved irregularly within a narrow area.

REASSURING THE PUBLIC CONFIDENCE

Bear Movement Brings Out Numerous Arguments for a Sound Basis

Moody's Weekly Review of Financial Conditions in its current issue says, in part:

"Numerous arguments that business is in a sound condition spring no doubt from the feeling on the part of financiers that the public needs to be reassured. Such reassurance, however, in order to be convincing will probably have to come ultimately from lower operating ratios, more moderate labor costs, firmer commodity prices, a better agricultural outlook, more dependable margins of profit, and greater stability in the prices of securities. The argument that counts with the typical investor and business man is the one that shows in his own balance sheet.

"In the past whenever a bear movement comparable to this one followed several months of so-called 'distribution'—no bull movement subsequently began until after the stock market had dragged on bottom some time, and trade conditions had been placed upon a sounder footing. These tokens of soundness invariably were: A moderate labor surplus; an elimination of extravagance denoted by smaller freight-car loadings and reduced steel consumption; a higher general degree of insolvency denoted by numerous failures of weak concerns, and a moderate amount of general liquidation indicated by a fall in bank exchanges.

"The average price of capital, or yield of new investment issues for the second quarter of 1923 was 6.42 per cent, against 6.05 per cent for the first quarter, and 7.24 per cent for the first half of 1921. We look for a moderate further rise in the price of capital running the greater part of a year."

NARROW LIMITS IN COTTON TRANSACTIONS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, July 16.—Today's cotton futures market was weak in a rather quiet session. Liverpool's decline when an advance was due, prospects of showery weather relieving the dry hot spell in the western part of the belt, and the weakened technical position contributed to the setback here. Outside business continue small and local operators took advantage of the weather news. Initial quotations showed losses of 21 to 32 points and continued around this level throughout most of the session, last prices being about the worst at declines of 35 to 41 points net.

Spot cotton was quiet 45 points decline, 27.55 for middling upland.

Southern spot markets: Galveston, 27.25, 50 points decline; New Orleans, 27, 63 points decline; Norfolk, 27, 25 points decline; Augusta, 26.06, 69 points decline; Memphis, 27.25, 25 points decline; Houston, 27, 50 points decline; Little Rock, 27.25, 25 points decline.

Building A Great Los Angeles Industry BIGGER

TO meet the growing demand for its products, The IMPERIAL COTTON MILLS COMPANY of Los Angeles must double its present capacity.

The tremendous and immediate success of the first 20,000 spindle unit has proven Los Angeles to be the logical textile milling center of the West.

The Pacific Coast annually consumes over 150,000,000 yards of cotton cloths which are largely supplied from Eastern mills at high transportation cost. To serve this established market IMPERIAL COTTON MILLS COMPANY is manufacturing, from Imperial and Salt River Valley cotton, staple cloths which defy competition both in quality and price.

The mill's entire output of 14,000,000 yards per annum is entirely sold in advance. Over 500 persons are employed operating 20,000 spindles with nearly 600 looms. Yet present machinery and equipment can produce but a small percentage of the goods required in this immediate territory.

In order to provide for the new buildings, new equipment and necessary working capital to double mill production, the Company is now offering a limited portion of its

8% Cumulative Preferred Stock

Price $100 per share. Fully Paid and Non-assessible. Participating up to 12% with the Common Stock. Convertible into Common Stock at $125.

On the basis of present earnings, annual net profits from doubled production are estimated at more than 2½ times the amount necessary for annual cash dividends of 12% on all outstanding Preferred and Common Stock.

Every Southern California Investor will want to share in the large and dependable profits of this great local industry. Over $500,000 of Preferred Stock has been sold during the last five days. It is important that you call—or send name and address at once—for complete information. No obligation on your part.

MARKET REVIEW

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, July 16.—Sterling exchange and wheat were the center of speculative attention today and the former's liquidation which occurred in both directions served, possibly, to some more emphasize the uncertainty which beclouds the European situation. This happens just at the moment these markets appear to be tied closely together because of the fact that a pacification of the present unsettlement in Europe must be depended upon to develop before any great amount of buying for our surplus wheat supply may be expected. Of course, speculative considerations must be taken into account. There were sudden heavy offerings of both sterling and wheat made today by those who do not see an early clearing up of the foreign situation, particularly in view of Premier Poincare's speech on the reparations attitude. At any rate, the decline in sterling was 1½ cents to the pound, in wheat, from 1½ to 1⅝ cents to the bushel, and both markets reflected extreme weakness over the immediate future. Incidentally, all wheat options, even for deliveries as far forward as September, now are definitely below $1 per bushel.

It can hardly be said that there was any over-Sunday change in the international situation despite conclusive efforts to make it appear so. The speech of the French Premier was widely construed as merely a reiteration of the French determination to collect reparations payments from Germany and to deviate in no way from the present policy of occupation of German territory until such payments are made. Unofficially there was haste to explain that the speech of the French Premier was not to be construed in the light of a rejoinder to the English Premier's declaration, made last week. Summed up it must be seen that these two speeches, closely as they have been followed in this country, have not changed the general situation one whit. How much Germany can pay, when she will pay, and in what coin, still is to be decided. Under present conditions and with so many of these problems still in the air, so to speak, it is small wonder that professional speculators for the decline are prone to take a pessimistic view of the immediate future and to sell on nervous and irregular markets.

The outstanding feature in the stock market was the fact that once more it disregarded the factors which acted as depressors of other markets. That, in fact, has been its chief characteristic for more than a week. Today's transactions were on an extremely narrow scale, the whole market, as a matter of fact having established another new low figure in point of turnover. But there was still quite evident the firm undertone which predominated during the latter part of last week and the quite apparent inability to buy stocks without putting them up, demonstrated in two or three of the market's most speculative vehicles.

Market Inactive

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, July 16.—Total sales in today's stock market fell below 300,000, the lowest record of the year. Net changes of the more important stocks were limited to fractions.

After opening lower on a drive by professional traders who used Premier Poincare's war memorial address on Sunday as an excuse for short selling, the market came very nearly to a standstill. Later, sales saw a gradual recovery until at the close most of the leaders were at levels only slightly lower than Saturday's final quotations.

Sugar company shares rallied moderately on a small advance in the price of the raw and refined product and a number of relatively minor stocks were consistently, if only slightly, higher on the day. These included Schulte, Cuyamel Fruit, Burns Brothers' "A," Eastman Kodak, Endicott-Johnson, Tidewater Oil, Foundation company and American water works.

Stuart-Warner, after dropping more than 2 points in the first hour, gradually strengthened and closed 1 5-8 higher. Dupont also rallied a point after an early period of heaviness.

Pierce Oil preferred climbed a point on announcement of a call to preferred stockholders to meet late this month to elect directors in accordance with a recent court decision. Alton B. Parker, counsel for the preferred stockholders' committee expressed the belief that the company is past its difficulties, although new financing is contemplated for an early date.

Corn Products, Crucible and Gulf States steels, Lima Locomotive, General Electric and Northern Pacific were among the shares which declined 1 to 1½ points during the day.

Call money opened at 5 per cent but eased to 4½ per cent shortly before noon. Time money held at 5 1-4 per cent in a dull market and the commercial paper market also was inactive without change in rates.

The foreign exchange market was lower, reflecting the direct influence of uncertainty over the European tangle. Demand sterling declined 1 1-8 cent to 4.59 1-4 French francs were off 2⅛ at 5.84 cents and German marks yielded fractionally to .0004 1-4.

Days total sales 276,000 shares.

Twenty industrials averaged 89.22; net loss .18. High 1923, 105.38; Low 87.64.

Twenty railroads averaged 79.16; net loss .04.

and municipal bond market in June is clearly reflected in the figures compiled by The Daily Bond Buyer of New York comparing total sales of such securities over a period of years. In June total new issues reached $160,070,166, which is not only greater by 50 per cent than any earlier month this year, but is many millions of dollars in excess of the monthly totals for every month last year with the exception of June when bonds aggregating $169,994,241 were sold.

The large volume of borrowing is partially explained by the Soldiers' Bonus loans arranged by Kansas and Iowa which amounted to $47,000,000. Numerous large cities and counties, several other States and special districts helped to make up the balance.

The following table shows total output of State and municipal bonds in June and the six months' period ended June 30th for ten years:

	June	Six months ending June 30
1923	$160,070,166	$939,198,478
1922	169,994,241	734,403,276
1921	123,976,321	568,092,811
1920	45,031,274	248,297,961
1919	92,538,475	309,885,142
1918	21,306,792	134,173,064
1917	30,411,009	215,151,073
1916	67,181,109	276,496,629
1915	104,687,010	317,156,056
1914	40,250,140	318,281,621

AUTOMOBILE SALES

Sales of automobiles in Southern California in June are reported by the Automobile Publishing Company, as amounting to 11,979 cars, an increase of 61 per cent over the same month of 1922, but a decrease of 7 per cent from the month of May, 1923. The distribution of motor trucks totaled 1227, representing a gain of 39 per cent over the same month in 1922, and a loss of 8 per cent from May, 1923.

LAND BONDS

William R. Staats Company is offering $500,000 Associated Almonds Growers of Paso Robles 6½ per cent first closed mortgage bonds due 1932, at 100 and accrued interest to yield 6½ per cent. The bonds are secured by a direct first mortgage, and by depositing 6 per cent first mortgages and contracts of sale with the trustee, on approximately 11,710 acres of land in Monterey and San Luis Obispo counties, of which 9700 acres are in growing almond and prune orchards, from one to four years old. The orchards have been sold in ten or more acre tracts to about 700 buyers for a total of approximately $4,579,120. The purpose of the issue is to clear off all land purchase obligations.

SUGAR EARNINGS

The net income in 1922 of the Amalgamated Sugar Co., amounted to $818,914, accoring to advices received by Council, Moller & Co., Inc., investment bankers. Interest requirements of $271,250 on the first mortgage 7 per cent bonds are exceeded 3.3 times.

WE CRAVE NEW TRADE RECORDS

make more acres of wheat spell more dollars.

"The time has definitely passed when wheat can carry all the overhead of an average American farm, supply the family of the owner or renter with money to buy the food supplies for the year and pay the cost of its own production and marketing. That time may never come again—certainly it will not until the United States ceases to be a wheat-exporting nation, for the domestic price is based on the world price, and protective measures are proving at best only partially effective.

"The American farmer cannot successfully compete with the cheap land, cheap labor and water transportation of other countries, unless he can take a large part of the cost of operating his farm off of his wheat crop.

VARIETY OF PRODUCTS

"Hope of relief through governmental price-fixing is based on a false theory. Nothing can come of it. The movement to stimulate consumption may bring some results, but there is a possibility that it will also encourage additional production, thus offsetting any good that it may do. The expansion of credit facilities, while proper and useful, will not of itself correct the trouble, nor will any legislative enactments.

"The fundamental trouble must be corrected. Nothing else will be effective or prevent periodic recurrences of the present situation. There is no necessity for experiments of any sort—economic, political or by way of trying out new crops or new farming practices. It has been abundantly proved that this very region to which the conditions under discussion apply is susceptible to a safe system of crop diversification and livestock production.

"All that is needed is a program, generally applied, which will bring in revenue every week in the year to supplement the wheat check. Poultry, dairy cows and other livestock will do this. Such a program will provide twelve months' productive employment on the farm, instead of two. The resultant lessened production of wheat will cause an increase in price, in conformity with the law of supply and demand."

BY HOWARD C. KEGLEY

For two consecutive weeks the total production at Huntington Beach has shown a decline. To the bystander it might appear that the production curve is bending downward, but such is not the case, according to reports from operators at that place.

They assert that the decline is due to lack of pipeline facilities. The facilities for disposing of oil there are said to amount to about 120,000 barrels per day. All of the big wells and many of the smaller ones are said to be pinched down in keeping with the curtailment program.

The tanks are filled, and it is reported that months may elapse before plans for six new 8-inch pipe lines can be carried out In the meantime some of the big wells, like the Shell's Ashton, which could do as much as 6000 barrels a day, are held down to 2000 a day.

Operators assert that at the present rate of development in Huntington Beach the potential possibilities of the field should not be exhausted in less than twenty years.

Abandon Building Plan

Abandonment of the widely heralded plan to erect a twelve-story oil exchange building at Third street and American avenue in Long Beach, and to tenant the proposed building under the "own-your-own-office" plan, has been announced by H. R. Earp, president of the Oil Exchange Building Association. Persons who had already contracted for office space in the building will have their money refunded within the next few days it is announced.

The plan was abandoned after it was definitely decided to sell the site for the new twelve-story home of the Long Beach branch of the Bank of Italy, which recently acquired the American Savings Bank and the Golden State Bank at this place.

Another Good Producer.

Another "deep sand" well in the Signal Hill field has been added to the list of producers. It is the Poole-Hawkins No. 2, owned by the Bona Fide Oil Company. It came in from a depth of 4870 feet, flowing 4000 barrels. Reports say that the production is free from water.

The Poole-Hawkins No.2 is on the famous "30-foot strip" running east and west between Orange avenue and Brayton street, in the Lovelady Pool district. It was drilled by the Rogers and Edwards Drilling Company.

Check Water Trouble

The water trouble which has been causing oil developers in the Santa Fe Springs section a great amount of worry has been solved by at least two companies and the fact has become known that so far water has not penetrated the deep Meyer sand in either the west or the southeast portions of the field.

The Russell Petroleum Company's well No. 1 was for a while making 30 per cent water. Investigations were made and analysis of the water showed that "top water" was causing the trouble. The drillers stated that the cementing job at the deep sand, while complete at the time of the test, later allowed water to enter at the base.

This will be taken care of when the new cement has been placed, the drillers think. The well will be shut down while the new cementing job is being completed, it is understood.

A split casing is said to have been the cause of the large amount of water in the Boeseke Wardman well, which offsets the Russell. This too will be repaired at once.

Th Ambassador Syndicate well on the Baker lease is now flowing clean after a split casing replacement, and another shutoff job.

No Well at Compton

Reports in circulation yesterday were to the effect that the Union Oil Company had brought in its wildcat Callender well at Compton as a 3000-barrel producer.

Inquiry at the offices of the Union developed the information that the hole is down somewhere near 3500 feet, but that nothing but water—and lots of it—has materialized. The well is being made ready for another cement job.

Gasser Subsides

After spouting sand, mud and water for 124 hours, the Union Oil Company's Community No. 11 well sanded up yesterday. The drilling crew now faces the task of removing the tangled and twisted drill pipe from the well.

The steel derrick is still standing and Union Oil Company officials say that it will remain Crews of workmen began to clean up the surrounding territory late yesterday.

One track of the flooded Pacific Electric right of way has been cleared, and officials say the others will be opened in a day or two. A survey of damage done by the gasser has been started.

As soon as the gasser subsided the Shell company resumed work on its Dobyns No. 2, adjacent to the gasser. It will probably be brought in within the next three or four days. The Dobyns is the deepest well in the Signal Hill field. Its depth is 5450 feet.

DAILY MARKET LETTER OF THE NEW YORK COMMERCIAL

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, July 16.—Demand for 1922 crop raisins of the Sun-Maid Raisin Growers' carryover was active today, the association's local office reporting that the trade was responding readily to the offerings at the reduction named Sunday. The buying was about evenly divided between chain stores and wholesale grocers, showing that both are in need of raisins.

Sales of package goods have led thus far but buying of bulk raisins is improving. The fifteen-ounce package is now a 15c and two for 25c retail seller and at these new low prices sales have picked up considerably.

There were no developments on interest in the market for other dried fruits, trading being dull with the market inclined to easiness.

CANNED GOODS

Maine sardine canners are gradually withdrawing from the market as the shortage of fish for canning becomes more marked. Several of the leading packers have now withdrawn entirely while others are accepting business at the going prices subject only to shipment when packed. Many of the canners are already reported to be oversold and those that are in this predicament are turning down all business offered, it is said. The market has recently advanced on practically all grades and canners are holding firm. Some hope is held out for an increased supply during the latter part of next month when the summer school is expected to appear. However, the run to date has been disappointing.

There was a strong tone reported in the tomato market. Southern canners are cleared of ones, threes and tens and only limited supplies of standard twos are still available.

CITRUS FRUITS

California Valencia oranges were slightly lower today at the sale of fifty-six cars. There was a good demand for the fruit but prices eased off somewhat, the range being $2.40 to $7.65 per box. The market for California lemons was unchanged during the day, two cars being sold at $3.25 to $7 per box. A small quantity of California grapefruit was sold at $1.15 to $2.05, half boxes selling at $1.70.

SUGAR

A stronger position prevailed in the raw sugar market at the opening of the week and while there was not any special activity, consumers were paying slightly higher prices for their needs. Sales included 4250 bags of Cubas for July loadings to an operator at 5.15c f. o. b., while 39,000 bags of Porto Ricans were sold at 7.03c, equal to 5 1-4c, cost and freight for Cubas. Another sale occurred toward the close when 7000 bags of Cubas sold for the first week of August shipment at 5 1-4c cost and freight. There were rumors of some business after the close at 5 3-8c cost and freight but confirmation of business was lacking.

The offerings were scare as the day ended, with the price trend decidedly upward. A cable was received from Java stating that receipts were decreasing owing to the heavy rains and that the market position was firm.

A fair buying movement was noted in granulated sugars and with the exception of two local refiners the closing basis was 8.75 cents. One interest was offering at 8.65 cents and the other at 9 cents.

Raw sugar futures underwent a sharp upward revision today, activity increasing with the grain. The advance in all positions was inspired by the announcement of a sharp advance in refined and this sent in a number of buying orders for future positions. September sold as low as 5 cents and as high as 5.34 cents, while December jumped from 4.41 to 4.68 cents, with business at both extremes. The close was very near the high of the day.

COFFEE

Interest in the coffee future market was at a minimum. At the opening prices were 3 to 14 points net lower, but there was not enough activity to test the market out. The increased demand and the larger sales seemed to influence operations. There was little news from the primary sources. In fact, Brazil was rather weak and the reports of cold weather in sections of the coffee belt received slight attention. It was realized that moderately cold weather at this season was not a factor, although a freeze could do considerable damage. Santos futures opened at a decline from the close of Friday of 75 to 450 reis lower. Santos exchange in London came 1-64d lower and Rio exchange was down 1-32d. In the local spo tmarket Rio 7s closed at 11 cents and Santos 4s at 12 3-4 to 13¼ cents. March was high at 7.03 cents and low at 7 cents, while May sold at 7.02 cents. Some lots of September changed hands at 7.51 and 7.55 cents. December sold at 7 to 7.05 cents.

The settling basis was 4 to 15 points net lower.

TEA, RICE

While the tea market today continued quiet on the general line, there was a fair volume of small lot orders reported. Stocks of teas offering on the spot position are not light and because of this trade is looking for a continuation of the present firm market, with a possible light recession in the fall when supplies become more liberal.

Demand for fancy grades of rice was reported as fair and the market was showing a firm undertone. The market for choice grades was also firm. Demand for low-grade rice, however, is quiet and the market is in a disturbed condition, with an easy undertone prevailing.

BEANS

The bean market is in an unsatisfactory state. The declines noted last week on several of the leading varieties failed to increase the demand and with free supplies in all quarters buyers can almost dictate their own terms. Imported beans in fair demand mainly from out-of-town canners. White kidney weak as quoted. California lima beans are urged for sale at fractional concessions.

BUTTER

The butter market is beginning to show signs of weakness. While arrivals were not considered large enough stock was carried over from last week to cause a weak and unsettled feeling and with buyers holding off for developments a decline of ½ cent per pound was established on nearly all grades.

Call sales were: Six 25-tub lots creamery extras at 38½ per pound; no sales were made for future delivery, as speculators seemed to be off the market at the moment.

EGGS

Eggs opened in a somewhat unsettled state. While the arrivals were not large, supplies from previous accumulations were more than ample for actual needs and buyers seem to control the situation.

Only one sale was recorded on the call, namely 50 cases f.g. Indiana seconds at 22 cents per dozen.

Pacific Coast white extra 38 to 40 cents; white extra firsts, 35½ to 37 cents; firsts, 32 to 35 cents.

COPPER

The domestic copper market is firm and unchanged at 14¾ cents a pound for electrolytic delivered despite the resumption of the downward movement in prices abroad. The export market is a little weaker, however, and was quotable from 14⅝ to 14⅝ cents f.a.s. New York. Most of the large producers are still asking 15 cents for the metal.

London cables standard as declining 12s 6d to £64, 17s 6d for spot and £65, 12s 6d for futures, while electrolytic dropped 10s to £72, 10s for spot and £74 for futures.

ZINC

The zinc market holds fairly firm at 6.20 cents St. Louis for spot and July with futures still commanding premiums ranging from 5 to 10 points.

London continues the downward movement and spot declined 2s 6d to £68 12s 6d while futures were off 7s 6d to the same quotation.

Stocks of slab zinc in the United States as of June 30 totaled 17,173 tons, an increase of 4154 tons, according to the American Zinc Institute. This is about the same increase as noted a month previous.

OILS

Though the latest drop in crude oil prices has not yet extended to the tank wagon market for refined goods it is generally expected in oil trade circles that the near future will see a lower scale of values. Export goods have already been slashed considerably and it is quite probable that domestic markets will follow in line when the big refining and distributing interests can come to an agreement on just how much may be clipped off of prices without too greatly weakening the entire structure.

The present state of the local refined oil market is this: Tank wagon gasoline is quoted at 21½ cents a gallon, but this compares with a wholesale bulk price of 14½ cents or less. Much California gasoline is coming into the market every day.

BONDS

There was little sign in the bond market that the improvement noted at the end of last week might continue. Liberty Bonds were steady. There was little activity in any branch of the market and what trading was in evidence was well distributed.

In foreign issues the volume of business transacted was small and the price changes relatively insignificant.

All issues remained within a fraction of a point of Saturday closing.

The speculative railroad bonds varied little, although when the stock market was at its worst period this morning, certain of the members of the group sagged off fractionally from last week's finish.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, July 16.—All deliveries of wheat closed under $1 for the first time on the crop and the lowest for the month of July since 1914, losing all of the war bulge. July dropped to 96¾, September to 98¾ and December to 99¾, with the close on a small rally with July 97, September 96⅝@96¼ and December 99⅝@99⅝, net losses for the day being 1¼@1⅝, with July leading. Coarse grains showed considerable resistance to pressure, despite the break in wheat, even losing only ⅛@¼, and oats ⅛@⅜. All deliveries of rye sold at a new low on the crop and closed at a loss of ⅛@⅜.

A material increase in country sales of new wheat to arrive with a lack of aggressive buying was largely responsible for the break. It was estimated that local handlers bought around 500,000 bushels for the day and there was persistent scattered hedging sales in evidence from start to finish. Southwestern producers showed no disposition to sell, and a conference was held at Wichita, Kas., during the day to consider the general situation.

Houses with eastern connections were moderate buyers on the break, but were unable to bring about more than a fractional rally. Bust reports from the Northwest and intimations that a good export business had been done at the seaboard had little effect on the market after values started downward, nor did a decrease of 1,737,000 bushels in the visible supply.

December corn showed pronounced strength as the result of free buying by commission houses, part of which was against sales of September and at one time it got fractionally above the close of Saturday. The difference narrowed slightly with July at the last 83¼, September 74¾ and December 63¾, all deliveries recovering ⅛ from the inside figures of the day. Scattered rains and showers were reported in parts of Texas and Oklahoma over Sunday and had some effect. July continues to act tight and was easily influenced. Cash premiums were firmer on yellow. Receipts, 229 cars.

Deferred deliveries of oats are selling below the average at this season of the past twenty years, with December the lowest with one exception in over fifteen years. July finished at 38¼; September at 34@34⅛, and December 35⅝. Harvest continues to make active progress, but so far there has been practically no grain sold to arrive. Visible supply is over 34,000,000 bushels less than at this season last year. Receipts, 87 cars.

Rye market was influenced largely by the action of wheat and declined readily to a new low on the crop, and are the lowest at this season since 1914 when cash sold down to 85. Unfavorable reports from the Northwest had no effect. Export interest light.

FIND RICH CHICAGOAN DEAD

Decomposed Body Located in Newly Leased Home; Police Unable to Ascertain Death Cause

An unpretentious desk in Room 426, Title Insurance Building, is expected to solve the mystery death of Redman L. Patterson, ostensibly a wealthy Chicago businessman, whose badly decomposed body was found by Detective Lieutenants Oker and Craig in a bedroom at 846 North Ardmore avenue late yesterday afternoon.

Patterson was seen entering his fashionable Hollywood home for the last time four or five days ago. Neighbors missing the man, informed Miss Lois Royner, who leased the dwelling to Patterson on the 9th inst.

Miss Royner visited the Hollywood police station and requested that officers be assigned to accompany her and make an investigation.

Detectives found the door locked and all windows securely fastened. They forced an entry and found Patterson's fully clad body lying face down on the floor.

SLEEPING POWDER FOUND

Suspecting suicide or a probable murder the officers ransacked the room, but failed to find any weapon, poison or clew in support of either theory, they say. A small vial of sleeping tablets, such as are procurable at any drug store, was found, but its contents were intact even to a small cotton plug inside its metal cap.

In the dead man's pockets were found $50 in bills, a watch and membership cards showing him to be affiliated with the Odd Fellows, the Elks and Masonic orders. One of the cards showed that he was a Shriner from a temple at Tylor, Tex.

In Patteson's inside coat pocket was a bank book crediting him with a deposit of $1000 at a Los Angebank on June 22, the date which officers believe marked his arrival in this city, for until he leased the house from Miss Roynet they say he was a guest at the Ambassador.

Other than the cards showing his membership in fraternal organizations, there was no correspondence found on his person, which would give an inkling of either his business connections or his relatives.

The house was devoid of baggage, but a spare suit of clothes was found hanging in a wardrobe. Upon this fact hinges the foul play theory which, officers state, they have not abandoned. They regard it as strange that a man of such evident means did not possess as much as a spare shirt or a change of underclothing.

Detective Craig believes Patterson met his death on or about the 12th inst., since early editions of morning papers of that date, which evidently had been read, were found in the room.

Interrogation of persons living in dwellings adjacent to the one in which Patterson's body was found, failed to give the police information of value. One person said he was awaiting his wife's arrival from Chicago, while another stated that Mrs. Patterson was suing for divorce.

Others declared Patterson was last seen entering the house the day he leased it, the 9th inst., from Miss Royner.

All were emphatic in denying that the dead man had received visitors since his occupancy.

DESK TO BE OPENED

At a late hour last night officers were still endeavoring to ascertain just what was the nature of Patterson's business here and the reason for his rental of office space in the Title Insurance Building on has arrival here the latter part of last month.

Detectives will pry the dead man's desk open early today in the hope that it may contain a clew as to the whereabouts of his family.

The body was removed to Leroy Bagley's mortuary in Hollywood. A Coroner's inquest will be scheduled after today's search of Patterson's desk.

ROBBED OF MONEY AND CAR NEAR LANKERSHIM

It cost $20 to take a little ride in the cool of the evening, according to a report made by Ray Durke of Lankershim to the Sheriff's office yesterday. Durke said he was riding in his machine with a Miss Zeller on the highway near Lankershim when a masked man stepped out from the shadows, ordered him to "stick 'em up" and relieved him of $20 in cash and his machine. The machine was found a short way down the road.

INDUSTRY TREKS TO LOS ANGELES

Forty-nine New Plants Locate Here in June

Wide Range of Activities is Shown by Report

Great Railroads Plan Big Development Here

Forty-nine new industrial plants located in Los Angeles during June, according to the report of the industrial department of the Chamber of Commerce which has just been released. The report indicates that the new factories represent a wide range of industries and that the number of products being produced locally is augmented by the advent of the new concerns.

Two of the most significant items listed in the report, according to A. G. Arnoll, manager of the industrial department, are the steps taken by the Santa Fe and the Tucson, Phoenix and Tidewater railways. The former has purchased 160 acres of land four miles south of Inglewood and will develop the property as an industrial district.

The latter carrier has announced that the ultimate terminus of its lines in the West is Los Angeles, according to the report. It has just been granted a franchise to build its system in Phoenix. The Tidewater line is important to the industrial future of the city, the report sets forth, because it taps a rich mineral district.

OTHER ACTIVITIES

Among the other significant activities of June were the organization and development of the Western Glass Company. This $1,000,000 concern is the first to be formed locally for the purpose of making plate glass. It is to have its plant at Torrance.

Significant industrial expansion during June includes the advent into the local field of the Mueller Plumbing Fixture Manufacturing Company; William Volker, oil cloth and linoleum; the Tarkio Molasses Feed Company; the Peerless centrifugal pump; the White Flushing Valve Company; Oakley varnish manufacturing concern, H. D. Roosen, lithographic ink; the Acme White Lead and Color Works; Globe Soap Company, the Principal Pictures Company and the Austin Construction Company.

One of the outstanding industrial undertakings of the month was the purchase of a site for the $2,500,000 plant of the Pacific Steel Company. This company has acquired property for its plants in the harbor district.

IMPORTANT DEVELOPMENTS

One-Day Bride Asks Freedom Blaming Drink

Anna Mae Coyne Seymour filed suit yesterday for the annulment of her one-day marriage to Arthur V. Seymour on the grounds that the New Year's celebration she attended just before the wedding was so hectic she did not know what she was doing when she became a wife.

She says she married her husband on January 1, last, and left him the same day. The marriage, she asserts, came after a somewhat exciting party on the night of December 31.

During this party, she says, she was offered a drink by her prospective husband, but refused it on the grounds that she was not feeling well. Seymour told her, she declares, that if she would take a drink she would feel much better. She accepted the drink, but instead of it making her feel better, it made her intoxicated, she asserts.

While still intoxicated, she says, she was taken to Santa Ana and forced into marriage. The same day he brought her back to her parents' home and left her there, the wife states. Attorney John W. Luter prepared the complaint.

ROMANCE BLOOMS IN SICK ROOM

Lonesome Club to Lose Deputy Dewar, Who Weds Child's Nurse Today

A romance that began at the hospital cot of a child robbed the Lonesome Club of the Sheriff's office of one of its charter members yesterday when Deputy Sheriff Dewar obtained a license to marry Marion McCluskey, his daughter's nurse.

Dewar, one of the best known peace officers in Southern California, has been identified with many of the leading criminal cases of the West. He will be remembered particularly by Clara Phillips.

Several months ago, Dewar's 13-year-old daughter, Helen, was taken seriously ill. She was sent to the Angelus Hospital and there the deputy met the nurse. Later, when the child improved, Dewar took the girl and the nurse on rides in the country. Then Miss McCluskey and her patient were sent to Deputy Sheriff Modie's ranch, near Acton, where Dewar went last night with the marriage license. The wedding will take place today in Lancaster. The honeymoon will be spent on the ranch.

Miss McCluskey gave her age as 23 years. Deputy Sheriff Dewar is 37 years old.

ASHES OF HUMAN ARE IDENTIFIED

Container Picked Up in Harbor Bore Remains of Milwaukee Woman

Identification of a small container of ashes found floating in Los Angeles Harbor Sunday as the remains of Mrs. Julie Belle Kerr, who died in West Allis, a suburb of Milwaukee, May 3, 1922, was reported to have been verified yesterday in Milwaukee by John Fay, her son-in-law. The container was discovered near the Globe Mills pier in the harbor where it had floated in the ocean. It was turned over to Los Angeles Harbor police, who gave it to the care of the Cleveland Undertaking Company, pending identification. Inside the can was a card with Mrs. Kerr's name on it and the name of a crematory.

The presence of the container in the water was explained by Fay, who said that soon after Mrs. Kerr's death her husband returned to California, the former home of his wife, and visited Los Angeles. It is believed that the husband took a trip a short distance into the ocean and consigned the ashes to the sea, believing the container would sink.

No advice had been received late yesterday from Milwaukee relative to the disposition of the ashes.

Medina, New York.—"I had a great deal of trouble such as women often have, and this affected my nerves. For over two years I suffered this way, then I read in the Buffalo Times' about Lydia E. I am very much better and feel justified in praising the Vegetable Compound to my friends and neighbors who suffer from anything of the kind."—Mrs. WM. H. ADKINS, 311 Erin Road, Medina, N. Y.

"THE PRE-VIEW" OUT TOMORROW

The Magazine is First of Its Kind Here

Profusely Illustrated in Rotogravure

Will be Issued Each Week by "The Times"

The initial issue of The Times' rotogravure film magazine, The Pre-View, the first publication of its kind to be written by disinterested experts in the city where 75 per cent of the nation's motion pictures are made, will be published tomorrow, the 18th inst. Later numbers will follow every Wednesday thereafter.

The Pre-View will live up to its name in that constructive news reviews of the more important forthcoming releases will appear in every issue. In addition, the new publication will be profusely illustrated in rotogravure and will contain accurate and picturesque accounts of the latest activities and developments of the industry.

NEW FILMS REVIEWED

Jean Goss Pola Negri's second American-made film, "The Cheat," comes with her world-wide success in "Passion" and other foreign pictures? An exclusive preview of her new production has been the basis of a colorful account of her latest American production. It will be the first issue of the Pre-View.

Then, since "The Spoilers" was made eight years ago, the great success has been considered a classic. How will it compare with the new Goldwyn version of the Rex Beach story? Tomorrow's Pre-View will tell what a film critic saw at a private showing of the new production.

"Greed—a New Star," is the engrossing tale of a story written around a new woman star of unusual beauty and dramatic power—friends of Buster Keaton's first full-length comedy, of a frothy love story starring Gloria Swanson, and of Baby Peggy's first Hal Roach feature picture, will appear in the Pre-View tomorrow.

SPECIAL ARTICLES IN ISSUE

Articles by Harry Carr, Cecil B. DeMille and Edwin Schallert will be published in the new film magazine, in addition to news of interest to exhibitors, producers and the public concerning photoplays planned and in the making. The Pre-View will be edited and published under the personal supervision of Hallett Abend. It will be more than a magazine of entertainment, for it will be active in forwarding the future growth of the country's largest single industry, particularly in encouraging the production of better pictures.

Copies of the Pre-View will be on sale at 10 cents a copy but it will be delivered without charge to all regular subscribers of The Times. Subscription to The Times (90 cents a month, by carrier) may be paid for by telephone or placed with any Times agent. Telephones: Main 8700 or 10231.

PLACES BLAME IN CRIME WAVE

Von KleinSmid Discusses Lawlessness

Birth Regulation is Urged as Remedy

Proposition is Individual, He Asserts

"These children should never have been born, and the sin of their birth is at the door of the United States, a sin for which the citizens of America, in general, will have to answer."

This was one of the striking sentences voiced by Dr. R. B. Von KleinSmid, president of the University of Southern California, in an address on "Crime," given yesterday at the Southern Branch of the State University. His criticism of the country's lack of proper birth regulation followed a description of a family composed of idiots and criminals.

"Such cases as this which I have cited are in evidence by the thousands all over the United States, and it is from such families that our criminal class, as we sometimes choose to call it, is largely recruited," said Mr. Von KleinSmid.

PERSONAL EQUATION

Confining his attention mainly to the question of crime in relationship to the personal equation, Dr. Von KleinSmid said that, accurately speaking, there is no criminal class, but that crime, perhaps even more than disease, is an individual proposition, and that criminals should be treated individually, just as patients are treated as individuals, even though afflicted with a common ailment.

While declaring that mentally sound, though willfully vicious persons do not deserve to "be handled with gloves," the speaker said that at least 50 per cent of the inmates of our reformatories and penal institutions are physically, mentally and morally defective, and he advocated the establishment of permanent institutions to care for incurable criminals.

"One mistaken notion of many persons is that the majority of criminals are the product of unsound social conditions," said Dr. Von KleinSmid. "While it is true that many of our customs and institutions are in need of reforms, the erroneous idea that society, in general, is responsible for the production of the average criminal, is responsible for the sentimental social attitude that finds expression in sending the condemned criminal violets for breakfast and a box of bon bons for dinner. Society howls for the arrest and conviction of one of society's foes but, following his conviction, society grows foolishly sentimental."

WORLD WAR'S PART

Dr. Von KleinSmid placed the World War as responsible to a great extent for the increase in crime, both in Europe and America, declaring "you cannot take 10,000,000 persons out of the world by violence and starvation without seriously impairing the social and moral fabric of all nations."

"We have been too slow in adopting the method introduced in Chicago many years ago, by which

INJUNCTION IS REFUSED RED LEADER

Wobbly Defense Chief Hits Snag in Attempt to Curb Officers

Presiding Judge Crail of the Superior Court yesterday denied the application of Alfred Cohn for a temporary injunction to restrain the police from raiding I.W.W. headquarters at First and Broadway. The hearing on the petition for a permanent injunction will be conducted Friday.

In denying the application for a temporary restraining order, Judge Crail indicated that the evidence on which the petition is based is insufficient. Deputy District-Attorney Hill represented the State at the hearing and Attorney Rickman the petitioner.

Cohn in the suit asserted he is the head of the department of defense of the I.W.W., a department of the Wobblies interested in raising funds for Wobbly members.

The suit was directed against Chief of Police Oaks, Dist.-Atty. Keyes, Sheriff Traeger and individual peace officers.

In his petition Cohn asserted that since passage of the Criminal Syndicalism Act in this State many I.W.W. members have been arrested and convicted and that some cases are pending appeal. He said his department of the Wobblies is interested only in raising funds for the men after their arrest and that when his work is interfered with by the police collection of funds to aid the Wobblies is halted.

FORTUNE IN GEMS FOUND AT CATALINA

Jewels Valued at $13,500 Are Returned to Owners; Rewards Given

Jewels valued at about $13,500 and lost at different times by two women on Catalina Island were recovered and returned to their owners today through efforts of Barney Holstead, City Marshal.

Mrs. E. L. Doheny, wife of the oil multimillionaire, while a guest at St. Catherine Hotel, lost a bag containing $12,500 in diamonds and other jewels. They were found by a man giving the name of William Rosen, who said he resided in Los Angeles. Rosen returned the bag to Mrs. Doheny and was given a $100 reward through Holstead.

Mrs. E. A. Featherstone lost a pin containing ninety-seven diamonds. It was valued at $1000. The pin was found by Frank Hurt, who was dancing with Miss Ryta Mock in the Casino. Hurt gave the pin to Miss Mock. She wore it around the piers for a week thinking the stones of little value. Through Holstead the pin was sent back to its owner.

Mrs. Featherstone sent a reward of $125 to Hurt.

FILM WORLD ON REVIEW

Seventy Thousand Spectators See Gorgeous Pageant Pass Through City Streets

Cheered by 70,000 persons packed like sardines along the line of march, the Motion Picture Exposition virtually moved downtown last night and arranged one of the most spectacular parades that ever has passed through Los Angeles' streets.

It was King Film "struttin' his stuff" in the capital of his kingdom. He was gorgeously attended by ladies and gentlemen in waiting, soldiers, personal guards in glittering uniforms and plumes, court jesters, high court dignitaries in powdered wigs, riding in big rumbling coaches and drawn by prancing steeds.

And befitting his great position, the King had his own sun, moon and stars along with him to light the way and to show off his brilliant entourage in dazzling splendor. These were the great sun arcs used in the film world and mounted on great trucks. Bathed in these great spot and flood lights, the monster parade glittered and sparkled in the night.

There were forty different units in the parade, which required more than an hour to pass a given point. It was a full hour in wonderland for the thousands who packed the downtown streets for blocks until it was difficult for the parade to pass. In fact, the great

HEARING OF STOCK PLAN COMPLETED

Junction Railway's Vernon Program Includes Laying of Spur Tracks

The hearing of the petition of the Los Angeles Junction Railway for permission to issue $1,000,000 in common stock and $250,000 in notes for the purpose of carrying out a huge development program at Vernon was concluded yesterday before Examiner Fankhauser of the State Railroad Commission.

The stock and the notes are to be sold at par and to bear 7 per cent interest, it was stated during the hearing. A portion of the funds to be raised in this manner are to be used in the purchase of forty-seven and three-tenths acres of land at Vernon. The land is to be used as a switching terminal in the development of a central manufacturing district at that city.

Construction of a junction railway to connect the tracks of the Southern Pacific, Santa Fe, Salt Lake and Pacific Electric roads and the laying of spur tracks from the switching terminal yards to industries which will be located in the district is also involved in the general plan, it was stated. The money remaining will be used for general development purposes.

The project, it is understood, has the backing of the Los Angeles and Chicago Union Stockyard interests and an investigation by engineers of the State commission to determine the value of the land to be acquired is expected.

The primary purpose of the entire plan is to establish a great industrial center at Vernon by affording connections with transcontinental railroads.

CHINESE BELLE WEDS

Mary June Ung Becomes Bride of Howard H. Quan

The pomp and ceremony of old China were foresworn last night for the less colorful rites of the Occident when Mary June Ung, one of the best-known girls in Chinatown, and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kim Hing Ung, was married to Howard H. Quan. More than 200 friends and relatives were present at the ceremony, which took place at Native Sons Hall, 415½ North Los Angeles street. The customary ring service was used and an informal reception was held after the rites.

SUBWAY PLANS CONCENTRATED

All Civic Bodies Concerned Give Views on Project

Future Development Taken Into Consideration

Replacing of Trees in Park Thought Feasible

The Pershing Square subway project was considered jointly yesterday by all the civic bodies concerned at a meeting in the City Hall, and the corelation of the various plans will now be pursued in an orderly fashion. The meeting was called by City Engineer Griffin and Chief Engineer Lorentz of the Board of Public Utilities, who will proceed to draft plans to be combined later on with plans of the Pacific Electric Railway Company.

Mr. Griffin and Mr. Lorentz, it was announced, will draw up plans of a nature comprehensive enough to take in the city's traffic development for many years to come. Mr. Lorentz said they would include the possibilities of subways for the Los Angeles Railway Company, the yellow car lines.

For example, he said that the future might require a yellow car subway along Hill street, in which case there could be a tunnel connecting it with the subway station under Pershing Square, so that persons coming from the suburbs might take the local cars without going to the surface.

At the meeting yesterday were representatives of the Park Commission, the City Planning Commission, the Traffic Commission, the Chamber of Commerce and the railroad companies.

When the Board of Public Utilities engineer and the City Engineer with the railroad company engineers complete their plans they must be sanctioned by the Park Commission, whose permission must be obtained for use of the underground park property, and then the City Council must pass finally on the plans.

TO RETAIN PARK BEAUTY

The question of destruction of the park trees came up again yesterday, the spokesmen of the park department and the Chamber of Commerce protesting against it. Others, however, held that while the station roof might be placed so high as to interfere with the roots of the trees now in the park, other types of trees could be planted and the park left as beautiful as it now is.

The Pacific Electric presented its preliminary plan. The only new phase in it is a proposition to make a gradual terrace, beginning with the edge of the park and rising to 3 feet at the center. This would give the underground station additional head-room and decrease the number of steps the passengers would have to walk in entering and coming from the subway. It was said this slight rise would be barely perceptible to anyone taking a casual view of the park.

In connection with the presentation of the plans, D. W. Pontius, vice-president and general manager of the railway company, made the following statement:

"We have presented what we consider a feasible and workable plan for the Pershing Square subway, not only from the viewpoint of railway engineering, but also as a utility for the use and benefit of the public, having in mind as well the physical beauties that should and would be retained in Pershing Square upon the surface.

CHANGE IS NECESSARY

"The present surface landscaping must undergo a change if the subway project is carried out, but it is affirmed by numerous landscape gardeners of the city that the replacement of landscape features can be made even more beautiful than those of the present and that the only element concerned in making it so is the matter of money.

"My suggestion has been and still is that a committee of the best known landscape gardeners in the city of Los Angeles present a plan for re-working the park, under which the subway may be built; the City Park Commission and engineers of the city of Los Angeles then study this and the subway plans and if it is then decided that the railway company shall be au-

PILGRIMAGE PLAY OPENS

Enthusiastic Audience Witnesses Impressive Pageant at Initial Performance of Fourth Season

BY EDWIN SCHALLERT

Once again the spell of spiritual drama, in its setting of Nature, held sway over the minds and hearts of a great audience, who last night found its way up the trailing pathway that leads to the theater of the Pilgrimage Play. They assembled to witness the opening presentation during the fourth season of this strangely fascinating and deeply appealing pageant of the Life of Christ, as it is given in the midst of the hills of Hollywood on the edge of El Camino Real.

Trees and shrubs and vines in canyon and ravine became articulate once again as a natural background. They glowed with pastel coloring and light. They enhanced and filled with mystery and beauty the action and the scene as they are interpreted by the throngs of players who have dedicated themselves to this production which contains so much that is deeply inspiring.

It is difficult to express under any circumstances the significance that the Pilgrimage Play has for any audience, or any group of audiences. It is not a production that is see nonce and then quickly forgotten. Many have gone again and again to garner those vivid impressions that it brings of the life of the Christ.

EFFECT ENTHRALLING

The blending of the action of the pageant drama with the setting, the manner in which the lights hover over the natural stage on which the play unfolds — all have a peculiar and enthralling effect on an audience. He is irresistibly caught in the spell of the drama.

There are changes, of course, this season from the previous year, but no such temporary conditions

LARGEST CROWD AT REVUE

Downtown Parade Attracts Visitors Until Closing Time; More Support Urged

The largest and most enthusiastic crowd since its opening attended the Motion Picture Exposition in Exposition Park last night. Attracted by the down town parade, thousands followed the line of march to the main gates of the exposition and many were seeking admission almost until closing time.

The Coliseum was thickly populated and the box seats soon were all taken.

Evidence of closer co-operation among the several departments of the exposition was indicated by the appearance of new amusement concessions. One that attracted many, was an open-air dance floor close to the Coliseum entrance. A colored orchestra provided music and the "pep" they put into their work was contagious with the crowd.

SUPPORT IS ASKED

More direct, personal support, and less of the "let George do it" attitude is urged on citizens of Southern California in a plea issued last night by the Los Angeles Society for Civic Progress for greater interest in the Motion-Picture Exposition.

In a communication to the public John Fiske, acting secretary of the society, pointed out that the managers of the exposition were doing more than their part by providing a show that was of unusual worth in both an amusement and educational sense.

"Southern California and Los Angeles in particular has a reputation for success in all that it undertakes," said Mr. Fiske. "This prestige and honor are at stake right now, for in everything but attendance the exposition has lived up to our record; the one lack, however, is highly important, and it is up to the people to visit the park and show by their presence their approval of the vast enterprise."

OFFICIALS ENCOURAGED

Encouraged by last night's attendance, however, plans for giving ever larger and more expensive programs were made by officials.

The annual benefit in behalf of der direction of Daniel Frohman is planned to produce a spectacle unique in the annals of expositions. Almost every prominent motion-picture star in Southern California and many from the East have promised to take part in what will be the largest program yet offered.

The Parent-Teacher Federation of Los Angeles played the most prominent part in the entertainment in the afternoon. An interesting program under the direction of Mrs. Myrtle Matters, was given by the federation in the women's auditorium.

The important work being done in Los Angeles by the Parent-Teachers' Association was outlined by Mrs. Frank Schaffer, first vice-president of the tenth district. Explaining that the fundamental aim of the organization was to promote closer co-operation between the home and the school, she stated that the local federation contains 144 units with a total of

SIGNAL HILL WELLS CLOSE

General Curtailment of Production in Field Due to Acute Market Conditions

LONG BEACH, July 16.—Acute market conditions have caused a general "pinching" in of products in the Signal Hill field and many wells have been taken off production entirely, it was disclosed today.

The first wells to be shut in completely are the Petroleum Midway Company's Robinson No. 1 and No. 2. Both these wells have been taken off production because of the flooded market, officials of the company announced today.

Although other companies in the field have not been forced to cut off all production, they are delaying operations on new wells in the hope that conditions will right themself in the meantime. Many of the heaviest producers, however are being "pinched" in and their flow materially restricted. In many cases the yield has been shut down to 25 per cent of the normal flow.

Notable among these are the group of wells recently brought in by the Bush & Boorhis company in the west area of the field. The Brennecke & Barnes wells have both been "pinched" down, the first to a daily yield of 1500 barrels and the second to 1850 barrels.

The Miley Avery No. 4, which came in Saturday and is by far the heaviest producer ever secured in California, has been beaned down to 5000 barrels a day, according to reports from Signal Hill. The well came in with a flow of 28,000 barrels a day.

Operators declare that this pinching down of the wells in the face of increased production from new wells which are being brought in constantly will not be sufficient to prevent a break in the present market and the further shutting in of a large number of additional wells.

The field at the present time is producing 230,000 barrels of oil a day.

BOOTLEGGERS SETTLE UP

More Than $15,000 Paid Into Judge Bledsoe's Court; Jail Too Crowded to Hold Violators

Judge Bledsoe's second week of "bootleg bargains" opened today in Federal court yesterday when $15,658 rolled into the coffers of Federal Court Clerk Charles N. Williams as the fines and the pint-eaters unbuckled. Sixty-three persons entered pleas of guilty and paid fines.

Even when the annual bootleg session is in force there are those who admit they sold and transported liquid lightning to the County Jail for a period of years. However, the bootlegging fraternity so cluttered the docket that room for all violators are in the county jail-shy folks who put up in the bar.

The courtroom was jammed to the doors with a motley horde, individual with a tight roll of bills clutched in a moist hand.

Fred A. Horsen, Assistant United States Attorney, called the first case into the hopper, and when Judge announced the fine he dropped down in front of the bench. The fine was paid and out went the bootlegger to make room for more clients to file in.

The most individual loser was a Mexican, who left $750. During the session five defendants were fined, Ruiz and Ramirez over a total of $1000, which was paid fines. All in the foregoing the following pleaded guilty and paid fines: Thomas J. Buckley, $350; Charles Ellsworth, $100; Mrs. Ellsworth, $51; William S. Davis and Mrs. Davis, $200; Nick Farra, $250; John Cunningham, $250; U. POWER SURVEY PLEA RENEWED

Commission Again Asks Funds for Electric Grab

Hot Fight Looms on Giving Board $25,000

Mushet Blocks Attempt to Railroad Matter

The request of the Public Service Commission for funds to make a survey preliminary to gobbling up the electrical business of the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Company again came before the City Council yesterday, and although the matter was put over a week there was plenty of evidence that it would occasion a good fight. The Public Service Commission, which is still withholding its jazz-band power bond campaign expense account, only asks for $25,000 this time.

The Public Service Commissioners some time ago decided to try to obtain by condemnation the electrical supplying operations of the local corporation. The first step was a survey to find out what the corporation's properties were worth and, at the request of the Public Service Commission, the State Railroad Commission began it. The Railroad Commission now presents for the second time, the old Council having refused to sanction the matter, its bill for $2281 for survey work already done.

The City Attorney in bringing the matter to the Council, also on behalf of the Public Service Commission, asked that the Council set a limit of $25,000, including the Railway Commission's present claim, for the survey expenses. The City Attorney holds that as far as the present claim is concerned the work was done in good faith by the Railroad Commission on request of the Public Service Commission and that the bill therefore should be paid.

When the matter came before the Council yesterday Councilman Criswell promptly made a motion, as promptly seconded by Councilman Mallard, to suspend the rule requiring a week's consideration. Councilman Mushet rose and said:

"Mr. President, if this matter is to be considered now I have something to say, in fact, a great deal to say, not only regarding the merits, but the legality of this proposal."

Only one vote is needed to block a suspension of the rules and so Mr. Criswell agreed to let the question go over the usual length of time.

To pass such a matter, which is presented in the form of an ordinance, six of the nine Councilmen must vote in the affirmative. When this proposal came up before, no more than five votes could be scurried up.

SUSPENDS MOUNTED CUSTOMS INSPECTOR

Elmer Green, mounted customs inspector stationed on the border near Tijuana, was suspended on order of Collector of Customs Schwaebe yesterday following reports that he was implicated in the smuggling of twenty-five cases of whisky across the line. Mr. Schwaebe announced that he would leave for San Diego immediately to conduct an investigation of the charges.

SECOND CRASH VICTIM DIES

Mrs. William F. Morgan Succumbs in Hospital; Three Others Unconscious

Mrs. William F. Morgan of 4036 Arlington avenue died in the California Lutheran Hospital yesterday, the second victim of a grade-crossing accident at Exposition Boulevard and Arlington avenue, in which Mildred Thorkelsen, 17 years of age, was killed outright and William F. Morgan, Irene Thorkelsen and Bernice Thorkelsen were so seriously hurt they are not expected to recover.

The three injured were all unconscious at Lutheran Hospital yesterday, all with probable skull fractures.

The Misses Thorkelsen were daughters of Dr. and Mrs. Thorwald T. Thorkelsen of Minneapolis and have been living at Willowbrook. Irene Thorkelsen, 17 years of age, and Bernice, 18, graduated this spring from Compton High School. Their parents returned recently to Minneapolis to make arrangements for moving here.

Mr. and Mrs. Morgan and the three sisters were on their way home from services at Angelus Temple when their automobile was struck by a Santa Monica Airline train at the Exposition Boulevard crossing. There is no wigwag signal at the crossing and trains do not stop there.

S. H. Buckles, motorman in charge of the train, asserts he blew his whistle at the crossing, but witnesses told the police the whistle did not blow until the car was struck. The crash hurled the automobile more than 60 feet and the train did not come to a stop for more than 200 feet, the police declared. Buckles was arrested pending investigation.

FILM PAGEANT FILLS STREETS

procession was forced to halt frequently while motorcycle police and patrolmen pressed back the throngs to make an opening for it to get through.

RIOT OF COLOR

Although the parade was a little late getting under way, Broadway, from Twelfth street, where it started, to Seventh street, where it cut over to Main, was a seething mass of humanity long before the starting time, 7:30 o'clock. But it was 8 o'clock before Harry Joe Brown, pageant expert and parade promoter, blew the whistle which sent the dazzling river of light and color flowing down the great thoroughfare.

The crowd was noticeable for the thousands of children numbered among it. For that matter, although the "grown-ups" came to the parade, they all became children again under the magic of its splendor and fantasy. They clapped their hands, laughed at the antics of the screen comedians in line, and let loose "Oh's" and "Ahs" of wonder and approval as the fairy-like floats from filmland rolled by.

Every motion-picture producing company of note was represented in line. Most of them simply snatched scenes bodily from their coming productions, put them on floats or on horseback and sent them out "to show the world what treats are in store for them." Some sent armored foot soldiers or glittering knights on horses; others sent their clowns, bronzed cowboys of the West, and still others had elaborate floats giving scenes from their big productions in the form of pageantry. Here and there was a touch of the circus in the shape of the trained animals used in film productions, elephants, camels, ponies and trained dogs.

STARS RECOGNIZED

It was an "at home" crowd that witnessed the parade. They were fans from their shoes up.

"Oh, there's Bull Montana!" a woman's shrill voice yelled, and immediately the crowd was onto him.

"Oh, you 'Bool'! Atta boy, Bool! Ye-hoo, Bool!"

And "The Bool," riding in a two-story hack and wearing a plug hat, smiled and skidded his tile like a real gentleman.

The parade was unique for its lack of the usual grand marshal or high cockalorem riding at the head. Typical of the industry's demand that the story start off with a snap and bang, the parade just broke forth with splendor. A great snowball float of the Exposition itself came forth after the usual driving wedge of motorcycle officers. Then came the Hollywood American Legion Band, which has been giving concerts at the Exposition.

Among the best floats was the coach-and-four in which rode Abraham Lincoln, a touch from the picture by that name produced by the Rocket Film Company. Then came the regular old-time stage coach pulled by six western stage horses from the B. P. Schulberg studios, producing the "Virginian" and "May Time."

Among others in the line of march were: A dainty little coach from the Mary Pickford Company with "Rosita;" the Warner Brothers with a big float on "Where the North Begins," featuring the famous police dog Rin-Tin-Tin; the Selig Zoo elephants and camels; the Louis B. Mayer studios, a couple of broken down automobiles loaded with a bunch of side-splitters from the Snooky Comedies; Monte Banks in "Taxi Please;" Virginia Gilbert, winner of the Owl Drug Company beauty contest.

The original carriage used by Emperor Franz Josef, and now doing a turn for Carl Laemmle in "The Merry Go Round;" a troupe of Jack Hoxie cowboys; an automobile load of beauties from the city of Venice; the Century Comedy Company; a Louis B. Mayer "Maytime" float; a number of industrial floats, and then a line of rangy cowpunchers from the Tom Mix lot.

The crowd was packed so far out into the street that many of them had to duck their heads when Ruth Law's airplane came gliding down the street on a motor truck. Then came Mrs. Wallie Reid's "Human Wreckage" representation, followed by the "Fighting Blood" entry.

A flutter from the youngsters as they looked at the stalwart six-foot guards for Jackie Coogan's "Long Live the King," but Jackie disappointed the youngsters by failing to appear. An elaborate float from Rex Ingram's "Scaramouche;" Harry Marks's troupe of trained animals; another big float from Goldwyns, "In the Palace of the King."

A rumble and a creaking and along comes the "Covered Wagon" itself, with appropriate pioneers trudging by its side; then a bit from Pola Negri's "Spanish Dancer;" and a big eyeful from Lloyd Hamilton comedies. And then the Jack White fun-makers, and a float from Douglas Fairbanks' "Robin-hood" brought up the rear.

After parading through the down-town streets, the great procession wormed its way over to Figueroa street and then out to Exposition grounds, where it melted into the big show given there nightly.

The parade was put on by the motion picture people to show the public something of what is going on out at theexposition. But attractive as the parade was, it was only a sample of the good things to be seen and heard out on the exposition grounds day and night.

CROWD SAVED FROM RUNAWAY HORSES

MAN'S ACTION PREVENTS INJURY BY TEAM DRAWING PICKFORD COACH

Two runaway white horses drawing a coach from the Mary Pickford company in the Motion Picture Exposition parade at Eleventh and Olive streets last night were checked, just as they plunged into the dense crowd, by the heroic action of Charles C. Irvine of 109½ South Olive street. Irvine was bruised badly about the head and shoulders in stopping them.

Mr. Irvine was standing with his wife watching the parade forming. The coach and horses, used in Miss Pickford's current picture, were left for a moment by the driver and became frightened. They ran up the street and the crowd parted before them in a panic. Mr. Irvine rushed out into the street and stopped them on the edge of the crowd.

WITNESS TAMPERING HEARING IS BEGUN

The preliminary hearing of John Carrillo and S. Sepulveda, the latter a wealthy rancher, was started yesterday before Justice Scott. The two men are accused of tampering with a witness. It is charged that they attempted to bribe three women not to appear against Richard Carrillo, son of John Carrillo, who is accused of a statutory offense. The hearing was continued by Justice Scott until today.

BOSTON STUDENTS HERE HUNGRY, BROKE

"All play and no work makes us four hungry boys," was the lament of Richard Leighton, Hartley Davis, Leonard Hall and W. T. Worcester, the quartet of Boston University seniors who left the east coast to see the west coast on June 1 in a flivver, with $100 divided among them. Ready and willing to work, they expect to replenish their depleted "kitty" and continue their "See America First" tour by way of Seattle and back to Boston in time to complete their college education in the fall.

PARADE TO OPEN NARCOTIC DRIVE

World Campaign Starts Here Next Saturday

Governor and Prominent Men Will Participate

Ten Thousand Persons Are Expected in Time

Gov. Richardson, Frank F. Merriam, Speaker of the State Assembly, and Walter F. Lineberger, Congressman from the Ninth California District, have accepted invitations from the Los Angeles Citizens' Committee on Narcotic Education to speak at the ceremonies to be held Saturday, Narcotic Education Day, in the Coliseum in Exposition Park, when the world-wide campaign of the International Narcotic Education Association will be launched.

Ten thousand men, women and children, representatives of churches and other organizations, will take part in the parade through the downtown streets immediately preceding the ceremonies.

Arthur Letts, Jr., department-store proprietor, and his associates, have donated 15,000 American flags to be used by children in the ceremonies. When Gov. Richardson and other dignitaries face the audience from the speaker's stand in the stadium they will be welcomed by flag waving exercises by the children as the international campaign is opened.

ROUTE OF PARADE

The line of march for the parade is:

North on Los Angeles street to First street; west on First street to Broadway, south on Broadway to Twelfth street, west on Twelfth street to Figueroa street; south on Figueroa street to the main entrance of the exposition.

Mounted men will head the police. Harry Leonhardt, grand marshal, and his escort will follow. Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson, pastor of Angelus Temple, expects to have the largest delegation, planning for about 10,000 men, women and children. The delegation will have 500 automobiles. The cars will be decorated, and huge banners dealing with the campaign will be carried.

Word was received yesterday by Capt. Richmond P. Hobson, president of the association, that a detachment of troops from Fort MacrArthur will participate in the parade and in the ceremonies as well as representatives of the Los Angeles Citizens' Committee on narcotic education.

ADMITTED FREE

Through the courtesy of the officials of the exposition persons participating in the inaugural ceremonies will be admitted to the grounds and Coliseum without charge. Sunday-school pupils and their parents, members of churches and other organizations will assemble at the Figueroa-street entrance of the exposition and enter before those in the parade reach the grounds. The ceremonies in the Coliseum are scheduled to start at 2:30 p.m.

Secretary of the Navy Denby telegraphed Capt. Hobson, stating that the Navy Department would do its utmost to co-operate with the international association in carrying on the educational activities in the Navy. Because of the absence of the fleet at Puget Sound, where President Harding and his party will review it, naval representation at the ceremonies will be small.

The Los Angeles Letter Carriers' band will participate in the parade and ceremonies.

DOCTOR IS DAZED AS CAR BURNS

Physician Dragged From Flaming Auto in Time to Save His Life

Dazed by a fire in his automobile, Dr. William E. Graham, Hollywood optician, was saved last night from death or serious injury by three men who found him sitting in his blazing car without attempting to get out.

Dr. Graham was driving on the Hollywood side of the Laurel Canyon grade when his machine caught fire. Clarence Burton, coming along in another car, shouted to him. The doctor, apparently panic-stricken, drove his car off the road and plunged twenty feet down the grade.

Three motion-picture employees returning from location rushed to his aid. They were George Cooper, Charles Gillette and Lionel Thein. The men found the automobile wrapped in flames and said that Dr. Graham was sitting in the car, appearing to be only semiconscious.

He resisted efforts to take him from the car and was hurried to the Hollywood Community Hospital where he became delirious. Physicians said that he had slight burns and serious bruises on the head and leg.

WORKER BURNED AS HE FALLS WITH HOT PITCH

VICTIM, HURT THREE YEARS AGO, HAD JUST GONE BACK ON JOB

Charles McClain is an ill-starred roofer. He went to work yesterday for the first time in three years only to meet with another accident. While carrying a bucket of hot asphaltum across the roof of the new Overell Building on Santa Fe avenue, he tripped over a wire. The blazing pitch seared both hands, arms and back.

Three years ago he fell three stories. Since then he has been strapped to a board recovering from a broken back suffered when a roll of building paper on which he was standing parted, sending him crashing through a skylight to the ground.

Swathed like a mummy in bandages, which only permit him to see, the 44-year-old workman was taken from Receiving Hospital to his home at 848 West Thirty-sixth street late last night.

INVESTIGATE CAJON CRASH

Interstate Commerce Commission Representatives Take Up Spectacular Wreck; Cause to be Sought

An investigation of the spectacular wreck of a Union Pacific freight train at Cajon station Sunday night will be started tomorrow by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The investigation was ordered at the conclusion of the Coroner's inquest over the remains of the trainmen, killed in the crash which was held yesterday afternoon at San Bernardino.

Employees of the Union Pacific Company said that defective air brakes caused the wreck, which hurled thirty cars of cement and plaster at wild speed down the Cajon grade. For several hundred yards the wreckage was strewn over the roadbed, tearing up rails and killing two members of the train crew. They were Cleveland Palmer, fireman, and W. B. Hamblin. Charles Holland, the engineer, was seriously injured.

Telegraph and telephone lines were torn down and traffic was temporarily tied up. Railroad officials said last night that trains were running once more on schedule, that a double track right of way passes through Cajon Pass and that train service is being continued over a single track.

A Coroner's jury held an inquest yesterday at San Bernardino over the bodies of the men killed in the wreck and returned an open verdict and made no attempt to assign cause for the accident.

Officials of the railroad companies deny charges of trainmen that defective equipment caused the wreck. No trace of four tramps whose bodies are said to be under the debris has been found.

DANIEL IN THE LIONS' DEN

Keen Press Agent Persuades Frohman to Enter Cage With Cute Li'l Jungle Kinglets; They Delight in Producer and Try to Eat Him!

A long and varied New York experience with the genus press agent has been the lot of Daniel Frohman, veteran theatrical and motion-picture producer of New York. But after an incident at the Motion-Picture Exposition yesterday, Mr. Frohman is inclined to concede that the flower of the flock has budded right here in Los Angeles.

The title of this little piece, as the press agent intended, is "Daniel in the Lions' Den."

Two of the exuberant publicists were walking through the Exposition grounds yesterday morning. They passed the den containing Charles Gay's sixteen baby lions. "Daniel in the Lions' Den," murmured one of them. The other snapped to attention. "Daniel? Why, man, Daniel Frohman's in town. We'll send him into the den."

The idea had sprung full blown. It remained only to persuade Mr. Frohman. And despite his long and varied experience, Mr. Frohman is a moment of weakness yielded.

Amid a blare of trumpets, he was ushered into the den with the baby lions. The lions were playful, almost affectionate. Mr. Frohman fondled the mgingerly.

Then a photographer suggested that the producer seat himself on a log in the den, surround himself with the leonine tribe, and have his picture taken. This particular log, according to the trainer, is a favorite with the cubs.

When Mr. Frohman seated himself on the log, the denizens apparently regarded their rights usurped. With an excellent imitation of ferocity, several of them leaped upon the producer. One of them clawed at his throat. Another expertly slit open his trouser leg. The whole sixteen gathered for a mass attack.

But the trainer had sprung into the cage. He motioned Mr. Frohman to leave as inconspicuously as possible, while he stayed behind to calm the denizens of the den.

To the thunderous applause of the spectators, Daniel left the Lions' Den. But when he came out, the ingenious press agent had folded his tent and silently stolen away.

can take away a meaning that is permanent. Be there much or little of the scriptural word in the text, that which is there seems always to live and have a powerful renewing influence under the circumstances which so ideally prevail in the natural theater.

I think that this season the Pilgrimage Play suffers a little from changed conditions. It will take a time for the ultimate goal to be reached. Mrs. Christine Wehthe-rill Stevenson's spirit is perhaps missed, and one cannot immediately become adjusted to the substitution of another actor in the role of The Christ.

No single event or element can change the character of this drama, though. There is something about the text and action which seems to rise above mere considerations of plays and players, changes of scene and story. Back of it seems to be something of the immutability of the hills themselves, and though there is perhaps a slight tendency to grope as yet to find the way, owing to the difference wrought in a year, one feels as one watches the beauty of picture and hears the spiritual word that the Pilgrimage Play will continue to realise its purpose, and perhaps attain it in even a constantly higher way.

"It is more beautiful than ever," I heard a woman remark who sat near me. And truly the stage pictures seem to grow in beauty from year to year, perhaps because one sees more of their detail and learns their de per charm.

I feel a critical reserve about certain features of the performance as a performance in the present version, but I cannot but feel once again the deep appeal that seems to lie in each line and word, and in the visionary sights and sound that seem to echo from the hills. For one perhaps who had never seen the play before, the presentation might have been perfect. Even those who knew it might find its meaning greater.

The differences between the interpretation of Mr. Grimwood as the Christ and that of Mr. Henry Herbert, who established for the public a sort of ideal, are not of an obvious nature. It is merely in the touches of color and inflection that he gave that one would seek improvement. Yet, I for one do not ask for an intepretation that is just the same.

It is a curious thing about this role, though, that you cannot act it. A single touch of flamboyancy either in gesture or the elocution of line is out of the perfect picture. The interpretation amounts more to a reading than a piece of Thespianic art. It is enough that the words rae heard with every syllable perfectly articulated and with meaning than that a single word or phrase should be emphasized.

I feel that what Mr. Grimwood's portrayal lacks at present, and mind you it is a well-judged portrayal in many respects, is a certain poise and calmness. This is something that he can only achieve through a series of appearances in the role, and I see in his instance a chance for his interpretation to grow in its significance. It needs more of deep conviction as yet. It needs, too, a finer, clearer articulation of the words, and most, perhaps, it needs a refining of the color with which those words are endowed.

Helen Freeman has returned as the Mary Magdalen, and she is impressive and real in her emotion. Her scenes all had a striking beauty. The Mother Mary of the play was disappointing. More need not be said. The apostles, the John the Baptist and the high priests were in the main satisfying.

The mob seemed to lack abandon and to move mechanically at times.

These things are all to be remedied and can be, for the Pilgrimage Play is not something that was visioned in a night and a day, and its life is not determined by a single performance or a single production, because in it and through it there shines a vitality not of the flesh alone but of the spirit.

GREAT CROWD AT EXPOSITION

32 000 members. The scholarship department, which renders financial aid where necessary to keep children in school, paid out $7000 for this purpose last year.

Mrs. Schaffer briefly told of the work done by the day nursery, Americanization and clinical departments of the organization. The work being done by the Parent-Teacher Association of Washington D. C., was told by Miss Ruth Jones who is an official of that organization.

The children visitors were entertained by Miss Sadie Hoffman of the Los Angeles Public Library juvenile department, who told children's stories.

Leona Sunshine, 8-year-old pupil of Jean de Chauvenet, played a piano solo entitled "The Garden Dance." A reading was given by Miss Susan F. White, Natalie Pectach sang and Charles De Cola gave a piano solo.

Daniel Frohman, famous theatrical producer, conferred with Exposition officials yesterday, completing details for Actors' Fund Day which will be staged in the near future.

The motion-picture industry which has drawn thousands of actors to Hollywood, has made Los Angeles one of the most important centers for relief work and last year many thousands of dollars were paid out of the fund in this city, according to Frohman. He plans to make Actors' Fund Day a feature of the Exposition and has been promised the support of virtually all of the stars of the motion-picture studios and legitimate stage who are in this city.

Last night was "Christie" night at the Montmartre Gardens. Among the Christie players who took part in the affair were Al Christie, Bobby Vernon, Neal Burns, Dorothy Devore, Vera Stedman and Teddy Sampson.

thorized to proceed, it can be done and if denied the railway company will then be in a position to go ahead and locate the terminal at Hill-street Station as orginally planned.

"Sumner P. Hunt, the well-known architect, stated that Pershing Square could be re-landscaped and when completed would show tremendous improvement over the square in its present condition and it is only a matter of money. It was stated at the conference that if the railway company is permitted to use the square, it will have to pay the bill for re-working it, so that it will have a more attractive appearance than at this time."

the accused person is first subjected to a strict physical and psychological examination before the court proceeds with its work," declared the speaker. "We must understand the nature and history of the criminal before we are capable of dealing fairly with his case.

"The religionists go only half way in their attitudes toward and dealings with the criminal," said Dr. Von KleinSmid. "I am not quarreling with their motives, but I do not think their methods are entirely adequate to meet the situation. Salvation is desirable, yes, but there must be a normality capable of appreciating personal responsibility. One of the main things needed is more men and women prison workers who understand the necessity of dealing with criminals as individuals and not as a mass."

REAMS WOVEN BY GIFTED TRIO

Tones Steal Softly From Lips of Night

Note Beats Like Quickened Heart

Soloists on KHJ Programs Thrill Listeners

BY BEN A. MARKSON

Visions of musical dreams, the Philharmonic Trio last night gave to Radioland a recital that, floating softly from the lips of night, held an effect of ethereal beauty.

The trio is composed of Jules Ribaud, violinist; Earl Bright, 'cellist, and Alfred Kastner, harpist, each a celebrated master of his instrument.

They opened with "Pas des Bacchantes," by Chaminade, one of a series of "Airs de Ballet," by the noted Frenchwoman. Its brilliant contrasts and charming themes were completely defined. Its artistic rendition of Rubinstein's "Kamennoi-Ostrow" never failed to stir the hearts of listeners-in. Last night this portrait painted in the colors of melody truly bore out its subtitle of "Angelic vision." One felt the glamor of the scene at the festive villa of the Grand Duchess Helene on Kamennoi Island in the Neva River, where the composer was a guest, and where he received the inspiration for the composition. The romantic interest which he felt for a fair young member of the nobility, as he walked by the river with her in the glow of a setting sun, beats with a quickened heart in the music. The harp carried the effect of a deep-toned convent bell, adding the interpretation by the artist a thing of faithful reproduction.

TRIO NUMBERS

Other splendid trio numbers that were given from the works of Schubert, Debussy, Ganne and Godfrey.

The solo offerings of the musicians were likewise distinguished, the accompanist being Gertrude Thomas Jones, a pianist of genuine skill and technical attainments. Mr. Lepske, one of the pre-eminent violinists of the day, is soloist with the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra. He was formerly soloist with the Wiener Konzertverein, Detroit symphony, and Lewisohn Symphony orchestras. His tones have marked warmth and feeling and his execution leaves nothing to be desired. His versatility in depicting mood was illustrated in two contrasting selections, one the graceful, flashing "Danse Viennoise," by Kreisler, and the other the reverent flow of "Ave Maria," by Schubert-Willeby.

Alfred Kastner, justly termed one of the greatest harp virtuosos of the day, wrought a deep appeal with his execution of "Fantasia," by Jean Hasse. His subtlety and command of tone color have a magic influence.

He is a member of the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra, and in the past has occupied a seat with the London Queen's Hall Orchestra, Budapest Operahouse, New York Philharmonic and Philadelphia Symphony.

Earl Mansfield Bright's 'cello offerings were brilliant in technique, rich and resonant in tone. They included "Orientale," by Cui; "Nocturne," by Chopin, and "Harlequin," by Poffer.

His experience in the world of music has been exceptionally broad, composed in part of affiliation with leading European orchestras, and two continental tours under the management of Charles L. Wagner. He has played under the leadership of such renowned conductors as Strauss, Oberhoffer, Rothwell, Hertz, Nikisch, Bodansky and Siegfred Wagner.

Otto Ploetz, one of the well-known Southern California tenors, whose rich voice is its own best introduction, favored with several songs on the matinee program.

Mr. Ploetz has appeared at KHJ on a number of occasions with popular reception. He sings with ease and with a certain emphasis of expression that adds to the interpretative value. Carrie Preston Rittmeister accompanied him.

HAWAIIANS TUNE IN

Mackie's Queen's Hawaiians, playing through the courtesy of the Dragon Cafe, appeared on both the noon and matinee programs. The members are George Mackie, Sol Hoopii and Lani McIntire.

Guitar, steel guitar and ukulele combined to give a refreshing program of string melody, the selections consisting of popular and Hawaiian numbers. "Hookworm Blues," "Broken Hearted Blues," "Marchetta" and "Drowsy Waters" were on the list.

Mrs. Vera Leavitt Owens, mezzo-soprano, was a guest in the studio and Uncle John called upon her to favor listeners-in. She demurred for a moment, explaining that she was not in best voice, having just eaten some cake, but was persuaded just the same. In spite of, or, perhaps, because of, the cake, her tones were remarkably sweet and sympathetic. She sang "Just a-Wearyin' for You," by Carrie Jacobs Bond, and "Annie Laurie." Carrie Preston Rittmeister played her accompaniments.

Harry James, monologist, contributed his sense of humor and fine articulation to the success of the afternoon program. Once you have heard him, you want to hear him again.

CHILDREN DELIGHT

The children's program was delightful as always. A novelty was the music provided by a juvenile trio, the DiTullio Trio, to be exact, made up of violinist, 'cellist and pianist. A few years hence you may hear them in chamber music and you may remember pleasantly their budding artistry as heard via radio.

The DiTullio Trio consists of Adolph, violinist, 12 years of age, Joseph, 'cellist, 14 years of age, and Maria, pianist, 9 years of age. "Moment Musical," by Schubert, was one of their offerings. The violinist is a pupil of Leon Goldwasser, the 'cellist studies with Axel Simonson, and the pianist with Thilo Becker. Emidio Barilotti of the Venice of America Band, trained the trio in ensemble.

Kenneth O. Dowling, pianist, 15 years of age, a pupil of Sigrid Mulgardt, acquitted himself excellently in renditions of "Etude Hungarian," by MacDowell, and "Minuet," by Paderewski.

Cleone Crock, reader, 14 years of age, pleased with readings which included "Piller Fight," by Ellsworth, and "Practicin' Time," by Guest.

OBJECTS TO VISIT OF WIFE'S FORMER BEAU

When his wife invited an old sweetheart to their home, two months after their marriage and showered on him favors that the husband says he had never received, Willard H. Ehler left home, he says in a divorce suit filed against Maud Ehler. According to the complaint, when he asked his wife when the unwelcome guest was going to leave she flew into a rage and declared that she would invite anyone she wished into their home.

SMALL BOY HURT; RESULT OF TUMBLE

Willard Patterson, 7 years of age, of 4191 South Western avenue, was seriously injured yesterday as a result of a tumble from the first story of a building at Exposition Park. The boy was taken to the Receiving Hospital, where attending physicians believe he may be suffering from a fractured skull.

WOMAN CUSTOMER SUES BEAUTY PARLOR

Declaring that she received permanent scars instead of a permanent wave, Elsie Koopman filed suit yesterday for $5250 damages against the Leader College of Beauty Culture and Hair Dressing, Madge Hilliard and Hannah Johnson, proprietors, and Edna Wyeth, an employee. The plaintiff asserts that last May when having her hair waved, an electrical apparatus was attached to her head and left for so long that she received severe burns. Suffering intensely, she said she was unable to remove the appliance until an attendant came to her aid.

WEDDED BLISS SHORT

Annulment Sought by Wife on Desertion Grounds

When Mrs. Alta Cunningham Wallace married in Casa Grande, Ariz., her husband sent her to his parent's home for two days and then told her to go to Los Angeles where he would meet her later. But he never followed her, according to her complaint for annulment filed yesterday against Claude Wallace. After coming to Los Angeles she said she received a letter from her husband stating that he would arrive here soon. She says she waited three years and that as she received no further word she took steps to have the marriage annulled. The couple were married October 16, 1920.

THE BIGGEST PICTURE

The Chicago Academy of Science has a single photograph 100 feet long and ten feet high. Possibly the Chicago River has been having its picture taken.

CHERRY TREE STORY

There is a cherry tree in Indiana sixteen feet in circumference. If George Washington had had one like that he might have missed a lot of his fame. His hatchet would hardly have made a dent in it.

A HANDSOME PARTY

The Woman's party is said to have already amassed a campaign fund of $300,000. Who said the ladies would be slow about grasping the fine points of the political game? A purse of $300,000 should make a swell-looking party.

THE ORIGINAL BREAK

It isn't Uncle Sam who is parting immigrants from their kin and breaking family ties by his laws and regulations. It is the aliens themselves who start the break. Many of them know when they come to this country that their relatives can never follow or be admitted. Under those circumstances it isn't fair to blame the American government for wrecking a home.

THE CROWING HEN

One of the attractions in the Prospect Park zoo in Brooklyn is a crowing hen. The bird lays an egg every other day with conspicuous regularity and between times crows with all the lusty effusion of a Red rooster. This is enough to create something of an excitement in Brooklyn, although crowing hens are not so rare in the provinces.

RUNNING BEHIND

Although the income tax is a rather new idea the government auditors are already more than three years behind in checking up on the returns and the situation is said to be growing worse instead of better. Sixty years hence Federal authorities may be pinching grandpa for some mistake he made in making out his returns for 1925. The tax will have to be simplified before it makes crooks out of the whole country.

BLESSINGS FLOW

California produced 830,000 barrels of oil on a single day recently and it may go to 1,000,000 before the year is over. The wells are permitted to flow an average of more than 700,000 barrels a day. The biggest twenty-four hours for the whole country was 2,240,000 barrels, but as a general proposition the oil output of Los Angeles county alone is more than one-fourth of the entire production of the United States. This is another reason why we are carrying an oily grin.

GIVE US A SONG

Strange to say Yale College feels the need of a new song—one of its veriest own. The official anthem is too much of "Die Wacht Am Rhein" to suit New Haven. The faculty would prefer something with a Yale lock instead of a goosestep. A prize of $1000 was offered as a starter and various alumni submitted some 200 offerings, but none of them seemed to hit the spot. Now outsiders are invited to join the contest. Anyone may compete, but it is known that the winning selection must have the real Yale tang, both in words and music.

THE OLD CABIN

Iconoclasts have made a musical comedy out of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Of course, they had to take a few liberties with the plot. Uncle Tom himself is a trained crapshooter and his cabin has open plumbing and a burglar-proof cellar. There isn't any Mrs. St. Clair. Instead of that St. Clair is a handsome widower with a pretty ward who is a trained nurse and with whom he falls in love. Little Eva is a toe-dancer, but, of course, it wouldn't do for her to die. Instead of that she runs away with a diminutive jockey. There is a chorus of bloodhounds in the third act, which is led by Simon Legree, the celebrated saxophone performer. There is a wonderful elasticity to Harriet Beecher Stowe's old tale, but it was pretty well used up when they set it to jazz.

THE WHEAT FARMER

Senator Capper says that farmers must raise less wheat. Just a few seasons back the farmer was told that he must raise more wheat. Now, because of a slump in price, he is advised to reduce his output. But the average farmer in the grain belt is used to wheat and does not care to raise much of anything else. If he went in for oats or potatoes he might not do so well. The country can handle a wheat surplus better than an excess in any other crop. The only result is cheaper bread and that is not such a terrible thing for the nation. If the farmers would do more of their own marketing and monkey less with the middlemen and the politicians they would do better with their products. If the farmers followed the Kansas Senator's advice how much better off would they be? Wheat would go up in price, but the farmer wouldn't have any.

THIS ELECTRICAL AGE

America today stands at the center of the electrical world. No other country outside of the United States begins to be so well equipped electrically. Our country is the best served with submarine cables and has the largest mileage of telegraph and telephone wires. We have made a more comprehensive use of the radio, have developed more hydroelectric energy, employ more electrical household conveniences and are at work on a greater number of fresh applications of electricity than all the other nations.

America is especially fortunate in being so well supplied with both cable and radio communications. Diplomatically and commercially this gives us a distinct advantage. For these agents of the swift transference of thought are supplementary rather than competitive. For, while scientific minds are busy in devising improved methods to increase the number of radio messages that can be carried simultaneously, at present the radio can carry only a fraction of the immense telephone traffic.

According to Mr. J. J. Carty of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, America operates as many high-power radio stations as all other nations combined and American scientists were the first to telephone without wires across the Atlantic.

We are living now in the golden age of electrical enterprise and America leads the way. In the steel era Great Britain came to the front; in the epoch of chemical wizardry Germany headed the procession. Now, through the forging forward of electrical inventiveness, the scientific scepter has passed into American keeping.

In the final alignment of nations on the checkerboard of civilization this will mean more to the United States than any financial eminence. The scepter of science wielded under the crown of religion will give this nation a finer and firmer position than any great power in history has ever held before.

CAPITALIZING OUR HEIGHTS

A large proportion of the area of California is made up of hills and mountain ranges. The Sierra Nevadas on the east and the Coast Range on the west, with their foothills and outlying parallel ranges, cover a much greater area than does the great valley of the central portion of the State. The coast valley, from San Luis Obispo to San Diego are all hemmed in by hills and mountains and the southeastern and northeastern corners have a broken surface.

It might seem that a State with a large portion of its area standing on a slope must have much waste land. However, having settled first the valley lands, we are now finding use for the broken lands also. It is obvious that most of our water supply comes from the higher mountains where the rainfall is in some instances eight or ten times that of the valleys at their feet. The two leading cities of the State have had to go to the far mountains for an adequate supply of water. Not only do the ranges condense the rains, but they also furnish the reservoir sites in which it is caught and stored up for an even distribution throughout the year.

It is not from the lower navigable reaches of the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers that we derive the "white coal" that takes the place of coal with us, but from the plants located high up in the mountain canyons. The West has more potential water power than the East, not because it has more water, but because the streams of the West fall from much greater heights than do those of the Mississippi Valley and the Atlantic plain.

The oaks give the low-lying valleys the park-like aspect that makes them so beautiful, but the chaparral thrives best on the sides of the hills and lower mountains and the real forests are, for the most part, confined to the sides and rimlands of the higher mountains. Certain fruits grow better at elevation which the mountains give, and the mountainsides and meadows furnish grass for stock when that of the valleys has dried up.

The oil fields in part are found on the hills and the great mother lode gold belt was confined to the foothills and canyons of the Sierra Nevada. A part of the advantage that the West has over the East in the production of the metals is due to the fact that the bending and breaking of the surface in the forming of the numerous mountain ranges have brought the veins to the surface where man can pick them out. The most beautiful lakes in California are to be found high in the mountains.

Around Los Angeles and San Francisco, where the pressure of a fast-growing population has begun to be felt, the hillsides and even the slopes of the lower ranges have begun to be dotted with homes, and the cattleman in the more distant parts of the State is taking what lands the government did not include in the forest reserves. Were they alone but pleasing to the eye and did they but furnish delightful recreation fields our mountains would be more than worth while, but we are now finding that they are of great economic value to us also.

A PAY STREAK

On the Trinity River the other day with a pestle and mortar a lone treasure-seeker ground out $1000 worth of gold from forty pounds of pay dirt. Such streaks of luck were common in the days of forty-nine, when sluicing and washing were profitable along California streams; but latterly, with the standardization of the industry and the installing of machinery for quartz mining on a wholesale scale, the day of the prospector has been regarded almost as a thing of the past.

The report of this find near Weaverville has caused a flurry of excitement in Northern California. Again it draws attention to the fact that not all the gold in California is deep down in the bed rock, only to be brought to the surface by heavily capitalized corporations equipped with expensive machinery. There is still gold to be scraped up at grass roots or panned out from the gravel in homeopathic doses for the man equipped only with a bright pair of eyes and two sturdy arms.

Truly, the old boys in the early fifties skimmed the cream from the placer mining in the get-atable locations where it was easy to find colors that horned 'round the pan. But even there they didn't clean up all available prospects nor see all there was to be seen. And all over the mighty backbone of this still only partly explored State are thousands of acres never trodden by the foot of the prospector where may be treasure troves as amazing as the eureka of the Klondike.

Nor should it be forgotten that experts had passed over this Arctic wealth and seen no signs of mineral there to arrest their attention. It was, in fact, a hopeless greenhorn who stumbled on the key that unlocked the hidden gold chest of the Klondike and started that historic rush.

But, after making allowances for the rules of chance that govern the gold game of hide and go seek, we should not advise a drug clerk in Pasadena or an accountant in a Los Angeles business house to throw up his job and posthaste for the Trinity River country because a prospector there has just ground out $1000 from a few handfuls of rock.

At the same time, there are many active city workers going into the mountains for a summer vacation who might combine with the health and pleasure of outdoor air and exercise the merry adventure of taking a whirl at the gold game. A dry washer can be easily made at home. A pick and shovel are inexpensive and simple to handle. No expert training is necessary to wash out gravel on a mountain stream, while the eye trained to hunting gold in city marts is not likely to pass up any colors left in the riffles of the washer. And, even if the city adventurer obtains no sudden wealth for his pains, he will have enjoyed the experience.

THE TRUTH SERUM

An eminent eastern scientist asserts that scopolamin, the touted truth serum, is merely a form of hyoscine. This is mainly the brew of the common black henbane or gypsy corn which thrives as a weed in many countries. It is the Hyoscyamus niger of the botanists and is used in therapeutics to induce a "twilight sleep."

If a full dose be given the sleep will be deep, but if the drug be used under intermittent regulation a condition may be induced in the patient in which he will be partially conscious and answer questions coherently and truthfully. However, he will soon relapse into inattention and retrograde amnesia. When questioned again he will have no conscious memory of his previous statements.

If the patient be kept in this state for twenty-four hours or more a period of deep narcosis will result, to be in turn followed by an awakening of intense excitement and possibly maniacal delirium. These conditions will depend upon the personality of the patient—as will the response in the earlier stages. There are many persons who could not be induced by hyoscine or any other drug to reveal a secret which the mind had been instructed to retain.

The scientist asserts, however, that an accessible personality while in this "twilight sleep" could be induced to make almost any statement that might be suggested to him by an earnest seeker for information. During the stage of mental excitement which follows the patient usually intermingles his actual experiences with dreams and fancies, either present or remembered, so that the truth could be winnowed only by an expert psychologist who is also absolutely conversant with the actual experiences of the subject's past.

As an addendum to the processes of justice the drug cannot expect to live up to its press notices. Even though the patient made a straightforward confession which could be substantiated it would have small legal value. Duress continues to be duress, whether chemical or by force of arms, and every statement obtained thereby is nullified by the very process of its acquisition. Even if the patient fully consents to the administration of the drug the results might still be prohibited as a violation of the constitutional rights of the citizen. It may also be noted that forty gallons of hyoscine fired through the pelt with a shotgun would not make some men tell the truth.

Scopolamin or hyoscine is valuable and interesting in its experimental use, but as an impressive agency in the punishment of crime it may not pan out as promised.

TWO MINUTES OF OPTIMISM

BY HERMAN J. STICH

Lend a Hand

How many failures tumble into doom because no one encourages them!

Encouragement is what the world needs. People are pining away their lives, doing half-hearted work, while longing for a word of praise and reassurance.

It is marvelous what enheartment will accomplish when tactfully given.

Men yearn for a friendly pat on the back. They are waiting, hoping, trusting some one will come along and say: "You are doing good work, old boy, keep it up."

Such stimulation makes life worth while; provides an antidrudgery tonic. We crave the assurance that we are appreciated.

It is sad that more of this boosting isn't done. There are more disappointed men and women than you suppose.

We cannot begin to realize the vast good we do when we help hearten some one into morale. Encouragement rallies many a man when he is ready to quit. The emboldening power of sympathetic encouragement carries one across difficulties which otherwise could not be surmounted.

Many never get very much encouragement; in fact, they are discouraged in many ways. Then it is a hard road that they travel. It is so cold and lonesome trudging along so.

A warm hand shake, a smile, good wishes, some manifestation of interest—these cost nothing and yield rich dividends.

The path is so much easier and smoother knowing that somebody cares.

Lend a hand!

RIPPLING RHYMES

THE HERO

The cold, wet water, brown with mud, swept o'er the plain, a raging flood; like ocean waves the billows reared, once happy homes had disappeared and wreckage drifted down the tide in Oklahoma's countryside.
It was a time to seek the heights, and there assembled many wights, who shivered in the rainy blast and talked of records of the past. It was a time to fear the worst and hold the motto, "Safety First." But Old Jess Willard, bent and bowed by age that wrapped him like a shroud, climbed up no trees or mountains high to keep his feet and whiskers dry. Where there were people in distress there wrought and toiled the noble Jess. Through water gray and grim and damp he bore the sufferers to camp; his mighty form went sloshing through the deep ravine, the surging slough, and eyes despairing saw him grope, and weary souls were filled with hope. He saved that day a dozen lives; he rescued cousins, aunts and wives and pulled scared farmers out of trees, amid those wild fresh-water seas.
Oh, Jess may whip this man or that or by the foe be tumbled flat, but he has won himself a crown no pugilist can batter down.
In times to come the bards will sing this greatest hero of the ring.

A. LINCOLN TO AL SMITH

"What do you understand by supporting the Constitution of a State, or of the United States? Is it not to give such constitutional helps to the rights established by the Constitution as may be practically needed? Can you, if you swear to support the Constitution, and believe the Constitution establishes a right, clear your oath without giving it support? Do you support the Constitution if, knowing or believing there is a right established under it which needs specific legislation, you withhold that legislation? Do you not violate and disregard your oath? I can conceive of nothing plainer in the world. There can be nothing in the words 'support the Constitution' if you may run counter to it by refusing support to any right established under the Constitution."—[Abraham Lincoln, September 15, 1858.

EASY-CHAIR SCIENCE

Sap is to a tree what blood is to an animal. The sap carries water, saturated with mineral substances, from the soil to the topmost twigs—in the case of redwoods some 350 feet high. The rising of the sap to such heights results from one of the many peculiar properties of water known as surface tension or capillary attraction. For the same reason that water rises in a glass tube of tiny bore, sap rises in the tiny channels of the trunk and branches and spreads, through the veins, into all parts of the leaves. In animals the blood is pumped through the arteries; but in plants the sap, instead of being forced forward by pressure from behind, is drawn upward by the peculiar attraction between water molecules and wood molecules. Hence, plants get along without a heart.

The dead cell walls of the trunk, roots and branches, consisting largely of crude cellulose, constitute the tree's skeleton.

In the leaves are located the little factories, wherein the food for both the animal and vegetable kingdom is manufactured. All leaves are alike in color, structure and purpose. They are composed of three layers of cells; an upper and a lower layer of flattened cells and an intermediate mesh of variously shaped cells. The vein system, or venation, is exceedingly diverse, yet in all a mid-vein extends from the stem to the point of the blade, with smaller veins branching off on either side. The margins of leaves may be smooth or serrated. If the serrations extend to the mid-vein, cutting the leaf into feathers as in the fern and palm, the leaf as a whole is called a frond.

The end and aim of every leaf is to find a place in the sun and to expose to the sun as much surface as possible. The under side of every leaf is dotted with stomata—invisible openings through which the plant breathes. As many as 100,000 stomata to the square inch are revealed in some leaves by the microscope. Plants inhale the air, containing the carbon dioxide exhaled by animals, and in the inner mesh of leaf cells the carbon is taken out of the carbon dioxide and the liberated oxygen returned to the air.

Meanwhile, the sap, rising through the tiny channels in the trunk and branches, finds its way along the veins into the same inner mesh of leaf cells. There the carbon from the air and the substances dissolved in the sap solution are brought together and chemically combined into molecules containing six atoms of carbon, ten of hydrogen and five of oxygen. The name of the substance represented by this is starch.

This chemical process is from the peculiar activity of specks of green pigment or chlorophyll bodies, the green which has thus far baffled. These are the bodies which leaves green. What is known them may be briefly stated. sunshine falls upon a green the short light waves pass the chlorophyll bodies, but the light waves, particularly which produce the red and rays, are stopped and over the atoms in the waves may be—are made the leaf, in the manufacture starch. Without the rays starch cannot be manufactured.

It will now be understood the little factories close at sunset; light is an essential carbon, hydrogen and oxygen the manufacture of starch.

Plants cannot subsist on hydrogen and oxygen in the state any more than animals subsist on inorganic gases; but both animals and plants thrive on starch. Right here is a striking point to be noted in the animals and plants require the same kind of food, the difference that the plant is a producer the animal a parasite.

As the little factories produce the starch, some of the product is immediately used by the plant, a larger proportion is stored for future use, as in potatoes, roots, apples, acorns, cereals, etc. In many plants starch is subjected to further chemical treatment, whereupon it is changed into sugar, as in the maple, sugar cane and beet.

Feeding upon starch, plant animals alike build up the which are essential and the animal goes and builds up fat in and butter and eggs.

After working from sunrise to sunset every bright day spring and summer the of the chlorophyll bodies fade, just as color fades cheeks. A touch of frost sap to lower and the leaves prepare to clean house, empty their sugar products through into the buds, at the trembling leaf, from which leaf will come the to carry on the ness. Then the disintegrates and its sorbing and reducing rays of sunlight the reds and purples, and gold—the colors dying leaves.

INCOME AND MATRIMONY

BY ALMA WHITAKER

Every so often a discussion appears in print as to the amount of income upon which young people should marry.

Only recently Judge Summerfield was quoted as saying that "No man should think of matrimony unless he is making from $1000 to $2000 a year."

And several local ministers of the gospel were found to indorse this opinion. One was reported as declaring that most divorces were occasioned by financial difficulties.

I am inclined to take exceptions to this last statement as appertaining to insufficient income. I have been somewhat interested in the local divorce question and studied many cases. True, financial matters did crop up in many of them—but these were usually between couples where the family income was a good deal more than $2000 a year and usually concluded with a sordid squabble about the size of the alimony.

One would suppose from that statement that divorce was almost unknown among the rich. Is that exactly according to the evidence? On the records it would be a good deal more logical to declare that a fat income automatically bred divorce.

Too much money seems, on the face of it, to occasion many more divorces than too little.

Many a couple who started married life on a painfully modest income were happy and united until wealth came to them. The divorce courts teem with this sort of story.

But I decline to accept the divorce records either way as suitable evidence for establishing the amount of income upon which young people should marry.

For so much depends upon the character, the personal dispositions, the teamwork—and the love—of the man and the woman—and so very little upon the amount of money they possess. And a meager income is more apt to occasion the best exercise of their best qualities than ample means can ever engender. And we should be prepared to feel that the couple who could cautiously, shrewdly, nay, selfishly measure and weigh their hopes of marital happiness in the scales against a carefully calculated, comfortable surplus of income would have small chance to enjoy that full measure of wedded bliss which is given to those whose love is unbounded, unfettered by such considerations.

And here I would like to say that I have known poverty, very real and anxious poverty. But I had the sort of partner who stripped poverty of all its sorrows. There is nothing so very dreadful about being poor. Its horrors are as exaggerated as are the joys of being rich. There is even a real and genuine zest about triumphing over this sort of trouble—together, hand in hand, pulling together, scheming, planning joyously and winning through. I cannot speak of the joys of wealth nor its tribulations, no such experience have ever been mine. But I married on a good deal less than $1000 a year and survived the experience with happy triumph. And all the divorce records and all the advice of cautious ministers and judges could never convince us that we should have waited until there were no financial difficulties to triumph over.

Rather would we see young couples who have been thus provided with this world's goods pause ere they consider matrimony. They face the largest danger, the couple who marry possessing full well that their happiness and future prosperity depend upon their teamwork, their wholesomeness, their hard work, their patience, their mutual devotion, are prepared to meet the situation with faith and courage cannot fail to make a success. They may not be rich, they may even remain poor, but they will have and find many a wealthier couple envious in vain.

IRRIGATION DOUBLES

The various reports of the Government Reclamation Service that crops grown under a system of irrigation average more than twice as much as do the same crops grown upon unirrigated land. For example, in 1920 the average yield, including irrigated and unirrigated crops throughout the United States was $23.44 per acre; the average yield of irrigated lands alone was $33 per acre. A specific case of this kind is found in the Salt River project, Montana, under the Roosevelt Dam. The average yield last year was $94 per acre over 333 acres, which, under dry farming methods, produced per acre. The total crop, according to the census, was $14,755,561,894, of which $4,755,000,000 is credited to irrigation. The economic importance of irrigation is also found in the various states. The compiled government statistics show the expenditures of the people who reside in these various states.—[Edgar L. Hampton in July Current History Magazine.

Which eases hours we, gone by, have earned by toil.
But work will come more joy than rest will bring, at length.

The various reports of the government Reclamation Service show that crops grown under a system of irrigation average in value about twice as much as do the crops grown upon unirrigated lands. For example, in 1920 the average of crops throughout the United States, including irrigated areas, was $23.44 per acre; the average for irrigated lands alone was $[illegible] per acre. A specific case of increased yield, for example, is the Milk River project, Montana, an area of 332 acres, which, under dry farming methods, produced per year [illegible],000, and as a result of irrigation produced $760,000. Likewise, the Salt River project in Arizona (under the Roosevelt Dam) produced last year $96 per acre over 100 acres, a little more than four times the average for the aggregate American crop. This aggregate crop, according to the 1920 census, was $14,765,364,894, of which [illegible] $4,755,000,000 is credited to irrigation. The economic importance to the entire nation of this steady progress in western reclamation is also found in the various carefully compiled government lists covering the expenditures of the people who reside in these various areas.—[Edgar L. New Facts Are Discovered, Detectives Say

Love Element in Case Now Under Inquiry

Statements by Widow Are Carefully Checked

The chain of evidence woven about Mrs. Walburga Oesterreich during her arrest on a charge of slaying her husband, a wealthy knitting manufacturer, has been completed almost to its last link, Captain of Detectives Home and Detective Lieutenant Cline announced yesterday.

Further evidence has been unearthed against the bobbed-hair widow in the last few days, Home and Cline stated, although they refused to disclose its nature.

Much of this later evidence was obtained, they said, from a more detailed check of the statements made to police by Mrs. Oesterreich after her arrest. A number of discrepancies have been disclosed in her statements as a result of this more intensive investigation, they said. The two officers indicated their belief that they are in possession of sufficient evidence at the present time to go to trial.

MOTIVE INQUIRY MADE

The reported love element in the case, by which the police hope to establish a definite motive for the murder, is still under investigation, but what progress has been made in this phase of the case was not revealed. The motive which caused Mrs. Oesterreich to conceal the fact that the watch, reported to have been taken from her husband when he was slain, was later found at her home is also being looked into further, Home and Cline said.

It was intimated by the police chiefs that the watch was given by Mrs. Oesterreich to a friend after she had returned it, and this incident is being sought.

MOTHER STANDS BY HER

MILWAUKEE, July 16.—Mrs. Adeline Korschel, mother of Mrs. Walburga Oesterreich, who is held in jail in Los Angeles charged with murder in connection with the death of her husband, today said her daughter always had lived happily with her husband, Paul Oesterreich.

"I will not forsake, because I do not believe she is guilty of this crime," Mrs. Korschel said. "I do not see how the police can hold my daughter when she is innocent."

Mrs. Korschel has been confined to bed since receiving news of her daughter's arrest.

CLOTHIERS' CODE TO BE DISCUSSED

Retail Association to Get Reports on Working of Its Ethical Standards

Reports on how the code of ethics of the National Retail Clothiers' Association, adopted last September, has worked out in practice will be among interesting features of the annual convention of the Retail Clothiers' Association of America which starts here the last of the week, and lasts until the 25th inst. This code, to which each member is required to subscribe, declares:

That the corner-stone of commerce is integrity; that the success of any commercial institution depends first, and after that, upon quality and merchandise.

That it holds paramount the truth in advertising in a covenant with the public; that the spoken or written word is as binding on persons as an oath in a judicial court, as sacred as the personal honor.

That it is our constant aim to so administer the affairs of this institution that individual service to the public is not diminished or minimized by reason of volume of business; that interested, personal service based on the needs and requirements of the individual, is the first duty and chiefest task.

That the exchange of confidence between buyer and seller is essential, and we affirm that the history of the profession of merchandising (the meaning of which includes all honorable trade expressions between the buyer to form an opinion more favorable than would obtain under any disguise) is unfair to our business and therefore contrary to our ethics.

Heavy Bail for Two Men Held on Bank Charge

Bail of $25,000 each was declared in Justice Pollette's court today for Claud Doak and Roy Doak, brothers, arrested in Santa Barbara on a charge made by the First National Bank of Hollywood, and to be wanted in San Francisco on similar charges. The hearing is for the 23rd inst.

Certificates of forged bonds and notes made by the Doak brothers and Investigators Van Dyke and Franklin, of the District Attorney's staff, declare the bonds totaled about $40,000 by their own hands. The investigators declare plates and printing machine used in making the bonds were found to be the property of Hollywood transaction, in which Doak was charged with having sold a loan of $70000, offering to deliver $100 in securities as collateral. It is declared, when the bonds were found to be forgeries.

Roy Doak was released Sunday on $1000 bail but Justice Pollette raised the amount to $25,000 when he was told the brothers had $10,000 bail would be forfeited in one or two days. A telegram from San Francisco from Charles Doak and $20,000 bail for Claud Doak on the charges filed there. The local complaint was signed by Dep. Dist.-Atty. Burdick.

Blair Pleads Not Guilty in Robbery Case

Granville Blair, erstwhile hero, ex-service man and, according to the police, bandit and bad-man, yesterday appeared before Judge Reeve and entered a plea of not guilty to a charge of highway robbery. His trial was set for August 30.

Blair was accused with four others, none of whom is yet under arrest, of holding up and robbing Dave Antink, collector for the Sun Drug Company, of $22,000.

Mrs. Blanche Dowdy, wife of one of the men named with Blair in the complaint, and Mrs. Blair both were held and complaints were sworn charging them with complicity. Both, however, were exonerated later.

OFFICE SAFE BLOWN; LARGE SUM OBTAINED

LEGAL WAR FOR CHILD SPREADING

Two More Sisters Take Sides in Oddly Mixed Shosted Litigation

Three sisters yesterday joined forces against a fourth in the effort to retain possession of June Shosted, 5 years of age.

The little girl's mother, Mrs. Lois Pollan, is seeking a writ to take the child from Mrs. Elsie Shosted, her sister and the child's foster mother.

At a previous hearing, Mrs. Pollan had testified that the girl's father is Frank Melton, whom she met in Springfield, Mo., while she was unmarried. She said the child is a "war baby," as the father went to France and she had never seen him again.

But yesterday two other sisters, Mrs. Arnolia Alexander and Mrs. Maude Shockley, took the stand to testify that Mrs. Pollan had seen Melton since the war in Springfield. They contradicted much of Mrs. Pollan's testimony.

Mrs. Shosted, who has reared the little girl and now has possession of her, stated that before the child's birth her sister confessed to her that Mrs. Shosted's former husband, now dead, was the father of her baby. To save her sister's honor and her husband's name, Mrs. Shosted said she passed off the baby as her own and kept it.

Later, the mother tried to get the baby back and brought suit in Duluth, Minn. The court there denied her plea. The foster-mother then brought the child to Los Angeles, where she married again. The real mother, now married to Capt. Clayton Pollan of the Regular Army, followed her here and brought another suit.

Testimony was completed yesterday and final arguments will be heard today.

Public Safety to be Topic of City Club Talk

A program of unusual interest has been arranged by the City Club for the week.

Dr. Franklin C. Wells, medical director of the Equitable Life Insurance Company, will be the principal speaker at the meeting tomorrow noon of the club. His subject will be "Public Safety in Los Angeles." Dr. Wells is one of the nation's foremost authorities on safety work and is expected to outline an effective plan for reducing the death rate from accidents here. He will be accompanied by Lew R. Palmer, third president of the National Safety Council, who is also engaged in safety work with the Equitable company.

The Friday noon meeting of the club will be converted into a songfest, with a number of prominent musicians and singers on the program. Emil Oberhoffer, conductor of the Hollywood Bowl concerts, will be the guest of honor. Marjorie Dodge, soprano at the bowl concerts, Florence Van Dyke, soprano; Keomoker Louis, Hawaiian baritone, and Mrs. T. E. Whitworth will appear in vocal and piano solos.

"The Monroe Centennial and the Culture of Los Angeles" will be the subject of an address by David Edstrom, writer and internationally known artist, at the Saturday noon meeting.

Coast Artillery to Start Annual Target Practice

Annual target practice of the Coast Artillery Corps of the California National Guard, now in camp at Fort MacArthur, will be conducted tomorrow, Thursday and Friday, according to announcement yesterday by Col. R. E. Mittelstaedt, commandant. Residents of the harbor district and surrounding communities are requested to remove all bric-a-brac and fragile articles to safe places during the firing days.

The twelve-inch mortars of Batteries Saxon and John Barlow will be fired tomorrow at 10 a.m., four companies of guardsmen firing eight rounds each at the target towed six miles out at sea by the Army tug Harrington W. Cochrane. The tiny, triangular target will be invisible to the gunners in the mortar pits.

On the following day the huge fourteen-inch disappearing rifles of Batteries Merriam and Farley will be fired. Five companies of militiamen are scheduled to fire six rounds each at the moving target. Uncompleted schedules will be carried out on Friday, Col. Mittelstaedt announced.

CALIFORNIA IS CALLING WORLD

All-Year Club Plans Clarion Advertising Drive

Will Spend $350,000 on Huge 1924 Campaign

Emphasis to be Placed on Southland Summers

The All-Year Club of Southern California is planning an advertising campaign next year on behalf of all the Southland, in which a minimum of $350,000 will be expended, according to an official announcement just made by Henry W. Keller, chairman of the executive committee.

Mr. Keller stated that the decision for so comprehensive a campaign had been made after the success of the club's advertising efforts and the conviction that Southern California is in an enviable position to "cash in" at this time on its attractiveness.

Mr. Keller said that one of the outstanding matters of importance is emphasizing the comfort and charm of the Southland's summers, according to the plan the All-Year Club has pursued now for three seasons.

"The results gained in the campaign to bring summer visitors to Southern California have been so pronounced that there are probably few people in this section who are unacquainted with at least some of them. The thousands of persons who are pouring into the Southland every month from all corners of the globe is an eloquent tribute to the effectiveness of the appeal on behalf of the Southland. All of us are acquainted with the remarkable strides forward made here in population, building, industries and in all of the other factors which go to make for worth-while development and prosperity.

HURT BY RUMORS

"No one can doubt that the widespread misapprehension which formerly existed was a distinct drawback to growth here. People practically everywhere believed that because Southern California was so fine a winter resort it must necessarily follow that its summers were uncomfortably hot, and therefore the region was a place to be avoided during the summer time. There is no doubt that this thought kept industries away, made investors look at us askance and retarded our development in scores of other ways.

"All of this makes it more than ever patent that one of our main drives must be in continuing and broadening the influence exerted through the advertising of the All-Year Club, which is telling the world the facts about our summers and about our all-year delightfulness. In doing this, let me emphasize that we are not driving only at visitors. They are, to be sure, our first objective, and visitors mena much to us, for they spend millions of dollars with us annually, and this expenditure is a decidedly worth while factor in our prosperity. Every line of business receives a direct benefit from visitors, because the money they bring gives our home people more money to spend in the department stores, with the landlord, with the real estate man, with the grocer, with the druggist, with the motor car dealer, etc.

REACH FOR SETTLERS

"But although our first objective is to increase the number of visitors here, and especially during the summer months, we are also aiming to win the settler, the investor, the capitalist, the manufacturer, the business man and the farmer.

"We cannot expect our growth and prosperity will last unless we make the effort to continue it. San Francisco is a notable example of what happens when you merely sit down and expect the world to come to you because of your strategic location and remarkable natural advantages. Whil eSan Francisco sat and waited for the world to come to it, Los Angeles got out and went after the world, with results that the census reports show very plainly.

"San Francisco has recently seen the light and has spent $400,000 this last year in an advertising campaign somewhat similar to ours. Next year the Bay City plans to spend $475,000, and of this its advertising organization, Californians, Inc., already has in hand approximately $400,000.

"It is the go-getter spirit that has made Los Angeles. Now that we have gotten so much, I do not believe for one minute that we will be content to rest on our laurels. We want to make here not only the greatest metropolis in the country, but the greatest and most prosperous region through and through. Co-operative community advertising, as embodied in the All-Year Club, is our greatest force in bringing this about, and I am confident that the minimum fund of $350,000 that we are planning will most certainly be realized."

Plans for the raising of the funds are being prepared and further announcement regarding them will probably be made in the near future."

CHICAGO BOYS' JUDGE LOS ANGELES VISITOR

Judge C. F. McKinley of Chicago, head of the Boys' Court of that city, is passing his vacation in Los Angeles, incidentally looking into the Juvenile Court system here. Judge McKinley last year handled 5500 cases of boys gone wrong, ranging in years from 17 to 21 years. The trouble in most instances is, he says, lack of parental control. In first offenses, probation is given and is generally successful in reforming youthful offenders. The Probation Department is assisted in looking out for probationers by various fraternal organizations which are taking a keen interest in making good citizens out of the youth of Chicago.

CONDEMNS HUSBAND'S WAYS

To lead a Bohemian life, according to the ideas of George M. Smith, it was necessary that the girls should not know he was married, the complaint for divorce filed against him by his wife, Henriet M. Smith, charges. Her husband often went to dance halls and associated with other women, the wife asserts, and if she were present he would pay no attention to her. On one occasion in San Bernardino county Mrs. Smith declares her husband insisted that she be introduced to his friends as a miss.

FLOODS AGITATE COUNCIL

Van Nuys Wants Relief From Conditions Caused by San Fernando Watershed Flow

The Finance Committee of the City Council and a delegation from the Van Nuys Chamber of Commerce wrestled yesterday with the natural law that water runs down hill.

It was a hearing conducted by the committee on the resolution of President Workman that the city employ a flood-control engineer to make an independent survey of the San Fernando watershed. In the resolution Mr. Workman declared the present project of the county a menace. The county is building a canal to take the waters from the mouth of the Pacoima wash and carry them to a point near the Los Angeles River and Mr. Workman says that this will endanger the industrial section of Los Angeles. He added that the money comes from the flood-control funds, while the project really is a flood diversion.

The Van Nuys delegation told how their city has been menaced for ten years from floods; how the streets are not only flooded but also covered with mud. One speaker said the mud came directly from Mr. Workman's ranch. They told how they had little hope of getting a dam built, and that the county was building the canal as a temporary measure, which they much needed; that the canal followed the natural course of the water which had to go to the Los Angeles River sooner or later.

CANAL A MENACE

Mr. Workman contended that the water now reaches the river slowly by seepage, and that a canal would hurl it so suddenly that if the floods of 1884 and 1914 were repeated, serious damage would result. He quoted Chief Engineer Mulholland of the Department of Public Service as having declared that another series of rains like the historic ones would make "another Johnstown's flood" in the industrial district from Alameda street to Boyle Heights. Mr. Workman said he had seen that district, in years past, flooded so that two-story houses were carried away like chickencoops.

The Van Nuys delegates said they didn't care what was done just so long as their troubles were relieved; that they only feared another survey would cause another controversy, which they said, for ten years had waged without any relief undertaken except the present project.

Chairman Mushet of the committee suggested the matter be referred to the engineers now engaged in public works, but Mr. Workman objected.

"Engineers," said the president of council, "are something like lawyers. One says something and all the others—, well, they don't disagree. This situation needs definite relief. Why, the little check dams the county is putting in don't amount to—a dam."

NEED COMPETENT ENGINEER

While the discussion was going on a man in black, with snow-white hair and beard sat listening, and when his chance came he rose and read the riot act to everybody. He was Judge Widey, attorney and engineer, and he explained that he had been studying the situation since 1868 and yet didn't know a definite solution.

"You can't expect the engineers in public service to solve it," he said. "They haven't got the time. It needs a competent engineer to give it his whole attention and develop a comprehensive plan that will solve the whole Los Angeles River watershed problem. The resolutions of your chambers of commerce don't mean anything. What do they know about these problems." If there is a man in this room who can stand up and say he can suggest a solution of this problem, let him do so."

"As an illustration," said the speaker, after a dramatic pause, "a few years ago $600,000 was spent to study the Hutchins Dam. Why in '48 I went up there and looked it over for thirty minutes and decided that it wasn't worth trying, and it didn't cost me 20 cents."

It was decided that the finance committee hold a hearing in the council chambers at which the various engineers engaged in flood control work and the San Fernando property owners might have a hearing and the whole matter be threshed out.

LAST RITES FOR FLYERS ARE HELD UP

Funeral Arrangements for Coates and Wilson Awaiting Word From Relatives

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

VENICE, July 16. — Funeral arrangements for Cecil Coates and Herbert H. Wilson, Santa Monica aviators, who fell to their death in the water near Venice Sunday, are being delayed pending word from relatives of the two victims.

Authorities are awaiting a telegram from the mother of Coates before proceeding with the funeral arrangements. She resides at Mobile, Ala., and has been informed of her son's death.

A sister of Wilson resides at Seattle, Wash., and she also has been told of the tragedy. Until word is received from her as to the disposal of the body, nothing will be done, it was stated. The body of Coates is at the Sharp & Nolan mortuary here and that of Wilson is at the O. A. Kirkelie mortuary at Ocean Park.

The two aviators were drowned when they went aloft in an old-model seaplane. The engine failed and the plane fell into the sea, both the aviators being drowned, as they were strapped to their seats and unable to extricate themselves.

Asserts Scars Bar to Career; Sues Railway

Disfigurements received in an accident at a grade crossing put an end to a contemplated screen career, Mrs. Helen Taliaferro asserts in a suit filed yesterday in the Superior Court asking $51,000 damages from the Pacific Electric Railway Company.

Because of the scars on her temple, she has been forced to wear hats that hide that part of her face, the complaint recites.

The accident occurred May 18, last, when an automobile in which Mrs. Taliaferro was riding was struck by a Pacific Electric train at the El Monte crossing. She declares that she received cuts and bruises about the head, body and limbs.

Her husband, C. A. Taliaferro, who is also a plaintiff in the action, contends that the crossing was inadequately protected.

Driving the Last Spike of First Transcontinental Railroad

LETTERS were carried 1950 miles on horseback from St. Joseph, Missouri to San Francisco by the Pony Express. The postage was $5 per ounce and the trip was made in 10 days. William Cody (Buffalo Bill) was a member of the pony mail service. The growth of traffic to California—mail and emigration—led western capitalists to build the first transcontinental railroad.

The great Pacific road was built in two sections—starting east from Sacramento and west from Omaha. The last spike was of pure gold and was driven near Ogden, Utah. May 10th, 1869.

Just as the work of these great pioneers served to link more closely the life and activities of east and west, so does the statewide banking system of the Bank of Italy join more intimately the many industrial and agricultural centers of California.

Clubs Society — Of Interest to Women. — Health Fashions

WOMEN'S WORK, WOMEN'S CLUBS

BY MYRA NYE

The answer to the vital question which man asks perpetually: "When am I safe?" is "Never," according to Dr. Franklin Wells, safety chairman of the United States Chamber of Commerce, speaking before the Woman's City Club yesterday.

"Accidents stalk through the land like beasts that never sleep" said the speaker picturesquely, "and no human being is safe from the monsters. The only thing that will lessen the beast's power is education with the text of all lessons. Stop! Look! Listen! Think!"

This last—to think—is the safeguard most necessary; for too often on the lips of the dying automobilist or driver caught in the mesh of hideous wreckage come the words, "Why I thought I could beat the train across the track."

APPALLING DEATH LIST

If they had only stopped to think that a train a quarter of a mile away traveling at a legitimate rate of speed will be at the crossing in sixteen seconds they would have known they could not have beaten it. Neither can the railway companies or electric trolley companies assume all the blame or even the greater part of it. Last year, of the 225 who were killed on an average every day, four-fifths of the deaths were due to the victim failing to think. Had they done so they would have been prevented according to Dr. Wells.

There were 500,000 workmen who lost on an average of four months from their work because of accidents where they themselves failed to think.

"From an economical standpoint alone, this loss to the nation is stupendous," Dr. Wells concluded in his introductory remarks concerning accidents.

He outlined in a striking way methods of education of boys and girls in the schools. This, he said, was the sad part of the whole question. Last year more than one-fourth of all the accidents were to children less than ten years of age, who needed simple, fundamental instructions regarding moving vehicles.

FREEHOLDERS' DUTIES

Judge Robert Clark, chairman of the board of freeholders outlined the duties of that body of fifteen men and women.

"Government is the most important function of citizenship," he said. "When the government of a city or nation fails, business fails. Crises in the history of cities and nations have brought forth amendments to constitutions.

"No such situation exists in Los Angeles, and I am frank to admit I am not sure the time is ripe to launch this movement. Nevertheless we are in it, and we must go on. It may be that the feeling among the citizens that from their midst an organization to fight crime must be made, is an indication that a crisis in crime is upon us. If so, then we need a new charter."

REASONS FOR CHANGE

City Attorney Jesse Stephens said that there were many reasons why a new charter was needed. The old one, he said, is outworn. There is too great an overlapping of power. The present charter gives the City Council too much administrative detail.

"The old charter is like a patchwork quilt that won't cover. Every two years a whole batch of amendments have been added since 1889, a time when Los Angeles was merely a town. The amendments come to the City Attorney too near the day of election, sometimes only the day before. When they cannot receive the attention they deserve.

"The Mayor, elected for only two years, appoints some who hold office twice as long as he does, and there is too much conflict of jurisdiction. The scheme of granting franchises should be revised," was the opinion of the City Attorney, "because as the charter now provides, no one can build subways except the city, and the city has has not enough money, and yet four subways are now urgently needed.

"It is not by wax or parchment of lawyers that all good in city charters is accomplished," concluded Mr. Stephens. "No form of government will be a panacea for all ills. The neglect of the people themselves is the greatest menace to the city."

Mrs. Bellows Speaks Today

Mrs. Edward C. Bellows will be the luncheon guest and speaker at the Philanthrophy and Civics Club today. Mrs. Bellows, who was recently elected to the Freeholders' Board, with a very flattering vote, is a past president of the Los Angeles Ebell and the Woman's City Club, and will take as her subject, "What a Freeholder's Board Is and Does." The get acquainted card parties which are being held by this club during July, are proving very successful.

In My Garden

By Joseph A. Cutting

Are toads a good thing in the garden is a question more than one person has asked, and as an answer I would say that if you can endure the toad, either in the garden or the greenhouse, do so, for he will do you more good than harm. In a greenhouse, where many seedlings are grown, I know of a gardener, who regards a toad as one of his greatest helpers and makes a real pet of him, for a toad will devour wholesale slugs, wood lice and other pests which work havoc among young plants. This gardener believes also the toad has a strong homing instinct, for on several occasions, just as an experiment, he carried his special toad pet 300 yards away from the greenhouse, but each time it returned and continued the good work of protecting the young plants.

I want to pass along some wrinkles that I have found work well: In piecing the strips it is best to cut the ends diagonally, which stretches the seam from bunching in one place. Then I do not braid a ball, as some do, but braid what I think, by measuring, will go around my center, then sew, and if only one row is made, fasten it together when I get around. Or if I have enough for two or three rows around, I slip the ends by, in closing the row (don't ever run by away beyond the end, as it looks bad not to have the rows go straight.) I always sew the rug spread out on a table, instead of in my lap, as you can keep it straighter that way. If you use thick cloth (like cloth from men's suits,) then you must make the strips narrower than two inches. Dress twice, however, as I use for braiding. I sew a button thread to one end and take it single, which is better than trying to get a smaller thread double. Put a finger on the little finger before getting it cut with the

THE BREAD OF CHARITY

Here is a letter that should come to all:

Dear Miss Jordan:

I am 70 years old. I brought six children into the world, and the four of them died before I was 50. I have just buried my husband after nursing him through his three years' illness, which exhausted our savings and took the last of my physical strength. I have no money left and I am too old to work. But I am offered a home with one of my grandsons, who has a salary of $4000 a year and a wife and three children to support.

Now, my grandson and his family are living right up to their income. They are ambitious for their children. I know that my presence will be a burden to them. I am willing to pay the only spare room in their small flat, but I can see that the children resent this. Why, wouldn't you resent this? But what can I do? Will you advise me?

ARANDA P. V.

TAKE YOU PRIVATE HOMES

Yes, I will advise, dear Mrs. V. I will tell you ask your grandson to find a boarding-house for you into one of the best of the homes for independent women—the kind of home in which you will have a room to yourself and be free from institutional rules. There are many such, and the number is growing larger all the time. Each one contains something—or should contain something—that your grandson will have to pay. But it will be cheaper for him in the end to take you into his own home, and it may be infinitely better for you both.

Let me repeat that I am advising one of the "up-to-date" homes which are really homes. The people living in them have privacy, comfort and independence. There are almost no rules. And you may be sure that one's admission to them is well paid, and that the associates are all in the class, as it were, helps one to the latest one's dignity and comfort.

I am not saying that even the best of these homes compares with a real home of one's own. Of course it doesn't. But it is infinitely better than to share a crowded, private home in which one feels oneself a burden. One has no such feeling in an Old Ladies' Home. One has as much right to be there as any one else who is there. That makes all the difference.

There will be unpleasant features in the best of the "Homes." Community life is hard anywhere. There will be women among one's associates that one will not like. But that has always been the case, and it always will be—out in the world, and everywhere one goes. It must be remembered, too, that among the hundred or more associates there will be women one likes very much, including, if one is companionable and friendly, a few who will develop into cherished friends.

It is possible, of course, that you might fit admirably into the family life in your grandson's home. Your letter shows you to be a woman of insight and understanding. You would realize the importance of being a well-bred guest in that house — of keeping yourself to yourself, of avoiding in even the remotest degree the evils of curiosity and comment and interference. If your grandson or some friend or group of friends will pay your way into a "Home," go to that home gladly and optimistically. If not, make the best of the private home in which you are given a place.

Help if you can, but only when help is desired. Make no comments, give no advice unasked. Be cheerful. Make no trouble of any kind. Shut your eyes to anything you do not like. Rejoice openly in all you do like and enjoy. Do not be overburdened by a sense of dependence. So uncertain is this life that dependence may come to almost anyone. High-minded men and women understand this. The opinions of those who are not high-minded do not count.

Wherever you are, cultivate philosophy. "This, too, will pass away." Whatever your environment, may the future bring you peace and happiness, dear Mrs. V.

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

Legumes

BEANS AND LENTILS

It used to be thought that because the legumes were high in protein they could serve as a substitute for milk and for other animal foods. But animal experimentation has shown that the protein in legumes is an incomplete protein, not the same as the protein of milk, and will not suffice to build tissue if used alone. Like the grains, the legumes are useful foods and should be used for variety, but they are not to be depended upon for their protein (used alone.)

Every bean has a characteristic content which is hard to digest, and in many people causes ferment and causes discomfort by gas. Remember this when you give them to children.

Soy bean, a Chinese bean which is now also used in America, is a very valuable source of protein. They have so much that they are especially rich in protein and fat when the starches have to be omitted in the diabetic. The sprouted beans are used in the famous chop suey dish. They are good sources of the vitamins.

POTATOES

The potato is one of our most commonly used foods and has a good deal of the alkalis mineral salts, a fair content of iron. It is also a most valuable foods.

It is true that we never eat the potato has also the starch and the asthenuritic acid which apparently without doubt more than the anti-acid in the other vegetables. Potatoes were introduced into Europe and used in many countries, the number of deaths during war markedly lowered.

Potatoes have an unjust reputation as a fattening food. Weight for weight, they are less fattening than bread. There are three calories in a potato for 100 calories, as compared to two ounces of bread for 100 calories. The reason potatoes often gain this unsavory reputation for producing fat is that they are usually accompanied with a very liberal amount of butter or gravy, both of which are high in calories. So it's the butter they keep that has caused the fat.

Two pounds of potatoes, while relatively low—11 per cent of their total calories—is a protein of high value. More potatoes and less white bread is a good food.

BOILED POTATOES

Boiled potatoes have the same value as fresh potatoes as an article of food, but drying, of course, destroys most of the vitamins.

Because a large proportion of the mineral salts and the vitamins are found under the skin, largely in the part that is removed by paring—potatoes should be pared before cooking. It is better to cook them with the skin on and then remove the skin and mash, because it is difficult to pare a potato so that some of the valuable parts are not lost.

Potatoes are usually considered fattening, but when cooked with the skin on they are wholesome and not fattening. Of course, if the skin becomes very thick, some part of the minerals and vitamins are still left adhering to the skin. This objection, of course, does not apply if the skins are thin, as they are in a good roughage. This is a good plan. The potato has no particular value—it is only what sticks to it that is valuable.

If you want to pare potatoes for a special purpose, scrub them thoroughly and then put the parings in your soup pot so you will not lose the mineral elements.

SWEET POTATOES

The sweet potato has the same properties as the white potato, but is higher in starch. It also has some sugar so, weight for weight, it is a higher energy food than the white potato.

THE DASHEEN

The dasheen is a South American tuber which has recently been introduced into the United States by the Department of Agriculture. It is little richer in starch and protein than our white potato and as it is so easily grown, it is going to form a valuable addition to our diet. Its qualities are about the same as the potato.

THE ROOT VEGETABLES

Beets, carrots, radishes, turnips, onions, parsnips, etc., should be included in our diet often because, having a high content of water, they are not concentrated foods and they have laxative properties, mineral elements and vitamins.

Most of these vegetables if ground fine are more delicious raw than they are cooked. In this way all of their vitamins and mineral salts are saved.

RED STRIKE AT HARBOR PROVES DUD

Attempts of Wobblies to Tie Up Shipping Fizzle Out Completely

Attempts by I.W.W. organizers to tie up shipping at Los Angeles Harbor as a protest against the conviction of twenty-seven members of the order by a Los Angeles court last week yesterday fizzled out completely.

Order was so general that Capt. Clyde Plummer, head of the harbor police, sent back a detail of seventy-five extra policemen to Los Angeles, and announced that days off and vacations would be resumed at once. He removed all extra details on the water front and said that he did not anticipate any further disturbance.

The nightly meetings on Liberty Hill are being conducted by the I.W.W. organizers as usual, but the proportion of speakers to audience is rapidly increasing.

The I.W.W. last week called a five-day sympathetic strike, and less than 200 longshoremen quit work. Their places were quickly filled. The shipowners declare that this attempt has demonstrated to their satisfaction that the radical organization has lost its former grip on laborers at the harbor.

For eight years he has served the Los Angeles Advertising Club as secretary. During the time the club has grown to be the second largest advertising club in the United States.

Raymond's new duties will not interfere with his duties with the Los Angeles club.

BANK TO BUILD IN LONG BEACH

Bancitaly Company Obtains Important Lease

Realty Interests Announce $3,897,000 Deals

Notable Subdivision Plans Also Given Out

Real estate and building transactions involving approximately $3,897,000 were reported yesterday by local architects, real estate firms and others. The deals include the acquisition of a ninety-nine-year lease on property located on the southwest corner of Third street and American avenue in Long Beach, the purchase of a valuable piece of land for subdivision purposes, the erection of a four-story garage on Figueroa street and an apartment on Twelfth street.

Final negotiations have been concluded for a ninety-nine-year lease on the Long Beach property by the Bancitaly Corporation, a subsidiary of the Bank of Italy. The corner was acquired by the banking institution with a view to erecting a height-limit office building on the site. According to A. P. Giannini, president of the Bancitaly Corporation, building plans for the site were started yesterday when the long-term lease was closed by the contracting parties involving more than $1500 in monthly rentals or an aggregate of $1,782,000 for the entire period. Walker and Eisen have been selected to prepare drawings to meet the requirements of the lessees who propose to erect one of the finest structures on the Coast to cost not less than $1,000,000.

The bank home will be contained on the ground floor with space on the upper floors allotted into 235 offices elaborately fitted with very latest conveniences and appointments. The bank will have a frontage of 80 feet on American avenue and 125 feet on Third street.

Announcement was made by Carl F. Schader and associates of the purchase of a ninety-acre plot on the corner of Washington Boulevard and Centinela Boulevard by a syndicate of Los Angeles men and women who intend to subdivide the acreage into small residential and business properties. It is estimated that $400,000 was expended to secure title on the land.

The subdivision is located in a beautiful walnut orchard formerly owned for many years by Harry Chase Orchard. The ground will be known as the Washington Centinela Tract and will be sold under the supervision of Mr. Schader, a local real estate operator for thirty years, who was prominent in the building of Calipatria and the colonization of 50,000 acres in the Imperial Valley, now owned by Frank A. Vanderlip and associates.

There will be a total frontage of 1000 feet on Washington Boulevard and 2000 feet on Centinela, all of which will be available for business purposes. It is planned to preserve all trees on the tract and to improve the land with new streets, sidewalks, curbs, etc. Members of the buying syndicate are Ed Haas, C. E. Kenyon, E. T. Shaffer, J. S. Stetler, William Akin, W. E. Elliot, Nellie M. Schader and Carl F. Schader.

Plans are now being formulated for the erection of a modern, class-A, four-story garage on Figueroa street between Pico and Fifteenth streets, according to the Milwaukee Building Company, which has been commissioned to draft the plans. Specifications call for a structure ninety feet wide and 272 feet long, of reinforced concrete fireproof and to cost $215,000.

J. D. Watson, owner, will be in charge of the building operations and will complete the structure as soon as possible in order to provide more parking space for a district that is highly congested with automobiles and pedestrians. Part of the upper floors will be utilized by local concerns.

Frank F. Rasche, local architect, has been selected to prepare drawings for a four-story apartment to cost about $200,000 and to rise on the corner of Twelfth and Grand View streets, for William W. Bearman and J. A. Miller. Exterior walls will be finished in ruffled brick and cast stone with marble entrance and lobby.

Sale by Walter Armacost & Co., wholesale florists, of property located at 723-729 Wall street was announced yesterday by E. A. Brashem of the J. W. Lewis Company, realtors. The purchase price was not made public but it is said to be in excess of $100,000 which includes the erection of a one-story structure on the site.

Los Angeles, the home of the motion-picture industry, is preparing to tell the world about herself through motion pictures. In a two-reel screen story, "The Port of Golden Opportunity," the phenomenal development of Los Angeles Harbor, the marvelous industrial expansion of Southern California, and the greater growth that is to come, will be unfolded. This picture is being sponsored by World Traders of Los Angeles and produced by Standard Film Laboratories, of Hollywood. The story was written and is being directed by Wedgwood Nowell.

Officials of World Traders, which represents some of the largest business concerns of this section, have foreseen the far-reaching advertising value to Los Angeles of such a motion picture. Plans now are in the making for world-wide distribution of the film after it has been completed. The premier showing will take place in the Philharmonic Auditorium in August, according to present plans.

TOLD IN STORY FORM

"The Port of Golden Opportunity" will be more than a scenic picture, with haphazard views of factories and other industrial plants here. A logical story with many entertainment values has been worked out by Mr. Nowell to give the picture sustained interest in addition to the statistics to be presented.

The growth of Los Angeles Harbor has been so rapid that comparatively few residents there have any idea of the amazing developments of recent months. Men who have studied the shipping situation throughout the world declare that the possibilities of expansion at the local port are virtually unlimited. The idea of World Traders in sponsoring "The Port of Golden Opportunity" is to convey this information to the world at large. It was realized that there could be no better medium that the screen for this purpose.

ACTION SEEN AT HARBOR

Much of the action of the story takes place at the harbor. The type of vessels making this a port of call and the diversity of products received and sent will be shown. Figures telling how Los Angeles Harbor compares with other shipping centers will be presented.

The screen story also will reveal the vast trade possibilities with Latin-America and the Orient that are within the reach of Southern California business men. The things that already have been done and that are contemplated in the near future will be incorporated in an educational motion picture of absorbing interest.

Many commercial and civic organizations are co-operating with World Traders and Standard Film Laboratories to make this production a success and give this community, as well as the outside world, a greater conception of the business future that is ahead for all of Southern California.

MAN HELD AS MASTER SWINDLER

Louis Torreni is Brought Here After Long Search on Fraud Charge

Louis Torreni, asserted bunko man who, according to the police, has obtained thousands of dollars in confidence games from illiterate foreigners, has lost in his race with the law.

Justice Baird yesterday afternoon held him under $25,000 bail to answer for his asserted defrauding of Jules Kaderli, a cook at the Ambassador, out of $2500 last April on the moss-grown charity tin-box game.

The arm of the law is long. Torreni has been a fugitive from justice since last spring, when local officers sought him in connection with Kaderli's buncoing. A circular from police headquarters here caused his arrest in San Francisco last Thursday. There he has been in hiding in the Bay City underworld under two aliases, the police say; that of Louis Montello and Officio Grasso.

Torreni arrived here yesterday in the custody of deputy sheriffs. The case was investigated by Capt. O'Brien and Detective Lieutenants Trainor and Hawtrey, who presented the case to Justice Baird yesterday afternoon. Torreni now is in the County Jail.

According to Capt. O'Brien, Torreni, under the Grasso alias, visited Kaderli with a tin box which he said contained $30,000 left him by an uncle for distribution among the poor in Rome, asking Kaderli to assist him in his philanthropy.

Kaderli readily acquiesced, but his willingness was met with a rejoinder from Torreni, the police say, that the hotel cook first prove his honesty by depositing $2500 in the tin box which Torreni declared contained the $30,000 to be given to the poor.

Kaderli deposited his life-time savings and was given the box to take home with him after being admonished to meet Torreni the next day. Torreni failed to meet Kaderli at the appointed time and the old cook hobbled home to find his treasure trove consisted of a $1 bill wrapped about a roll of paper, according to the story he told Capt. O'Brien.

MOTORIST DISAPPEARS

Rider Leaves Cycle and Vanishes After Road Mishap

A phantom motorcycle rider, who disappeared in a cloud of dust, leaving his motorcycle behind him, was hunted by a posse of men from Lankershim for an hour yesterday without result.

D. H. Kays of Lankershim, was driving along the Newhall grade when a motorcycle rider suddenly lost his balance in the highway ahead of him, and fell with his machine off the road in a cloud of dust. Mr. Kays drove up rapidly, found the cycle lying beside the road, but no sign of the rider.

The mystified motorist drove back to Lankershim, got together a group of friends and went back to the scene. The machine was still there, but a thorough search of the surrounding territory disclosed no rider.

FILM STAR TO MARRY DIRECTOR

Pauline Starke Announces Her Engagement to White of Mermaid Comedy Fame

BY GRACE KINGSLEY

Another of filmland's famous couples is about to wed, according to announcement made yesterday, when Pauline Starke, noted star, acknowledged that the big diamond gleaming on her engagement finger means that she is to marry Jack White, producer of the popular Mermaid comedies.

Jack White

"Jack and I have been engaged a long time," said Miss Starke, "that is, there was an understanding between us, but we definitely decided to wed last May when he went to New York. When he returned he brought me my engagement ring.

"No, I'm not sure when we shall marry. It's too late to be a June bride, isn't it? Maybe we'll decide to make it fifty-fifty, and get get married about Christmas time. But I must say I'm rather sorry we let June slip away without getting married.

"I don't think we shall take any wedding trip. We are both too busy. Later we mean to go to New York."

White owns property in Hollywood on which he means to build a home.

"The announcement of the intended wedding will not surprise the close friends of the pair, who have long known of the romances between them. It began some two or three years ago.

Pauline Starke

Miss Starke did her first film work under direction of D. W. Griffith, a valuable training, as results showed, inasmuch as she has since become one of filmland's brightest stars. She first became really famous in the role of Sandy in the Fox production of Mark Twain's "A Yankee in King Arthur's Court." Since that time she has added to her laurels by her playing of the leading roles in "Salvation Nell," "The Little Church Around the Corner" and others, to which she has brought a spiritual quality unequaled in films.

Jack White began the making of his Mermaid comedies some three years ago, and his work is rapidly making him world famous as a director and producer.

The pair were separated last year when Miss Starke went to the South Sea Islands to appear in a picture directed by Raoul Walsh. It was then, it is said, that she and White decided not to let it happen again.

BOWERS IS READY FOR A DOUBLE

Actor Badly Injured While Bull Dogging Steer in New Play of West

John Bowers, the screen star, never believed in doubles for his daring feats before the camera. Today, however, Bowers thoroughly feels the necessity of a double for some scenes in motion-picture life.

Mr. Bowers is propped up in bed at his home, his left leg broken, his face and body bruised, conforming to the doctor's orders that he forget all about picture work for a while at least.

John Bowers.

It all happened Sunday during the filming of Harold Bell Wright's "When a Man's a Man." Bowers, enacting the role of Patches in the film, is supposed to bulldog a steer. Several cowboys from Prescott, Ariz., working the picture, suggested they double for the star. Bowers, however, feeling he ought to do the stunt himself, refused their services.

Bull-dogging steers is not an easy thing to do, and especially when you are supposed to perform the trick before a moving-picture camera. Everything went well until Bowers was about to leap upon the animal. His left foot caught in the stirrup of his saddle. His body was thrown too far toward the steer to regain a balance, with the result he was dragged by his horse.

Bowers is an expert horseman and while in Arizona recently, while the company spent two months on location, he enacted all of the cattle branding and bucking-horse episodes without a double. He has never used a double in his film career but now says he feels quite differently about the men who don the star's garb and perform the dangerous feats.

While Bowers is recovering, the "When a Man's a Man" company will vacation, as the major portion of the episodes yet to be filmed call for his appearance. Principal Pictures Corporation is making the Harold Bell Wright story at its Hollywood studios.

FORMER REALTY MAN ACCUSED OF SWINDLE

Dep. Dist.-Atty. Becker is preparing evidence for the grand jury to enable that body to issue an indictment that will bring back H. B. Eshleman, former realty man here, who was arrested in St. Louis on telegraphic warrant last week. Eshleman, police say, is wanted here for asserted embezzlement on several counts in 1921. Records state he is accused of swindling G. M. Beck out of $1550 and John M. McAllister out of $2351.11.

MISTAKEN IN BELIEF THAT HE WAS DAD

Letter to Wife From Her Former Mate Wins Decree for L. E. Fetsch

A letter to his wife from her former husband won for Lawrence Edward Fetsch an annulment of his marriage to Ines Fetsch in Judge Keetch's division of the Superior Court yesterday.

The letter, dated January 18, 1922, gave the husband the first inkling that the child of which he believed he was the father was born to his wife as a result of her first marriage, Fetsch said.

"I'll tell you it nearly broke my heart when I heard you had married Larry," the letter said in part. "I guess you were getting revenge for my going to France to fight for my own country. You promised me you would leave Larry and come back to Tucson and to me. Will you do that or things or do you want me to more than 16-56?

"I love you, Girl, and my lie holds good. You will daughter of ours that I doesn't stop crying for will spank her."

The husband stated that intercepted the letter before he opened from it before and that he later learned not obtained her first husband, Walter bor.

FOUR STAR ACTS

ORPHEUM SPRINGS FLOCK OF TOP NOTCHERS

By Grace Kingsley

They are turning three and four headliners loose at a pop, down at the Orpheum these days. They put the head in headliner, do the topnotchers this week.

Leon Errol is a name to conjure with, and the Orpheum is doing a little plain and fancy conjuring, too, by placing Errol in the hit spot of the bill. The comedian hasn't been seen here since he romped around in the Follies several seasons ago. Just seems to me Errol is better than in those days. At any rate, he is as screamingly funny as any comedian has any right to be in the good old drunk stuff in his sketch. "The Guest," in which he does his famous funny falls, and generally kids around after his own inimitable fashion. Alf P. James as his foil, playing the butler, is very good, indeed, and doesn't overplay.

She should have a whole conservatory of hot-house bouquets, should Irene Franklin, for bringing on a change of repertoire during her second week, and then proving such a good sport that she gives us some of the old ones, too. No matter how often you see Miss Franklin, she seems ever fresh and bubbling. And she not only has comedy, she has that rare thing in a comedienne, a deeper note of appeal—just a tiny touch of pathos, a depth of femininity. The old Orpheum stage will be lonely when she goes.

Eva Shirley, also a top-spotter brings a beautiful and flexible soprano voice and a jazz band as her contribution. She sings ballad and grand opera with equally pleasing effort, and her band is the last word in that sort of thing.

Just let me make one criticism, not of the bill, but of the manner of presentation. Why does not the Orpheum give us an intermission, dividing the bill? As it stands, with eight or nine acts in a row, especially when they are of like character, it is not fair to either artists or audience, for the audience grows tired, and there is a big walking out on the last act, no matter if the Angel Gabriel himself should be doing a turn.

Felix Adler and Frances A. Ross are another top-notch pair, especially in their beautiful closing number, the love song which they used in their show in New York last year. Adler is turning to the nut method to make amusement points. Miss Ross is a peach right off the top of the basket, and she has a lovely voice to match.

Another pair who made a striking hit and stopped the show are Frank De Voe, monologist and character singer, and Eddie Willis, his pianist. De Voe has to live down his opening number and his memory-testing jokes, but when he gets down to work in the character songs, he cannot be beaten.

The LeGrohs are different sort of contortionists — contortionists who comedy, and smile cheerfully while doing all those apparently painful twistings. They are in a class by themselves even as contortionists, and their comedy raises them several notches higher.

Harry Rose remains over, bringing out his best number, the burlesque dramatic turn with the props right there on the stage.

Speedy Dance and Jazz Act at Pantages

Speeding along with a whole show in one act, the Cyclonic Syncopaters, as the combination of Jack and June Laughlin's revue and Chuck Whitehead's band is known, breeze gayly ahead in the front rank of the new Pantages bill.

Fast stepping is something the Laughlins always include little else but in their acts, and the samples in this effort are certainly interesting. From the eccentric drunk dance that has been a local favorite before, to the more common varieties of plain and fancy steps usually to be found in offerings of this kind, the members of the company seem to strike the audiences just about right.

Whitehead's band, which is heard in combination with this attraction, proves just as entertaining and popular as ever. For solo numbers the band repeats selections which made a hit on their first appearance, varying the program with well-performed accompaniments to the dance and song numbers.

Second in point of popular favor on the bill comes Clay Crouch in "Oh, You Sheik," which proves to be a purely pointless burlesque with plenty of funny cracks and a pair of entertaining dancers. These girls, the Berg sisters, almost equal the favor with which the star of the act is greeted. Crouch works in blackface, and a lot of his stuff sounds as if he were ad libing, which makes it all the more interesting.

Harry Kranze and Al B. White present "Nonsense," which is. However, they do it well and get the laughs, so there's no kick due.

Three Falcons open the bill with routine acrobatic stunts, one of the members of the company clowning around with happy results. Billy Purcella and Evelyn Ramsey offer some tunes and dances — mostly the latter—and Mlle. Juliette Dika sings a group of songs that are well received.

Gladys Walton heads the screen program in "Sawdust," a story with a circus flavor, well up to the usual standard of her vehicles, and not too old to be enjoyed.

HOUGH STORY STARTS ANOTHER WEEK TODAY

"The Covered Wagon" rolls into its fifteen week at Grauman's Hollywood Egyptian Theater yesterday. And with it goes an ever-increasing attendance at the palatial boulevard cinema palace where the James Cruze picture of "the winning of the West" is presented. Introducing the spectacle of the screen is a unique prologue, "Pioneer Days," in which scores of Indian chietains and veterans of the "covered wagon" days, participate.

In the cast of "The Covered Wagon," an adaptation of the late Emerson Hough's story, are such players as Lois Wilson, J. Warren Kerrigan, Ernest Torrence, John Fox, Jr., Alan Hale and others of equal prominence.

CALIFORNIA SHOWS "WOMAN OF BRONZE"

BY KENNETH TAYLOR

Stories are too often just words, light and meaningless sometimes, arranged in a new and novel fashion. The reader, skimming over the surface lightly, is entertained for the moment. Then a day or two later comes another story—or rather, the same written by a different person. The words and their order are changed; also the style. And the reader, skimming over the surface lightly, is entertained for the moment, for it is as something new to him. But put them both on the screen—hear the loud wails from the fans for something new!

Occasionally someone has a story that is told in human emotions and feelings; not words. You cannot disguise this, and pass it off again and again. You cannot skim lightly over it and just be entertained. You must stop and think and feel with the characters. And when this story reaches the screen you find the audiences genuinely interested, absorbed in the sketch of life they are witnessing.

It was just such a story as this, I think, that Henry Kistaemacher wrote when he wrote "The Woman of Bronze." If he didn't, then King Vidor who directed the picture, and the cast headed by Clara Kimball Young should receive all the praise, for the picturization of the novel and play showing at the California this week has those qualities of genuine interest and absorbing characterization. A little too long and slow at the beginning perhaps, but with a compelling force that draws you into the spirit of the tale, watching the struggle of the sculptor who was unfaithful, and the suffering of the woman who was true, here is a picture—not great—good.

Supporting Miss Young, who does a fine bit of acting as Vivian Hunt, are Lloyd Whitlock, John Bowers, Edwin Stevens, Edward K.mball and Katherine McGuire. All are capable in their roles.

A picture that might be featured on some bills is "Bessie, The Adventuress," the result of further adventures on the part of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson in the South Sea Islands. Bessie is a monk from Borneo, who takes a trip to New York and points east and west.

The orchestra, under the direction of Dion Romandy, plays the usual three selections with the usual skill and artistry. This week the program is composed of "If I Were King," "Forget Me Not," and the new song, "Marcellonie," "The Pace That Kills," an Aesop's Fable cartoon with a smile in every movement, is also on the bill.

All Kinds of Entertainment at Hillstreet

If you like serious dramatic sketches, if you like jazz, if you like comedy, you will find an act to headline the bill that opened yesterday at the Hillstreet, for there is a topnotch offering of each class playing at that theater this week.

Jean Acker is the first, in a "A Regular Girl." The fact that she is billed as Mrs. Rodolph Valentino, the first, may not add any to her ability as an actress, but it probably means a lot to the fans.

Anyway, "A Regular Girl" is a fine playlet if you like that sort of thing, and while only half of the cast have more than ordinary ability, the play is not uninteresting to watch.

The jazz hounds are Bailey and Cowan, who work with Estelle Davis. Miss Davis is a red head, as you'll find out if you don't notice it, after hearing a few wise cracks from one of the male members of the trio. There opening is too reminiscent of an act which played here last week to be entirely novel, but after that is forgotten the offering swings into a fast pace of its own, and holds to it.

A combination of the ridiculous and not quite the sublime is what Florence Tempest and Homer Dickinson present. There is mostly a comedy act with a little serious effort at song and dance.

Du Val and Symonds pull a routine matrimonial spat right out in front where everybody can get in on it. Besides greatly amusing the audience for their alloted time, they provide Homer Dickinson with a little additional material when he comes out following them.

Violin selections ranging from the classic to the low-brow constitute the greater part of the act presented by the Bernivici brothers. A few vocal selections add variety. The Littlejohns start things going with their brilliant juggling act, wherein the two do their stuff while rolling around the stage on large balls. The act has color and sparkle, to say the least.

That a beautiful liar stands just as good a chance of getting a husband as anyone else is demonstrated by "The Beautiful Liar" herself through the talents of Katherine MacDonald. The story deals with a girl who masquerades as a famous actress to oblige a hotel manager, and the peck or two of trouble it gets her into. The current episode of "The Eagle's Talon's" leaves you with a gasp, and an Aesop's Fables cartoon amuses as usual.

McKIM A VILLAIN BY ACCIDENT ONLY

Robert McKim, who plays the part of the doctor in "Human Wreckage," now on view at Grauman's Rialto, has the honor of being the best-loved villian on the screen. He is one of the few heavies who gets fan mail and requests for autographed photographs.

McKim is a native son, having been born in San Jacinto. He was educated in San Francisco and began his career with the Alcazar Stock Company, where he played handsome heroes. He played for three seasons with Mrs. Lantry on the Orpheum Circuit, then decided on pictures.

He was accidentally thrust into villainy. Having secured an engagement with Thomas H. Ince, he was given a place in a picture which needed someone to do dastardly deeds. After that first day's work he vowed to return to the stage and the here stuff, but lingered on just to see how thoroughly villainous he could be. Many motion pictures testify that he has excelled in his art.

TUNES, GIRLS IN BURBANK OFFERING

Ttantalizing with its peppy tunes, containing a number of the latest importations of two-steps and representing a production which is lively and tuneful, "Jazzitus" is the latest Hi-Jinks production at the Burbank Theater. It is entertaining, with Lee "Bud" Harrison, black-face comedian, in a character role sure to please, and with George Clark and the rest of the funsters in parts giving them every opportunity for a display of their talents.

Among the favorites who are seen are Jean Darby, Grace Hutchinson, William McKee and a number of newcomers, including the dancing team of Marmon and Madeline Taft. The chorus is seen on the illuminated runway. The production moves along with every evidence of good rehearsing and rewards its audience every minute with wholesome fun. George Clark staged the production.

VIOLIN NOVELTY

String Sextets Vie for Honors at Sunday Concert

Grauman's "discovery" concert Sunday was marked by several outbursts of enthusiasm. The violin contest evoked much interest, six solo artists from the Metropolitan Orchestra and six from the orchestra of the Third Street Theater competing. The former group with J. Bloor at the piano, played Schubert's "Ave Maria," and "Zigeunerweisen," by Sarasate, and the other artists, with Will Garroway accompanying, played the Bach-Gounod "Ave Maria," and "Praeludium," by Bach-Kreisler.

Otto Lederer's friends gave him a rousing welcome when he appeared on the stage and the entire house followed each of his numbers with applause. His gift for versatility in characterizations was evidenced by his reading of Robert Service's "The Reckoning," his own interpretation of "Shylock," and a sympathetic bit, "The Italian Immigrant," which captured everyone.

Georgia Stark, brilliant young coloratura soprano, with Jeannette Rogers playing a flute obbligato, also received an ovation, offering "The Wren." Edward Novis, baritone, with Dr. Frank Nagel accompanying, sang the dramatic prologue to "Pagliacci," with fine feeling.

Laura Forde, pianist, Harry Ross, tenor, and Ruth Stanley, soprano, delighted with their selections.

Not So Bad, Not So Bad!

A young man was engaged in teaching deaf mutes. He was explaining by signs the use and mean of "dis," then requested one of the students to write on the blackboard a sentence showing his knowledge of the subject. A bright little fellow stepped forward and wrote, "Boys love to play, but girls to display."—[Capper's Weekly.

PLAYDOM

GRAUMAN PICTURE BREATHES IDEALISM

By Edwin Schallert

Idealism is absent so often in photoplays that once in a while when you do see one that really exhales it as does "The Man Next Door" this week at Grauman's Third-street Theater, you enjoy its springtime fragrance, even though the plot may not be altogether new, and the situations are quite trite. The picture was one directed by Victor Schertzinger, and like his songs "Marcheta" and "An Old Love Song" it is redolent with a delicate sentiment that overcomes the crasser elements of any regulation popular type of theme.

Emerson Hough wrote the original. Which means that there is a touch of the West. It is refined, of course, by the setting, which is in the world of convention. The clash of straightforward thinking and acting against social barriers is what makes the background of the narrative, and the opposition of a snobbish group of people to a young girl's entrance into their circle is what starts the play going. Best of all perhaps for amusement is that touch were the dog plays go between, carrying notes from the Romeo of one faction to the Juliet of the other.

As the heroine, Alice Calhoun, whom I have not seen in some moons on the screen, reflects a lovely presence in this picture. She is one of the most refined of leading woman types. She lacks something of grace and abandon in her acting as yet, but is most promising in her combining of girlishness and womanliness of feeling, and her beauty. She is really rare.

Humor is liberally contributed by Frank Sheridan as her self-appointed guardian. David Torrence renders him considerable aid. The two together kept the audience laughing.

James Morrison to my mind is always a very satisfying leading man, and he adds another capable portrayal to his list. John Steppling, Adele Farrington, Bruce Boteler and Mary Culver are in the cast.

The Chrisite comedy, "Plumb Crazy," featuring Bobbie Vernon, is rather amusing, while the musical numbers add worth to a program that is headed by a very pleasing feature.

Among quite a few harrowing and aggravating experiences during the present theatrical season I think that I shall remember the viewing of "Your Friend and Mine" this week at the Kinema Theater as one of the worst. It is incredible that any picture could be quite so bad in this supposedly moderately enlightened age of feature production, but the screen is testimony of the fact.

More than to mention that it is the old story of the wife who is courted by the artist who paints her picture during the husband's absence from home, I need hardly say anything. The most that I can state is that virtually this same plot is twice repeated while the feature is flashed on the screen, once during the actual progress of the story and the other time as a cut in.

A vaudeville sketch by Willard Mack, I believe, was the cause of this particular picture. An effort seems to be made to prove that this sketch had a purpose. Just why there should have to be proof of the fact that any vaudeville sketch has a purpose, I do not know, but I see no use in wasting about seven reels of film and the time of a cast of players, not to speak of Mr. Mack's own, in trying to put over such a demonstration.

After remarking that Allene Ray, as a newcomer, affords a glimpse of talent, I turn with relief to the "Leather Pushers" picture, starring Reginald Denny, and with Ethel Shannon, I think it is—although she is not named on the program—beside one or two others, as bright supporting players. The "Leather Pushers" series is for a real seeker after fresh air in the midst of sordid sentimental so-called sex entertainment.

STEEPLE JACK WITH HAROLD IN COMEDY

Bill Strother, who plays the part of Harold Lloyd's pal in "Safety Last," the comedian's latest mirth-thriller which is now playing in its eighth week at the Miller Theater, is known from one end of the country to the other as the "human fly." In the past three years he has climbed some of the tallest buildings in the United States for the benefit of the Disabled Veterans of the World War.

Still under 30, Strother is probably the most daring steeple jack in the world. Not long before he started work in "Safety Last," which incidentally marks his screen debut, Strother suffered a nasty fall while performing in Santa Ana. He broke several bones in his right foot and injured himself internally.

The prospects are that he will go through the rest of his life lame. He is introduced in "Safety Last" as Limpy Bill, yet his injury does not prevent him from performing daring feats which marked his career before his fall.

'ROBIN HOOD' TO CLOSE

Fairbanks Play will Run Two More Weeks at Mission Theater

Douglas Fairbanks in "Robin Hood," is now in its last two weeks at the Mission Theater. Immediately following the present engagement, the picture will be taken from Los Angeles and sent to other districts of the country where it has not yet been seen.

Manager Jack Root has given the production a surperb presentation. Gino Severi and the Mission Symphonic Orchestra present the "Robin Hood," overture at ever performance. Severi plays Borowski's "Adoration" as a solo.

WILL OFFER TROPHY

Flo Campbell, vaudeville headliner, will present the silver cup at Sunset Inn tomorrow night for the "photoplayers' frolic."

OIL FIRM GETS HARBOR SITE

Pan-American Petroleum Awarded Old Submarine Base; to Erect Large Station

The Pan-American Petroleum Company was announced as victor yesterday in the contest among a score of steamship lines to get control of the recently evacuated submarine base in Los Angeles Harbor. The base, situated at the head of the main channel between the inner and outer harbors, is considered the best location in this port.

The Harbor Board announced that the oil company would begin at once construction of wharves and storage facilities to cost at least $1,200,000. The location includes a 1200-foot frontage on the main channel, 900 feet on Outer Harbor Boulevard, and a depth of 300 feet.

The work when completed is expected to be the finest oil-loading station on the Pacific Coast, with a loading capacity of 20,000 barrels an hour, and storage capacity of 400,000 barrels.

The Pan-American Company recently has completed a $10,000,000 refinery three miles north of Wilmington and nine miles from the loading station. Work will be started at once on an eight-inch pipe line to connect the refinery with the harbor station.

Instead of being brought through the congested district of the harbor, the pipe line will be carried across the width of Mormon, Terminal and Dead Man's Islands, and across the main channel to the new station location.

The Pan-American Company now operates a fleet of fourteen tankers between this port and New Orleans, and the new station will be able to accommodate three of the tankers at once. It will occupy Berths 69, 70 and 71.

W. P. Cook, one of the foremost oil engineers of the country, arrived here yesterday to act as district engineer for the Pan-American Company and to direct construction of the new facilities.

Committee to Greet Pershing Here Appointed

Col. H. R. Richmond, Lieut.-Col. J. W. Sutphen and Phillip Dodson, as a committee, have been designated to take charge of the entertainment and reception of Gen. Pershing and party on their visit to Los Angeles.

The appointment was made by Gen. Morten, commanding the Ninth Corps Area at the Presidio, San Francisco, under direction of the War Department.

A banquet is planned at which it is hoped Gen. Pershing will have a chance to meet reserve officers and members of the American Legion. Col. Sutphen will act as Gen. Pershing's personal aide.

EDEN GARDENS.

One week ago I offered these small tracts near Del Mar, San Diego County, for the first time. I got results, because buyers found that the land was rich, well situated for homes, ideal for fruits and vegetables, chicken ranches and everything else, and because there is plenty of good irrigating water at a reasonable price. Where can you buy land like this, near a beautiful beach and the Los Angeles-San Diego Coast Boulevard at $500 and $600 an acre? San Diego County coast lands under the Lake Hodges Irrigation System offer the best buy for home seekers in California today.

KILLED ON EVE OF HAPPY TRIP

Aged Man, About to Retire to East, Hit by Auto

Planned to Spend Last Years in Boston With Wife

Held Tickets When Struck; Widow Prostrated

For thirty years Arthur H. Abell had worked continuously in order that he and his wife, Mrs. Minne Abell, might be prepared for their old age and be able to return to their old home in Boston to spend their last days.

Last Saturday Abell resigned his position with the banking department of the Pacific-Southwest Trust and Savings Bank, bought tickets for himself and his wife for Boston and went home to prepare for the long trip East. For twenty years Abell had been a dry goods merchant at Hamilton, Island of Bermuda, but on account of failing health he moved to Los Angeles eight years ago. He recently had passed his sixty-fifth year.

Yesterday Abell went downtown to buy a new trunk. As he stepped from the street car at Avenue 52 and Pasadena avenue, on the return from his buying trip, the plans of the aged couple for returning East were shattered. An automobile driven by J. R. Reinert, 3505 Fifth avenue, struck Abell to the ground.

Mrs. Abell, who resides at 130 West Avenue 53, was one of the first at the scene. When she bent over the unconscious form of her husband she found the long strip of green tickets grasped in his hand. The aged man was placed in the Emergency Hospital ambulance, but died before reaching the hospital.

Reinert, the driver of the car, declared that the man stepped in the front of his machine and the accident was unavoidable. He is being held by police for investigation. Mrs. Abell is grief-stricken.

Less than an hour before, within half a block of the same location, William Erwin, 74 years of age, was hit by an automobile driven by E. J. Gray, 224 Annandale Boulevard. His injuries, consisting of a basal fracture of the skull, concussion of the brain and a broken left leg, are expected to prove fatal, Emergency Hospital doctors declare.

Baruch Estate Worth Quarter-Million Dollars

The late Clarence Baruch left an estate of $250,000, it was disclosed when his will was probated in the Probate Court today.

Bulk of the estate is bequeathed to three brothers, Edgar, Milton and Herbert Baruch. He was a son of Jacob Baruch, founder of Haas, Baruch and Company.

Baruch died June 2, last. The will directs the executor to use $10,000 of the estate for charity, granting the executor privilege to choose the charity deemed best.

EXECUTIVE PLANS BRIEF STATE TOUR

Gov. Richardson will leave Los Angeles tomorrow over the Sunset Limited for a short tour of the northern and central sections of the State, during which he will visit Salinas, the Presidio at Monterey, San Francisco and Sacramento, returning here either next Saturday or Monday.

The Governor will arrive at Salinas at 7 a.m., Thursday, and while there will attend the annual rodeo. He is expected to lead the parade preceding the round-up. From Salinas he will proceed to Camp Richardson, named in his honor, at the Presidio, and while there will review the California group in camp there.

The Governor will then go to San Francisco, where he is expected to remain for a day, and later proceed to Sacramento, returning here either Saturday or Monday.

Probate Judge Bats for Cupid at Courthouse

Miss Agnes C. O'Connor, 6058 Van Ness avenue, was married yesterday to James Prince Livingston, wealthy New York grain exporter, by Probate Judge Clark. The honeymoon will be spent in New York and London.

Miss O'Connor has been residing with her brother, W. J. O'Connor, at the Van Ness avenue address. She is tall and dark. Her wedding attire consisted of a tan silk gown with large black picture hat. Miss Mary Lahey, secretary of the probate court, and Mrs. W. J. O'Connor were witnesses at the ceremony.

Livingston until recently had been residing at the Virginia Hotel, Long Beach. W. J. O'Connor is associated with him in the grain business.

Widow of Peck Drops Contest Based on Will

The contest of the will of W. I. Peck, instituted by his widow, Emily, was dismissed yesterday by Judge Clock of the Superior Court on motion of E. Marion Crawford, the woman's attorney.

The contest had revolved about $30,000 in bonds which the widow asserted had been left by her husband in a safety deposit box. The box was opened but no bonds were found.

Mr. Peck died on January 9, last, cutting off his widow with $5 and leaving the rest of the estate to Mrs. Catherine M. Robinson, the wife of his attorney. Mrs. Peck contended that the will was invalid because her husband was mentally unsound when it was drawn.

Ceremony at Crematory for Relatives Only

Members of Bar Pay Glowing Tributes to Dead Man

Funeral services for United States District Judge Oscar A. Trippet are to be conducted at the Trippet home, 943 South Hoover street, Friday morning at 10 o'clock, following which the body will be taken to the Los Angeles Crematory, where final services will be exclusively for members of the family.

Judge Trippet died some time Saturday night while asleep in his room at Squirrel Inn, in the San Bernardino Mountains, near San Bernardino, where he had gone for the week-end.

Funeral arrangements are in the hands of a special committee appointed by Oscar Lawler, president of the Los Angeles County Bar Association. The committee includes John E. Biby, chairman, and W. P. James, Victor E. Shaw, Charles Wellborn, L. H. Valentine, Frank S. Finlayson, J. A. Anderson, Dell Schweitzer, John D. Works and Ward Chapman.

COURTS CLOSE FRIDAY

In honor of the memory of Judge Trippet, the United States courts will be closed all day Friday. At a later date a memorial service is to be conducted in the Federal Building. The bar association committee having this matter in charge consists of Jefferson P. Chandler, chairman, and Harry J. Stevens, Force Parker, Frank James and G. C. De Garmo.

Tributes to the memory of Judge Trippet were paid yesterday by his associates in the Federal court, Judges Ross, James and Bledsoe, United States Attorney Burke and Federal officials, who during the late jurist's nine years service had learned to honor and admire him.

The human side of the judge was always evident when he was on the bench, and even in pronouncing sentence on the most flagrant of violators, he never allowed his interest in the good of humanity to be submerged.

On several occasions, when an attorney was pleading for the court to give a light sentence in order that the prisoner might soon be released to care for his destitute family, Judge Trippet refused to be swayed in his duty by such an appeal, but leaning down from the bench offered financial aid to the wife and children.

Judge Trippet was a firm believer in the enforcement of the Volstead Act, declaring that despite discussion of its merits it was a Federal law and as such should be rigidly adhered to. Bootleggers received short shrift at his hands, as he invariably sent them to jail, stating as he did so that he refused to license peddling by assessing fines.

In his legal aspect Judge Trippet was revered by members of the bar for his vast knowledge and experience in the law. His decisions were seldom appealed, as his findings were almost never reversed, such was his care in examining into the aspects of the case.

Raw young lawyers, lately admitted to the bar and trembling when they addressed the court, learned to respect Judge Trippet for the kindness and courtesy shown them when they were overcome with stage fright in his court.

Judge Trippet's deep-seated patriotism and love of country were perhaps best shown when giving to a class of aliens the oath of allegiance to the United States. On such occasions he insisted on proper ceremony, though he was at all times a man of simple address, saying that becoming a citizen of the United States was the greatest and most beneficent thing that could be given a man of foreign birth. He never failed to impress upon the class the majesty and tolerance of their new-found country, but warned them that infraction of its laws was an unpardonable insult.

FOUR DIE RECENTLY

The death of Judge Trippet follows closely upon that of three other well-known men with whom he had been associated for many years in the Federal service. George W. Hazen, secret service agent, was the first; then Alfred Moore, bailiff in Judge Bledsoe's court, and then Ralph J. Dominguez, cryer of the Federal Court. Each of the four were kindly, experienced and loved by all their acquaintances.

Judge James yesterday took up the duty of hearing Judge Trippet's calendar and will continue to do so until other arrangements are perfected. United States Attorney Burke notified the Department of Justice in Washington of Judge Trippet's death and it is expected that a judge from another district will shortly be detailed to take up the former jurist's work. In the course of a few weeks appointment of a successor will be taken up, probably as a recess appointment when President Harding arrives in Washington.

FOR GRADE CROSSING PLAN

State Railroad Commission Willing to Aid in Any Move Toward Elimination

Following publication in The Times yesterday of resolutions by the Automobile Club of Southern California appealing for co-operation by governmental departments and civic bodies in formulating a plan for the abolishment of dangerous grade crossings officials of the State Railroad Commission emphasized their favorable attitude toward the proposals and outlined the procedure toward that end.

E. F. Bogardus, chairman of the Transportation Committee of the Los Angeles Board of Public Utilities, explained the progress being made in his department toward solution of the problem. Councilman Allen, chairman of the Public Utilities Committee of the City Council, said that the latest step of the Council had been to refer the question to the Public Safety Committee of which Councilman Sanborn is chairman.

As Mayor Cryer repeatedly has expressed himself as being heartily in favor of any practicable and equitable plan that would abolish the grade-crossing menace, various city departments are assured of his suport in their efforts.

COMMISSIONER COMMENTS

Railroad Commissioner Brundige, commenting upon the resolutions of the Automobile Club, said:

"The commission will be extremely glad to co-operate with the Automobile Club and with any and all organizations and governmental units, looking to a more rapid elimination of dangerous grade crossings. Any governmental unit may bring the matter before this commission.

"The problem is a many-sided one for the reason that, while this commission is empowered to authorize such work and allocate the proportions of cost, it has no power to provide the necessary funds or determine how they shall be provided. Under present circumstances, therefore, the commission is obligated, in equity, to consider, not only the menace of the crossings but allocation of the cost so that it will not be impossible to meet it in any one direction. It is these considerations that prevent this commission from taking the initiative in the matter."

So far as cities, counties and other units are found in a financial position to carry out such work, Commissioner Brundige expressed himself as heartily in favor of its immediate authorization.

"So far as it is possible to go under present conditions," he said, "city and county governments and departments may rely upon us to do our full share of the work."

Examiner Williams, of the Los Angeles office of the commission, who has recently conducted hearings on proposed crossings in various sections of Southern California, declared himself a strong proponent of separated highway and railway crossings, as near fool proof as it is possible to make them.

"The traveling public is not best served by slowing up at crossings," he said, "and so many gates have been shattered by automobile drivers who try to get through while they are being closed, that they have become a joke."

SPECIAL ACTS PASSED

Examiner Williams pointed out that legislatures of various other States had passed enabling acts authorizing special systems for taxation to provide for programs of progressive elimination of crossings beginning with the most dangerous.

"This system, which never has been adopted in this State," said Examiner Williams, "seems to have proved a happy solution of the grade-crossing problem. By various applications of this system exorbitant tax levies at any one time are avoided, governmental units keep within their authorized bonding limit, and the railroads are not burdened with an unbearable immediate expense."

Asked if Los Angeles is at present in a financial position to meet the expense of abolishing the most dangerous crossings, the commissioner and the examiner were unable to speak officially, but had the general impression that the city is in a position to do so.

Commissioner Bogardus of the Los Angeles Board of Public Utilities, said that while he and Chief Engineer Lorentz of the board recently were in the East studying this problem, they were much impressed by the methods used on the Brooklyn-Coney Island line in New York City. There the tracks are depressed, he explained, and declared that he would like to see the same system in use on the lines between Los Angeles and the various beaches.

From the point of view of the Board of Public Utilities, the grade-crossing problem is one of the most important of those involved in a general transportation plan which the board is now engaged in working out. The department is now engaged on the city's subway problem, Bogardus said, and its next step would be to take up the problem of grade crossings not automatically eliminated by the proposed subway. New York City has expended $260,000,000 on its subways, and proposes to spend $225,000000 more, while Chicago has undertaken the construction of subways that will cost $125,00,000. Mr. Bogardus said the department would spare no effort in its deliberations to reach consideration of the grade-crossing problem as soon as possible. Its findings will then be submitted to the City Council.

Councilman Allen expressed himself as hopeful of an early formulation of a definite plan that could be placed before the Railroad Commission.

Tells Doctors to Get Out of Political Arena

Dr. Ernest Dozier of Redding, physician and member of the State Assembly, has addressed a letter to Gov. Richardson, denouncing the political activities of certain of his colleagues, with particular reference to the resultant situation in the licensing and practice of chiropractors and osteopaths. He says in part:

"It is a matter of regret that I could not attend the meeting of the State Medical Society last week. I have some ideas on the manner in which the medical profession of this State ought to conduct itself if it is going to avoid political and legislative trouble in the future. One of them is that the profession become shrinking violets, get out of the political arena, fire all the Messiahs and stop worrying about the false gods of the public or trying to educate them out of it.

"I foretold what would happen last November on the chiropractor and osteopath initiative and the files of the State Medical Examiners and the State Medical Journal have communications in them for three years past criticizing, objecting, objurgating and imprecating what they were doing in the way of handling the illegal practitioner situation, and prophesying a successful initiative if they did not abandon those policies, but they had jobs to fill, salaries to draw, and a front to throw and they kept at it."

MRS. BROSS FREED OF THEFT CHARGE

The release of Lillian Bross, arrested recently on a theft charge, was ordered yesterday by Judge Avery of the Superior Court on a writ of habeas corpus obtained by her attorney, S. S. Hahn. Mrs. Bross, who recently was acquitted of slaying her husband, had been arrested and accused by police of complicity in the robbery of a tire store.

WOMEN'S WAGE LAW IS HIT

Three Federal Judges Grant Injunction Preventing Arizona From Prosecuting Confectionery Man

A blow at the Arizona minimum wage law for women was struck yesterday when three Federal judges, assembled in Los Angeles, granted to A. Sardelle, a confectioner of Nogales, Ariz., an injunction against John W. Murphy, Attorney-General of Arizona, and W. A. O'Connor, County Attorney of Santa Cruz county, Arizona, restraining them from prosecuting Sardelle for paying four girls in his employ less than $16 per week.

The next move by the Arizona officials in order to enforce their law is to carry the fight to the United States Supreme Court. Their chances of success before that body, however, are deemed to be slight, as an opinion handed down April 9, last, declared the Minimum-Wage Law of the District of Columbia to be unconstitutional.

After action against Sardelle was taken by the Arizona officials his attorneys filed a complaint in the United States District Court of Arizona, praying for the injunction. Because a constitutional point was involved it was necessary that three United States judges sit in deliberation and render a decision.

Judge Sawtelle, of the United States Court of Arizona, Circuit Judge Ross and District Judge Bledsoe met yesterday in Judge Ross's chambers and handed down the opinion blocking the enforcement of the law. The decision was based upon the Supreme Court decision already referred to.

In his complaint Sardelle declares that he is the owner of two confectionary stores in Nogales, where employs four girls as clerks, namely, Mary Cang, Frances Arvizu, Alice Burrel and Lola Carrasco. These girls, he says, are paid less than the $16 weekly which is demanded under the Arizona law. That law was passed by the Legislature February 13, last, and became effective June 9. The penalty attached to violation is a fine of from $50 to $300, and a jail sentence of from ten to sixty days.

Sardelle insists that he is unable to pay his clerks $16 weekly, and that if he should do so he would suffer loss and damage. He raises the constitutional point by arguing that the law is in defiance of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution, and on this basis asks the writ of injunction.

An answer on the part of Attorney-General Murphy and County Attorney O'Connor was filed in the Arizona Federal Court, in which most of the assertions are conceded, but the authority of the State law upheld.
